PUBLISHER'S NOTE

The Sargent Handbooks, as projected, are to be a series of volumes on Education, Travel, and subjects of general human interest, not at present adequately covered by single books. The purpose is to bring together in a convenient form trustworthy information that will give a general, all-round critical view of the subject, with no hesitancy in telling more than the conventional truths. The plan contemplates annual revisions, sparing no effort or expense in investigation and editing until a definitive form has been attained.

There is need for such carefully prepared books. On many subjects there is lack of coordinated, easily accessible information that will meet modern demands. These books endeavor to give a complete orientation on each subject. Specialists would never write them. Publishers have not produced them. If prepared with sufficient care, they cannot pay in the first editions.

This second edition of the Handbook of Private Schools is a complete reconstruction of the earlier one, approximating more nearly the definitive form. Much study has been given to technical features. A paper has been selected which has the advantages of compactness and opacity and that takes halftones well without reflecting the light. The new type chosen after much study with the best expert advice gives the maximum of legibility with the maximum number of words in a given space. Although claimed by its makers to be the best face cut, it has been little used because it does not run into pages fast enough to suit the usual book maker.

A Handbook of American Colleges and Universities will be the second of the Series on Education. Material for this has been collecting during the past year. A Handbook on the Education of Young Children is planned to complete the trilogy on the years of adolescent education.

Simultaneously with this edition appears the second of the series, A HANDBOOK OF NEW ENGLAND, a volume of 840 pages, critically descriptive of town and country in all phases of human interest. Other books are planned or projected which, if well received, may eventually cover the United States. Much material has already been brought together for a Handbook of the Middle States.

The return of peace and normal interests may make possible the publication of the Handbooks originally planned on travel subjects for which material was accumulated in foreign fields during ten years. A Handbook of Rome, practically ready for the press for the past two years, is intended to be a sort of laboratory manual and source book, collated from the best that has been written on the subject during the last 2000 years.

INTRODUCTORY

EDUCATION IN AMERICA

Education, with all Americans, is a democratic ideal,—almost a national fetish. It is proclaimed the safeguard of popular government. We all believe in the inalienable right of every child to a free education.

It is interesting to consider how far we have attained our ideal. According to the 1910 U. S. Census, 40.3% of the total population was between the ages of five and twenty-four, the age from the Elementary to the Professional Schools. The last report of the Commissioner of Education states that 20,729,876 students were enrolled in the educational institutions of the country, or about 50% of those of school and college age. Of these 19,000,000 were in the Elementary Schools, 1,374,000 in the Secondary Schools, 216,000 in the Colleges and Universities, and 67,000 in Professional Schools.

19.7% of the total population of the country is approximately of Secondary School age, between the ages of ten and nineteen. But only about 1.6% of the population is receiving education above grammar school grade. Less than 10% of the boys and girls who are of Secondary School age enter a High School, public or private.

For every 1000 children who enter the first grade of the Elementary Schools, 109 finish the eighth grade, 6 enter the High School, and one gets to college.

We spend money lavishly on education,—three fourths of a billion dollars annually. This is about one third of the nation's expenditure on alcoholic liquors, three fourths of what is spent by the Federal Government, three times what it spends on the "movies." It is somewhat more than the value of the cotton crop, somewhat less than the value of the wheat crop or half the value of the corn crop.

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

The new edition of the Handbook of the Best Private Schools appears under a new and more comprehensive title, as the scope of the work has outgrown its earlier name. It is the intent to make the Handbook not indiscriminately inclusive, but essentially complete for schools vitally existent. No attempt however is made to include schools that are as yet projects or of doubtful permanence, nor those schools that lack individual or distinctive features, nor the usual elementary schools.

Among the Special Schools a large degree of selection has been necessary. Of the 1300 Music Schools and of the 1276 Catholic secondary schools only the best and more distinctive have been included. In the next edition an effort will be made to make this list still more representatively complete. Suggestions in regard to this will be gratefully received. New Classifications,—Business, Secretarial, Technical, and Vocational Schools will probably be added.

Those schools of which there was something distinctive to say have been treated in the critical text. If any have been unjustly omitted therefrom, specific information and trustworthy evidence that will permit of their being characteristically described will be welcomed.

Schools which have responded with the necessary statistical information are presented in the Comparative Tables. Other schools supposedly of less importance or of which there is little distinctive to say are included in the list of Supplementary Schools with such reliable information as could be ascertained.

The difficulty of collecting specific and trustworthy particulars is still great, though most schools have responded more fully and cordially to our appeals than formerly. Some 10,000 postage stamps have been expended in accumulating revision material for this second edition. The U.S. Commissioner of Education in his Reports has noted the same difficulty in obtaining complete information from the Private Schools. Some of them are still inclined to interpret the term "private" as implying a personal privacy.

In revising the critical accounts of the schools details of equipment, courses, and such matters as the school could well state itself have been cut out, as have also statistical details given in the Comparative Tables. The revision has been based on a great accumulation of additional testimony from all sources—parents, teachers, pupils, and college authorities—in all parts of the country. In estimating the schools of the South, especially those for girls, we have relied much on the assistance of Miss Elizabeth Colton, President of the Southern Association of College Women. Likewise for the Pacific Coast States E. C.

Boynton of the Boynton-Esterly Teachers' Agency has rendered valuable advice. From every part of the country we have received assistance which in most cases must remain unacknowledged because confidentially given.

A considerable number of colleges have been included in this book, some because they have preparatory departments doing secondary work, others, because they are chiefly or wholly engaged in secondary work, having inherited the name 'college' from an earlier and less discriminating time. Of the 330,832 students enrolled in 807 universities and colleges in 1912-13, nearly one half, 157,743, were doing work of high school grade. There are more than a hundred so-called 'colleges' that are not even good high schools.

The encouragement and cooperation of leading educators and increased knowledge has made possible in this edition a somewhat more searching critique of the schools.

If injustice has been done any school it has been due to the incompleteness of the evidence presented, for the editors can only undertake to weigh specific evidence before them. Too often school authorities or their partisans enter indignant protest or jockey for position, 'log-roll,' or 'wire-pull' instead of presenting clear-cut and definite testimony. Some large and influential schools have attempted through pressure and influence and even offer of money to secure what they considered a more favorable presentation of their school.

The new features introduced it is hoped will be of value to the users of the book, both parents and educational authorities. The introductory chapters have been revised and rearranged, and the new ones added it is hoped will prove of immediate and vital interest. The Select Reading List of secondary education and the List of Private School Periodicals are as far as is known the first to be published. A review of educational progress and recent literature will hereafter be an annual feature.

The plan of this book has from the first contemplated three successive editions and revisions before attaining a definitive form. Numerous shortcomings are still apparent to the Editor. Many features have been held over for the third edition to be published early in 1917. The Comparative Tables will be wholly reconstructed and made more significant. Numerous maps will be introduced, showing the location of each school of importance.

Constructive criticism is invited from all educators. School and College authorities are requested to send catalogs and other printed matter as issued, and specific evidence on errors of fact or judgment that may be detected. From School Patrons definite facts or well validated opinions will be welcomed.

WHAT THEY SAY

The reception of the first edition of this Handbook was most encouraging. A sixty-four page report on the distribution and reception during its first six months was issued to hearten its early supporters. Since that time enough more letters have been received to make another similar booklet, and a total of approximately 8000 copies of the first edition of the Handbook have been distributed.

The book reviewers have given it favorable notice in more than seventy periodicals, hailing it as "almost unthinkable that any book can appear on any hitherto uncovered field."<sup>1</sup> "A new variety of handbook, serving a useful purpose, has appeared,"<sup>2</sup> "an encyclopædia of secondary schooling,"<sup>3</sup> "so practicable and serviceable,"<sup>4</sup> "an authoritative and unprejudiced brief account of the best private schools with scrupulous nicety of differentiation."<sup>5</sup> "A Baedeker to the educational seeker, to parents and all interested in secondary schools."<sup>6</sup>

"The most complete, authoritative and valuable presentation, a kind of Who's Who for the private schools, a judicial account of the subject without fear or prejudice";<sup>7</sup> "a reference book of unusual helpfulness to parents and educators alike, at times offering a frank statement of failings";<sup>8</sup> "its mission is to tell people who want to know just what good points each private school has, and help them select the institution which will exactly fit the case of their boys and girls."<sup>9</sup>

"This monumental volume"<sup>10</sup> "is a shipshape piece of work which must have presented great difficulties,"<sup>11</sup> "an ambitious undertaking of his, this fearless but careful description."<sup>12</sup> "The desirability of such a book is evident. Experience, often unfortunate, has made the want of it felt."<sup>13</sup> "Careful investigation has gone to the preparation."<sup>14</sup> "No school, however, has been allowed to dictate what the writer should think of it."<sup>15</sup> "Its descriptions of schools and camps are entirely free from bias and commercialism and are evidently the result of a great deal of careful work."<sup>16</sup> "The work will be more welcome to parents than to certain schools, but this makes the book all the more valuable to the public."<sup>17</sup>

"The value of such a book to parents is obvious."<sup>18</sup> "It is indispensable to parents,"<sup>19</sup> "giving carefully weighed and candid criticisms."<sup>20</sup> "One feels that the writer is fair in his judgments, and that he is quite able to tell a good school from a

It is one that all school men who are progressive and inclined toward the administrative end of school matters should possess."<sup>23</sup> "All the information is strictly accurate. . . . The book has the appearance of being authoritative."<sup>24</sup> "Provides good reading for the wide-awake and thoughtful. . . . The result is excellently worth while."<sup>25</sup>

But the subject is one which intimately concerns the colleges, to whom one must look for the ultimate critical appraisal of the task. "The book has been on my desk for several days where it has become a very convenient handbook of reference."<sup>26</sup> "We believe it a useful book,"<sup>27</sup> "a valuable volume for reference."<sup>28</sup> "It contains much valuable and interesting information."<sup>29</sup> "It is obvious that you have bestowed great care on the work."<sup>30</sup> "I recognize the service which such a book may give and the intention to be fair and just in the estimate of each school."<sup>31</sup> "I am impressed by the immense amount of material you have had to bring into order and arrangement, and also with the value of such a statement for those of us who want to look over the field as a whole."<sup>32</sup> "I was impressed with the discriminating character of your remarks."<sup>33</sup> "Your handbook is excellent and a distinct contribution to education in this country."<sup>34</sup>

"What you have attempted, however, is an immensely difficult task, and one which I fear can hardly avoid bringing you criticism from schools which are less prominently presented than they think they deserve."<sup>35</sup> "The crucial feat for you will always be the inclusion or exclusion of the name of the school. I think your first edition a praiseworthy one."<sup>36</sup> "I am sure that your work has been very well done."<sup>37</sup> "I am greatly pleased with the effort you are making to give publicity to the truth about the various secondary schools of the country and think you should be helped by those schools that have educational ideals."<sup>38</sup> "It requires much hard labor and much courage to bring out such a volume, and I believe you have rendered a great service to the cause of education. You have certainly endeavored to be candid and impartial, and have given a mass of information which all of us in the educational world can profit by."<sup>39</sup>

"It is the book, or rather one of the books of its kind, which we have all been wanting for years, and which you alone have had the courage to bring out. I like the comprehensiveness of the work; its arrangement; its excellent tables, directories, and indexes; its readability; and above all its real serviceableness to everyone who wants information about private schools. It ought to be in the hands of every parent who has a child to send to such schools."<sup>40</sup> "The book seems to have a merit and reliability peculiarly its own."<sup>41</sup> "It is a beautiful piece of work."<sup>42</sup> "A most valuable compilation"<sup>43</sup> "of handsome appearance."<sup>44</sup> "The introductory articles are very well written indeed."<sup>45</sup>

"You have rendered a great and good service to all friends of private schools. The work you have accomplished is stupendous."<sup>46</sup> "It is certainly useful to have information concerning the schools brought together."<sup>47</sup> "Such a book will be most useful to parents seeking accurate information regarding secondary schools."<sup>48</sup> "In every case it has seemed to me that you have given in a short description a very good idea of what the school is like. You have got out not only an interesting book but a book that ought to be of use to a great many people."<sup>49</sup>

It was a delicate task to characterize the schools truthfully and one may well wonder how the Head Masters have taken it. "I am thoroughly in sympathy with the idea of your"<sup>50</sup> "splendid book,"<sup>51</sup> "the editorial part seems well done."<sup>52</sup> "It is far better than your claims for it."<sup>53</sup> "I like your book very much indeed."<sup>54</sup> "I recognize a genuine public service in your effort."<sup>55</sup> "It's a good job, first attempt or not—it reads trustworthy,"<sup>56</sup> "interesting in its idea and should prove serviceable."<sup>57</sup>

"I have received the impression that you honestly desire to perform a public service, and to be just to the schools."<sup>58</sup> "You have accomplished a difficult task well,"<sup>59</sup> "a formidable task accomplished with remarkable success."<sup>60</sup> "You have succeeded in securing information not usually in the possession of men who pose as authorities on the schools."<sup>61</sup> "Accurate and serviceable information for those interested in facts concerning schools or those desiring to consider them for their sons or daughters."<sup>62</sup> "I feel that you have touched the distinctive features of the schools, as I know them."<sup>63</sup> "I see in your

EDITOR'S FOREWORD

This Handbook aims to be a guide book for parents and a compendium for educators. It has been undertaken with the parent especially in mind, but it is hoped that it may be of value to school and college authorities and all others interested in the subject. It is the first attempt at a critical and discriminating estimate of the private schools of the country, an endeavor to classify the schools on their merits.

That some such step is desirable, many educators have long urged. For some time there has been a demand among public-spirited school men calling for public inspection of private secondary schools. William Holmes Davis of the Danville School, who has taken a foremost part in this, maintains: "The private boarding school is doing an inter-state business. For this reason Federal inspection is desirable. There will be no necessity for compulsory inspection. No school can afford to fail cordially to invite inspection. To fail to do so would hopelessly handicap it in its effort to interest patrons. The penalty for the failure to measure up to reasonable standards, such as may be determined by the Federal Bureau of Education, will be the inability of the school to enroll students." The day of such public inspection is, however, still distant.

In the introductory chapters, it is believed, characteristic and important features of the private schools are brought out which have not been heretofore accentuated. The chapters on the History of the Private School, on the Girls' Schools, and on the Summer Camp, contain matter not known to have been brought together elsewhere, involving a considerable amount of research and, in the latter case, collection of material by correspondence from many scattered sources.

In the Comparative Tables, schools of each classification arranged in geographical groups are compared on the same basis and in the same space. Much of the statistical matter there brought out is believed to be of significance, tending to show the stability of a school's patronage and its success in preparing not only for college examinations but for college life.

These tables will gain greatly in significance in future editions. It is hoped that it may be possible to show the average salary paid to instructors in each school and the percentage of income expended by each school on advertising. In the boarding schools it would be most interesting to be able to compare the per diem per capita expenditure for such items as food, instruction, etc.

For whatever of value this book may contain in its critical review of schools the editor and publisher must ascribe credit wholly to those schools and educators who, with true public spirit, have volunteered their assistance.

HOW THIS BOOK WAS WRITTEN

The great need of an honest, well-proportioned account of the private schools of the country has been impressed upon the editor by contact with some hundreds of parents. Particularly during the past decade it has been his part to assist many fathers and mothers in solving the problem of just what should be done with their boy. The immediate problem facing most of these parents was how, without adequate means of guidance, to make choice of an appropriate school.

It seemed entirely possible to write a book without fear or favor which would give a general view of the private school situation, such as would be of assistance to parents interested in comparing the relative merits of schools. The determination was formed to attempt the task as soon as leisure from other duties permitted. The European War, in giving pause to the Travel School, has afforded the opportunity.

No one man could know personally and intimately the thousand or more schools critically presented in this book, to say nothing of the perhaps equal number that have been considered and omitted. It would naturally occur to one that the way to know a school is to visit it, and scores of cordial invitations have been received to "come and see us and remain long enough to get in full touch with our spirit and ideals." But to have visited some schools and not others would have been manifestly unfair. In declining, it has been explained that it was not so much the beauty of situation or excellence of material equipment, but rather the history, traditions, and tone of the school that seemed of vital import. This spirit and atmosphere, which is the creation of the school's personnel, would penetrate even to a distance.

While it would, perhaps, have been desirable for the editor to have seen each school in action, it was impracticable. Yet there have been compensations. No cordial and enthusiastic reception has prejudiced him, nor has he been influenced by memories of some delightful June day with happy, youthful figures filling an idyllic landscape. On the other hand, there has been freedom from unfavorable impressions which inaccessibility, difficult train connections, or the whimsicalities of the weather might have created. Just such trivialities do frequently warp human judgment.

How, then, has a discriminating knowledge of the schools been acquired? The editor does not care to emphasize the fact that twenty years of his life have been devoted to secondary education, or that during the last ten years he has lived intimately and traveled extensively with more than a hundred boys who themselves represented an aggregate residence of some hundreds of years in many of these preparatory schools.

The intent, from the first, has been to avoid incomplete and personal judgments, to present instead a composite view, the combined judgment of the many who have intimate and valid knowledge. Such a consensus of opinion based on established facts, interpreted by many educators, can be put forth with some confidence. And it must be added that any value attaching to estimates here made is due to those who have public-spiritedly volunteered information and assisted in shaping it. The names of those who have thus largely contributed would add lustre and give authority to these pages, but because of their connections and the freedom from reserve with which their opinions have in confidence been given, they must remain unannounced.

Evidence has been sought from all sources. The whole literature of secondary education, both in books and periodicals, has been carefully examined. In this connection the editor must express special indebtedness to Dr. Elmer E. Brown's "The Making of Our Middle Schools," and in lesser degree to Mr. Oscar Fay Adams's "Some Famous American Schools," and to Mr. Arthur Ruhl's significant article on "American Preparatory Schools," published some years ago in Scribner's Magazine.

More than two thousand private schools have been requested to submit printed literature and other information, and out of this a voluminous correspondence has developed. From these an attempt has been made to select the better schools.

What has been the basis of selection? What criteria have been applied? Merit, as determined by the opinion of the better-informed educators who have intimate knowledge of the schools in question, has been the only deciding factor. What is a private school? The arbitrary definition determined upon for this publication has been "a school not wholly or in part supported by public taxation."

A staff of men and women with broad educational experience has aided in the preparation of the book. Furthermore, each school has been discussed intimately with a group of half a dozen men, and the preliminary copy thus written was submitted to interested educators in various sections of the country for their comment and for suggestion of additional material. After the revision of this manuscript, with the incorporation of the most valuable contributions thus received, sections have been sent out to most of the leading schools throughout the country, with requests for criticism and opinion regarding the schools that they knew intimately. A liberal response has come from several hundred school men and women, school patrons, and officers of educational associations throughout the whole country, who have forwarded critical contributions.

On the basis of this valued testimony the manuscript has been repeatedly revised and again sent out to other educators for further deliberation and critical reading. Although the editor has not visited a single school in the preparation of this work, scores of head masters and head mistresses have been brought to the office of the editor, where, in confidence, they have unburdened themselves of their knowledge of schools and colleagues. From all these sources a store of information has come to hand much of which, however illuminating, could not be used.

Finally, before going to press each sketch has been submitted to the authorities of the school for their correction of error in statements of fact. However, no consideration has been given to the wishes of any school which has endeavored to dictate the matter to be used in such portions of the text as referred to their institutions. Thus, while courtesy and consideration for the feelings of every one concerned have ever been borne in mind, dictation, undue influence, or pressure no matter how great have not been permitted to change a statement or a phrase. In all cases there has been a willingness to give way to testimony and to weigh the evidence submitted, but it has been made clear that the final decision rested solely with the editor and that any submission to dictation from a school would destroy the value of the entire work.

It follows that an endeavor to carry into effect an unbiased, impartial purpose with regard to a thousand or more schools, each one of which may be said to possess a delicate set of nerves, has been exceedingly difficult. Many schools have shrunk from the implied publicity while some, it is true, have tended perhaps to the opposite extreme. While perhaps no school is entirely pleased with what has been written about it, most of the schools have been more than pleased with what has been written about other schools they know, and nothing has here been printed about any important schools that has not been critically read by at least a score of their competitors.

On the whole, however, through continuous correspondence and concentrated endeavor it has been possible to bring about the understanding necessary and the conviction has steadily grown that not only was such an attempt warranted but that it would eventually be widely appreciated.

This recognition of the problems confronting the publication of this Handbook has been sufficiently widespread to secure an earnest cooperation of the most valuable nature. The treatment of the schools does not deal with material equipment, courses offered, or the many details that can be readily found in the schools' announcements and catalogs. Here, it is rather the spirit, the traditions, the atmosphere of the school which are regarded as most significant. The truest measure of the school's value surely consists in its tone, its aim, and its achievements. By appraising its personnel, patronage, and alumni, there is more to be gained than from a mere recapitulation of courses, buildings, and playing fields.'

WHY IS THE PRIVATE SCHOOL

Education today in all civilized countries is largely a government function. With the almost unanimous support of statesmen and educators, it has become the most socialized and most fully institutionalized of all human activities. So far are we resigned to leave such matters in government hands that we have almost forgotten that education is primitively and primarily a function belonging to the family and home.

Yet government control of education is relatively modern, and even today in conservative England it has its opponents. As we have elsewhere more fully shown, up to the time of our Civil War practically all our schools beyond the elementary were organized and supported by private initiative. The elementary schools and Latin grammar schools of Colonial days, it is true, were from the earliest times supported by general taxation. But the modern high schools which, not without opposition at first, have multiplied so rapidly in the last half-century were the result of a demand first stimulated by the older private academies, whose success had demonstrated the desirability of higher education for the masses.

In every branch of education which now has public support, individuals have originally taken the initiative and private enterprise has first demonstrated the worth of each educational departure to the community. "The wholesome conservatism of government throws the burden of proving a thing good, upon individuals and societies." The early efforts toward the higher education of girls, the first kindergartens, the introduction of manual training were born of personal conviction, fostered by private associations, and only gradually won public recognition and support. The first art schools and museums, the first gymnasiums, the first technical schools were all the result of individual initiative and private cooperation.

So eager have the American people been for education, so open-minded has been the public to educational advance, that our public schools have long been efficient enough to satisfy the major needs of the public. The very excellence of our public schools has led us to expect from them the impossible. Our educational machinery has been overloaded with tasks it was inadequate to perform. Hence we have been hearing of "the breakdown of our educational system," and "the failure of education to educate." We are learning that the public school cannot remedy defects due to early home neglect and cannot perform functions for which it is unadapted.

There remains a lingering belief not wholly unwarranted that somehow the boy on the farm and the girl at the spinning-wheel of a few generations ago received training which made for character, not equalled by the efforts of our highly systematized public schools today. A few private schools are now attempting to reproduce to some extent the beneficial conditions of those sterner, sturdier days of the past. In other quarters a tendency has arisen to break away from the old formalism in school life which is seen reflected in the New School movement.

Yet educators have been asking themselves whether or not the private schools still have any reason for being. The reports of the national and state commissioners of education have given scant attention to the private schools. The pedagogical departments of the universities manifest a tendency to look down upon the private schools as mere money-making institutions of little vital importance in a great democracy.

There would be no private schools if the public schools were all that could be desired. But today we find the private schools more alive, with a more rapidly growing patronage than for decades past. The last issued report of the Bureau of Education gives the total of enrollment in private schools in the year 1913-14 as 154,157. It lists 2199 private secondary schools, of which 1489 were under denominational control, 846 Roman Catholic, 112 Baptist, 109 Episcopal, 76 Methodist, 63 Presbyterian, 56 Lutheran, with a score of other sects represented. This list was by no means complete, for the Catholic Educational Association lists 1276 Roman Catholic schools as engaged in secondary work. Of private schools for special work in music, art, business, kindergarten training, and the like, there are probably twice as many more. New schools are established and old ones become defunct each year, but the number is increasing. In five recent years the enrollment of the private schools of the country increased fifty-eight per cent while the public school enrollment in the same time increased but thirty-four.

It is not sufficient to ascribe this popularity to the increase of wealth and willingness of parents to meet the fees of the private schools. For the parents of these children the education provided by the Government was not acceptable. It is true that in a private school a pupil receives more individual attention, and that many of the private schools make this one of their chief claims for patronage, maintaining a ratio of as high as one teacher to ten pupils, and in special cases much higher. The public schools must from necessity employ a more democratic and machine-like form of instruction. For the special training that has been necessary to enter the older universities, the private school is still almost essential, so that we find recently at Princeton eighty per cent, at Yale seventy per cent, at Harvard fifty per cent of the students were prepared at private schools.

The private schools, generally speaking, attempt much more than the public schools are permitted to. The Government has assumed responsibility of providing free education of certain kinds, varying somewhat in different states and localities. Kindergartens are undertaken at public expense in one region, but not in another. University education is freely provided in the western states, but not in the East. Military, technical, commercial, open-air, domestic science, and physical culture schools have appeared always as private enterprises. Generally speaking, higher education in music, art, expression, physical training, and the household arts is still dependent largely on private institutions. The summer camp is an educational development still entirely in private hands which may yet be seen of such value as to warrant its more general application at public expense.

A very considerable proportion of the private schools are boarding schools which fill a need that, except in the case of delinquents, the public has never yet attempted to meet. Either the private boarding high school must be recognized as a public necessity or the public will have to provide a public boarding high school, for the public day school can never accomplish the best results with the student who lives in an antagonistic or un-cultured home. The best school cannot in the twelve hundred hours that make the school year neutralize the unfortunate influences the home may exert in the other seven eighths of the year's hours. Many children of the rich have owed their salvation to the boarding school of simple life and high ideals.

Today as in the past the private school is still serving as a national laboratory in which educational experiments in the greatest variety are being tried out and tested. The country day school and summer camp, perhaps the most notable recent developments in education, are still conducted as private enterprises, but the best and most practicable features of them will indubitably in time be adopted by the public school systems. In a lesser way, too, private school masters are developing new principles of school management in class sequence, in seating arrangement, and in the more material details of lighting, heating, and ventilation, which will be adopted by the public when their utility and efficiency have been more completely demonstrated.

The extent to which the private schools will continue to flourish and draw patronage will always depend upon the adequacy with which the state meets the demands of education, not only for the masses but for the individual, for, as Dr. Jordan cogently observes: "There is no virtue in an educational system unless the system meets the needs of the individual. A misfit education is no education at all."

Moreover the function of our educational institutions is not only to afford the best education for each individual but to open-mindedly search for and test out the best that is new. For we have yet almost everything to learn about education, which in the past both in subject and method has been too much a haphazard matter of tradition, almost of ritual.

But in some measure the private school will always continue to exist however efficient the public education, for, in addition to those who insist upon segregation upon the basis of class or religion, a more radical element, experimentally minded, will wish to see new schemes, new theories, new methods worked out which can only be attempted under private enterprise.

SELECTING THE SCHOOL

THE WHY OF THIS BOOK

Except for those who perforce gravitate to the nearest school, or for those whose social circle prescribes the school, the matter of selection is of great import. The education of each individual child presents a special problem which should be met by the parent only after a thorough consideration of the needs of the child and a weighing of the opportunities offered by the schools within his knowledge. Sometimes this choice is the result of intimate acquaintance, more often of hearsay or the advice of a friend. But the greater number arrive at a choice more or less haphazard, for there has been no authority to which the parent might turn for discriminating and critical information and unprejudiced advice.

The system of accrediting schools by universities and entrance examination boards is really of no assistance to one with no personal knowledge of schools, though many have been misled by it. At best such accrediting informs one only as to the school's success in meeting examination requirements. "That many have been misled by it is a certainty," writes a prominent head master. "The system is far better in theory than it is now in practice, and in its present stage of development is doing more harm than good."

The annual rating which the United States War Department bestows on some military schools is based solely on the efficiency of the military system of the school, and ignores all other more vital features. This, however, often with the connivance of the school, is not realized by parents and often leads to deception.

The private schools become known to parents and prospective pupils through various forms of publicity. The best is that which comes from grateful parents, and graduates who bring credit to the school. But it is usually necessary to supplement this. Alumni organizations and free scholarships are often used to bring the school to wider attention.

"Advertising as a Factor in Education" has been critically defined by President Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation in his Reports. He "includes in advertising, such publications as the annual catalog, statements of the equipment and facilities of the institution, and all other publications pertaining to its work and to the opportunities that it offers to students. Such statements appear partly in publications issued by the institution, partly in magazines and newspapers, and at times, in articles prepared under the authority of the institution and furnished to newspapers."

The average parent intent on finding a school is often bewildered and sometimes deceived by the claims put forth in print by the schools. "It is a matter of common report," writes William Holmes Davis, Head Master of the Danville School, "that some schools are kept alive by victimizing each year a new set of students who are drawn by unwarranted advertising."

At the critical season of choice, the popular magazines carry scores of pages of school advertisements. "The school advertising pages of our magazines," writes President Pritchett, "are constantly enveloped in an iridescent spray of such adjectives. Each institution has a location that is either magnificent, remarkable, excellent, or superb; its faculty is composed of experienced, cultured, superior, distinguished, leading, and inspiring teachers, who use 'the best methods' with 'a proved power to make scholars.' The advantages and opportunities of each institution are unusual, exceptional, rare, unsurpassed, matchless, and pre-eminent, providing 'education par excellence,'—'no other school in the country gives equal advantages.' They are all unsurpassed, unique, pre-eminent, and ideal."

The magazines maintain school departments which offer freely to aid parents in selecting just the right school from among their patrons. While a few of the magazines maintain an educational director who actually investigates schools and advises parents impartially, with most the 'School Bureau' is in the hands of an assistant advertising manager who is seldom sufficiently informed or wholly disinterested, even if the business policy of his magazine permitted.

In looking over a collection of school catalogs it is difficult to distinguish true merit. Perhaps more careful comparative study has been given the catalogs of the Private Schools in this office than in any other place. While many of the better schools with an assured patronage are extremely non-committal in their catalogs, others who find some difficulty in recruiting pupils, publish catalogs the cost of which in many cases represents an all too large proportion of the school income.

"The primary function of the catalog," writes President Pritchett, "is to inform the general public in those matters in which it desires information and above all to give to the prospective student fair and sufficient information from which to estimate the kind of opportunity that the college can offer him. . . . Every effort should be made to be clear, brief, and accurate, so that the inquirer may really gain from the printed statement some conception of the actual situation described. . . . The claims put forward should be sincere, honest, and modest." Many catalogs, notable examples of the printer's art, are given over to vague statements, so discreetly worded that it is frequently impossible to distinguish between the accomplished fact and the exaggerated claim. On the other hand, many school catalogs truthfully reflect something of the character of the school.

Private schools present themselves in the greatest variety, not only differing in type and function, but also as widely divergent in character as the personalities that direct them. They range from the rigidly exclusive to the broadly democratic; from the school that prepares for one college to the school that prepares for any college or for business life; from the vigilantly parental, minutely supervised institution, cloistered away from temptation on some remote hillside, to the collegiate type, with a minimum of rules and scarcely more surveillance than is given a freshman at a great university.

Again there are schools whose outlook is wholly toward the past and whose practices are entirely traditional. There are church schools where religion is wholly a matter of ritual and formalism which results in a revulsion of feeling on the part of those who are more than mere creatures of habit. There are denominational schools which make capital of their 'Christian Education,' yet furnish neither the necessary teachers nor equipment. There are schools that spend $3000 on a catalog, more on magazine advertising, and work their $600 teachers seven or eight recitations a day.

There are "Finishing Schools" so named, George Fitch tells us, "because of what they do to father." "They are," he adds, "conducted by eminent financiers. Their object is to get $800 a year and extras per head from their students. The finishing school can take a raw, timid girl with a fair-sized bundle of money and by judiciously separating the two can produce in time a beautiful young lady who can read French, play 'The Rosary,' talk about the drama, get in and out of a room like a princess and snub a poor relation so tactfully that the latter will thank her with tears in his eyes for the favor. It costs from $800 to $5000 a year to varnish a young lady in this style, and after she is properly finished it costs $5000 a year for upkeep and decorations until some brave young man comes around for her. The education part comes cheap in these schools, but the extras are better than they are in the contracting business."

Shall I send my boy or girl to a private school? The question permits of no general answer till made more specific. There are private schools that will achieve his salvation. There are schools where he may be ruined physically, morally, or intellectually, where he may be turned out a snob or a hypocrite. From the magazine advertisements and from their own catalogs it is not always easy to distinguish just which is which.

The private schools must be considered separately. We shall find that it is their very individualism which makes the private schools of interest to those parents who use proper discrimination in selecting a school for their children.

Some of these schools are pretentious, putting up a tremendous bluff in inflated faculty lists and elaborate courses on paper. Some of these schools are shams, the dominant note hypocrisy,—sometimes, a spurious sanctity. Some of them are purely commercial enterprises, their owners intent on money-making, ready to take anyone and squeeze out the last dollar. Some of them have been established by men and women who have failed in other lines and who plod through the weary years without life or interest in their work. Some of them, overshadowed by a great name and ideals to which those now in control are unable to live up, bear the stamp of insincerity. Some of them are for climbers and wish it understood that membership in the school implies social position. Some of them are for snobs and turn out a finished product.

But the great majority of these private schools are in the hands of sincere, hard-working men and women who have ideals, genuine love for youth and intense enthusiasm for their work. A parent will have done well who has placed a son or a daughter under the influence of a great teacher whose overflowing heart and intellect is a constant inspiration. For personality is the greatest thing in education, and in a private school especially personality is all-important,—not only the personality of those who direct, but the character of those who patronize the school.

No less an authority than Payot, in "The Education of the Will," says: "It is the contact with other students and the master which gives the greatest value to higher education. The master proves the possibility of work. He is the living, concrete, tangible, and respected example of what can be done by working. The master finds his own reward in arousing enthusiasm in his disciples, by the communication of an ardent love for the truth and of good methods of work. Influence only comes through the contact of man to man, and soul to soul. It was thus Socrates taught Plato."

The public schools supply an education in which organization, system, bricks and mortar play a large part and in which personality, individual interest, does not and cannot very largely enter. If the patrons of the private school have anything to expect beyond what the public school has to offer, it is first a richer and more inspiring influence of the strong and cultured personalities of the teachers directed toward the individual pupil; and second, the larger influence that the classmates and school associates exert upon the adolescent and developing personality. "You send your boy to the schoolmaster but 'tis the schoolboys who educate him," says Emerson.

In the choice of a private school, then, the parent, having selected a school whose curriculum will give the desired training, should look to these three points and be fully informed: first, about the spirit and traditions of the school; second, the personality of the teaching staff, whose ideals and attitudes toward life and ordinary everyday matters should be regarded of quite as much importance as their mastery of their subjects; and third, as to the class of patronage,—that is, the kind of families from which the pupils come and the consequent atmosphere that your children's associates will create.

This book, it is hoped, may be of value in aiding parents to distinguish between all these various classes of schools and to assist them to a more intelligent choice, so that their children may not have to put up with a misfit education and that they themselves may join with Marcus Aurelius in saying, "I thank the gods that I had abundance of good masters for my children."

AN EDUCATIONAL SERVICE BUREAU

Perhaps more information in regard to American Private Schools has been brought together in the office of this publication than in any other one place. Some appreciation of this is evident in the great number of inquiries that come from every source,—in person, by mail, by telephone and telegraph.

Teachers have been informed as to the nature of school positions they were considering. Firms have been advised as to the financial standing and credit of schools. Associations and individuals have been referred to available sites for summer camps, and introduced to the right man to run a camp for boys. Miscellaneous inquiries of every sort have been answered.

All such demands have been cordially and freely met. Only where special reports requiring investigation by our local correspondents were necessary has a nominal charge been made.

Parents have been intimately advised in regard to Schools or Summer Camps. Their requirements are frequently specific and exacting. A mother writes for an "excellent camp in which the clientele is drawn from families of Christian Scientists." A school master asks, "Can you thoroughly recommend any school for the treatment of a boy somewhat retarded in mental development?" In many cases a particular school has been strongly recommended, while sometimes a number of schools have been suggested for further investigation. Frequently the schools have been informed of such inquiries, that they might take such measures as seemed desirable.

Many schools have recognized in person and by letter the service this Handbook has rendered in apprising parents of what their school had to offer. A prominent head master writes, "I see already a great increase in my correspondence as a result, I think, of the very flattering notice in your book." A Massachusetts head master writes, "I have just had a call from — and she advised me that she has noticed this school listed in your handbook." Another writes, "Your book brought us a very desirable pupil this year."

The schools have gratefully acknowledged the assistance thus received and in some misguided cases offers of liberal commission have been extended. To prevent such misunderstanding, it is to be clearly understood that this office accepts no commissions and does not believe in the practice. The office, however, has means of putting schools of certain classes in touch with specific parents from whom they are likely to receive pupils. This involves a small expenditure. Particulars will be sent to any head master interested.

This office will continue to take pleasure in acting as a medium of exchange for educational information.

HISTORY OF THE PRIVATE SCHOOL

The Private School is a survival and a development. To understand it we must know something of its past, the causes that brought it into existence, the changes it has undergone and the personal and environmental factors that have modified it. In its phases, the Church School, the Academy, and the Country Day School, it exhibits in varying degrees the traditions of the past and the developments of the present. Not a type of school but has been brought forth either by a real need or by a great innovating mind. Yet under the administration of lesser personalities and succumbing to the spirit of conventionality, each in turn has become stereotyped, and its traditional methods and purposes have continued to prevail without further development until some inspired and radically minded innovator has again arisen, to prove progressive and potent enough to shatter them. Tradition still too largely determines both the substance and the purpose of current education.

The American Private School today is a distinctive expression of national character. Yet like other American institutions, political and religious, our schools, public and private, have evolved from European origins. Developing side by side in the same environment, often subject to the same extraneous influences, the schools have occupied a position intermediate between the church and the state and have been influenced by both. In earlier times ecclesiastical control prevailed, while today the influence is political. To understand the American Private School, we must therefore follow it through the changes of the past several centuries, brought about by life in the New World. In all the advances in education we shall find private initiative leading the way.

Education in Christian Europe was primarily ecclesiastical. In medieval times it was for the purposes of the church only that reading and writing were taught, and among civil authorities a distrust of education survived even in America. As late as 1671 we find Governor Berkeley of Virginia stalwartly declaring: "I thank God there are no free schools and printing, and I hope we shall not have these hundred years; for learning has brought disobedience, and heresy, and sects into this world, and printing has divulged them, and libels against the best government. God keep us from both!"

The early grammar schools of both England and America were distinctly religious in their purpose. One of the earliest and most representative of the English grammar schools was founded by John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's, London, in 1512. The purpose of the founder, in his own words, was to "increase knowledge and worshiping of God and the Lord Jesus Christ, and good Christian manners in children."

The oldest school foundations in England today are survivals of ecclesiastical and monastic establishments and all education long remained exclusively under episcopal control. In England even as late as 1603 we find in the ordinances of James I, "No man shall teach either in public schools, or private house, but such as shall be allowed by the Bishop of the Diocese." This episcopal diocesan control still continues in our episcopal schools, both Anglican and Methodist.

It was in the Protestant countries of northern Europe that a system of general elementary education first developed. The common schools of Germany and Scandinavia were the direct outcome of Luther's influence and especially the fruit of his two essays, "An den christlichen Adel deutscher Nation," etc., 1520, and "An die Ratsherren aller Städte," 1524.

Even before the Reformation, however, the scope of education had begun to broaden, though Luther and the Protestant movement gave impetus to it. The Zealand school law of 1583 insisted on education because "it is the foundation of the Commonwealth." So far had Gustavus Adolphus carried education in Sweden that by the year 1637 "not a single peasant child was unable to read and write." It is to this influence and especially to the example of Holland that America owes her attitude toward elementary education, while to England is due the inspiration for our earliest secondary schools.

In the Colonies private schools of one kind or another existed from the earliest time. The first dame schools were private, as were the schools kept by ministers to prepare boys for college. Many of these received aid from the towns, and some of them later became public schools.

Three successive types of secondary schools stand out in the history of American secondary education: the Latin Grammar School of Colonial times, the Academy of Revolutionary times, and the High School, both public and private, of the present day. Each type is characteristic of the spirit of its period.

The Latin grammar schools were essentially fitting-schools for the colleges. As their attendance was limited to those who were preparing for yet further study they were aristocratic and, furthermore, as the colleges were chiefly for the training of ministers, they were likewise ecclesiastic. Some of the old grammar schools founded in the Massachusetts Bay Colony still continue, transformed to meet modern needs, but rich in centuries of tradition, but for the most part they have become identified with the state systems of education.

The Boston Latin School, founded in 1635, is the oldest surviving educational institution in America. In its establishment the Reverend John Cotton, a graduate of Emmanuel, Cambridge, was the prime mover. Ezekiel Cheever, head master from 1670 until his death at ninety-four, was the first really eminent American school master. Like Cheever, the first masters of these schools had been educated in the Latin schools of England and transferred across the water the traditions and the customs of the older institutions. In Massachusetts by 1647 the law commanded that any town of one hundred families should maintain a grammar school, and inflicted a penalty for neglect to do so, and not until 1789 was this burden mitigated.

The first public school was established at Dorchester, Mass., in 1639, which was maintained in part by the town and in part by certain sums paid by the parents of each pupil attending. The first public school to be maintained by general taxation of which there is a record was established by vote in the Dedham (Mass.) Town Meeting, Jan. 1, 1644-45. In 1640 Rhode Island by a vote of the colony set apart one hundred acres "for a school for encouragement of the poorer sort, to train up their youth in learning." This school was located at Newport and was in all probability the first free school open to all in America, even in the whole Western world.

In New York some of the early elementary schools established under Dutch influence have survived and have gradually been transformed into secondary schools. The Collegiate School was thus established as early as 1638. Trinity School of New York, which was established in connection with Anglican religious propaganda as an elementary school, continues today as a college preparatory school.

The first private foundation for education in America was established in 1657 by the bequest of Edward Hopkins, an uncle of Elihu Yale, and one time Governor of Connecticut, who had amassed a fortune in the American and West Indian trade. Born in 1600 at Shrewsbury, England, he had attended the Royal Free Grammar School. He left his fortune in trust "to give some encouragement in their foreign plantations for the breeding up of hopeful youths in a way of learning, both at the grammar school and college, for the public service of the country in future times." Out of the Hopkins bequest grew three educational foundations,—the Hopkins Grammar School at New Haven, the Hopkins Academy at Hadley, and a fund granted to Harvard College from which the annual Deturs (prize books) are still presented.

William Penn exerted an early and potent influence on American schools. As early as 1684 at a meeting of the Provincial Council, Governor Penn presiding, it was resolved "that care be Taken about the Learning and Instruction of Youth, to wit: A School of Arts and Sciences." But this intention was not acted upon until 1689 when "a public Grammar School" was set up in Philadelphia. This was incorporated in 1698, and on the occasion of Penn's next visit to the colony in 1701 received a charter and a more liberal one in 1708, the latter of which stated that "the prosperity and welfare of any people depends in a great measure upon the good education of youth and their early instruction in the principles of true religion and virtue, and qualifying them to serve their country and themselves, by breeding them in reading, writing, and learning of languages, and useful arts and sciences, suitable to their age, sex, and degree."

By the middle of the eighteenth century the Moravians had established several schools in Pennsylvania for both boys and girls, which almost immediately became famous and attracted students from the other Colonies. A number of these schools are still continued.

The growth of the Colonies in wealth and economic importance brought with it the development of a middle class, among whom there grew up a demand for education beyond the elementary schools, but who were not attracted by the classical training of the grammar schools and colleges which continued under aristocratic and ecclesiastical patronage. A similar movement among the nonconformists of England during the seventeenth century had resulted in the establishment, by dissenting clergymen, of academies which offered a more varied and less classical course than the older schools of England. The fact that nonconformists were excluded from English Public Schools gave stimulus to the establishment of private academies in England.

These undoubtedly had an influence upon the founders of the earliest American academies. Among the graduates of these early English academies were the Wesleys, Isaac Watts, Daniel Defoe, and George Whitefield. The latter in his travels up and down this country roused an interest in these new schools. One of the most famous of these English academies was that of the Rev. Charles Morton at Newington Green, in which Daniel Defoe and Samuel Wesley were students. In 1865 this Mr. Morton came to Massachusetts where he became vice-president of Harvard University. Philip Doddridge, the hymn writer and a famous English academy master, had as a pupil Joseph Priestley, who later became the great physicist. Priestley spent some time in America and became a friend of Benjamin Franklin, whom he doubtless imbued with his academy ideas.

This term, academy, derived from the grove of Academus in which Plato taught, was perhaps first used in English by Milton in 1643, as a term for the ideal educational institution he planned, providing a more generous culture. Just a century later Benjamin Franklin also sketched a plan for such an academy in America.

To the influence of William Penn and the Moravians may be attributed William Tennent's Log College, established in 1726 at Neshaminy, Pa., which for twenty years was influential in turning out students who, like Rev. Samuel Blair, the founder of Fagg's Manor School, spread the cause of education. In this same region, at Hopewell, N.J., in 1756, was established the first Baptist school, the principal of which, Isaac Eaton, was a great teacher, among whose pupils was James Manning, afterward president of Brown University. Brown, in fact, may be considered a lineal descendant of Hopewell School.

Toward the close of the eighteenth century the prestige of the grammar schools was declining and they were less readily supported by voluntary taxation as enthusiasm for Latin, Greek, and ecclesiastical training diminished. Private initiative on the part of those who had acquired wealth began to take the place of public subscription in the founding of schools.

More than one hundred years after the Hopkins bequest, William Dummer, the Lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, in 1761 left an endowment for the establishment of a grammar school which the tendency of the times soon transformed into an academy, but the founding of the Phillips Academies during the period of the Revolution marks the real beginning of the academy movement. The Phillipses were doubtless influenced not only by the older English academies but also by the schools in Pennsylvania established by the Quakers in the seventeenth and by the Moravians in the eighteenth centuries. At any rate the New England academies were very different from their English prototypes overseas. These early academies were immediately successful and attracted students from a distance, who generally boarded in the houses of the townspeople.

The academies were private institutions, under the control of undenominational boards of trustees, and conducted with no idea of pecuniary profit. They were not a heritage, but the outcome of the best thinking of the time. Though they showed diverse influences they were distinctly American, and "as democratic as the most aggressively democratic spirit of their day could make them."

They were not bound up with the college system and were not primarily fitting schools. The constitutions of the Pennsylvania and Phillips Academies made no mention of preparation for college, and the curriculum was less classical and included science and moral philosophy,—subjects of study new to the schools. As time went on, relations with the colleges were established and the academies became in a measure preparatory for college, while the colleges recognized for admission new subjects of study which the academies had taken up.

As the result of the Revolution and the spread of democratic ideals, academies were organized everywhere. Among the more notable of these eighteenth century institutions which have survived are Leicester and Groton Academies in Massachusetts, Franklin Academy in Pennsylvania, and the Bingham School in North Carolina. By 1800 there were over one hundred academies in the country, but the high-water mark of the academy movement was reached in 1850, when the number was between six and seven thousand. Since 1875 there has been a decline and in 1910 only eighteen hundred remained.

The American academy was the characteristic educational institution developed by the American people in the half century following their independence, and during that time contributed largely to the making of American character. The academy age was the age of transition from the old aristocratic society of pre-Revolutionary days—the world of Washington and Hamilton—to the modern democracy of Jefferson and Jackson.

Toward the end of the eighteenth century, through the influence of Jefferson and other Americans who had studied in France, French educational ideals began to take root. Voltaire had described education as "a government undertaking." Turgot declared that "the study of the duty of citizenship ought to be the foundation of all other studies." These ideas resulted in the feeling that it was essentially a function of the democratic state to foster education, and were soon reflected in America in the various state systems inaugurated at the beginning of the nineteenth century. The first instance of state aid granted to academies was in 1798 when the Massachusetts legislature endowed with land grants seven academies, four of which were in Maine, then part of Massachusetts.

During the first half of the nineteenth century educational activity in the United States was almost wholly due to private initiative. While the academies were multiplying, many new educational influences were at work fostered by private individuals and societies.

German educational ideals were introduced in New England by George Bancroft, the historian, and Joseph G. Cogswell, both of whom had attended the University of Göttingen. Shortly after 1820 they established the Round Hill School at Northampton, Mass., in which they followed the best traditions of the German secondary schools. The school was continued for some years and its influence survived in other schools.

Joseph Lancaster, the originator with Dr. Andrew Bell in England of the monitorial system, emigrated to America in 1818 and traveled and lectured in the U.S. and Canada until his death in New York in 1838. In 1822, John E. Lovell organized at New Haven the Lancasterian School, which was conducted under the monitorial system, the older teaching the younger. For many years the school was held in the basement of the Methodist Church which stood on the Green, but in 1827 it was moved to a new building erected for the purpose which in turn was removed to make room for the Hillhouse High School. The monitor system thus introduced from England was the forerunner of the prefect system, first used in St. Mark's School, Southborough, in 1865, which has since spread to many boys' preparatory schools in New England.

Religious and sectarian organizations were responsible for many educational foundations during this period. The Roman Catholics as early as 1790 established their diocesan government in this country and immediately opened parochial schools. As their numbers increased rapidly by immigration from various countries, their teaching orders opened schools of higher education in all parts of the States. In the second quarter of the nineteenth century, convent schools for girls became widely popular, not only among Catholics, but in some Protestant circles as well. The establishment of Catholic schools received a new impetus from the Third Plenary Council held at Baltimore in 1884, when parish priests were charged with the establishment of parochial schools, and Catholic parents were directed to send their children to them.

Among the Protestant sects those under episcopal control, perhaps because of their superior organization, led the way in the establishment of denominational schools. Methodist academies date from the early decades of the century. After 1850 as the result of Dr. Muhlenberg's influence which was continued at St. James' and St. Paul's, many Episcopal church schools were established. Other denominations soon entered the educational field.

The Military Academy, too, is a development of the first half of the nineteenth century. West Point was founded in 1802 largely through the efforts of George Washington, who was perhaps influenced by Daniel Defoe's project of a century and a half before. Captain Partridge, after his resignation as Superintendent of West Point, established in 1819 a military academy at Norwich, Vt., now Norwich University. He was a devout advocate of the military type of education and influential in founding many military academies, most notable of which is the Virginia Military Institute, founded by him in 1835. Military academies multiplied in the South, and in the North after the Civil War many of the older academies adopted military features.

The modern high school as a public institution maintained by taxation of the whole community was made possible by the popular success of the academies. While Americans had earlier adopted the view that education was a function of the state, this acceptance was at first restricted to elementary education. Though the first public high schools originated in the East in the early decades of the century, their spread was opposed there as an unwarranted imposition on the tax payers.

Though the first English High School was opened in Boston in 1821, high schools were at first more popular in the newer western states where land grants aided their establishment. But it was not until after the close of the Civil War that the movement spread rapidly to every state. The high schools adopted the best features of the academies, and while they have shown great adaptability to varying needs, they have failed to meet all demands for secondary education, as is witnessed by the great number of private schools, of many sorts, which continue to flourish.

The period since the Civil War during which high schools have everywhere multiplied has also witnessed the establishment of an ever increasing number of schools for special and vocational education.

The earliest of these were probably the Normal Schools for the training of teachers. Closely related in a way are the Kindergarten Training Schools which followed the development of the kindergarten movement introduced about the middle of the century from Germany and so greatly fostered by Elizabeth Peabody. The training of kindergarten teachers still remains a matter almost wholly in private hands, though the community in many cases has come to support the kindergarten as a public institution.

The Conservatories of Music and Schools of Art have flourished throughout the country for decades, but the number is ever increasing, and, although some instruction in art and music has been undertaken at public expense, the higher education in these subjects and the training of teachers in them still remain largely under the direction of private associations and individuals.

Interest in Physical Education, too, has developed since the period of the Civil War, and today the more advanced of the public schools do not wholly neglect this side of education. But the great pioneer in this movement was Dr. Dudley A. Sargent, who has trained most of the physical directors of this country.

Another recent development is in reality a revival of Colonial days. The housewifery of the eighteenth century, now euphemistically elaborated as Domestic Science, Domestic Arts, or Household Management, is now considered a proper subject for education even in the public schools. Many of the private schools for girls, however, give greater emphasis to it, while many special schools have been established to cultivate this field alone and for the training of teachers in the Household Arts.

At the end of the nineteenth and the beginning of the twentieth century a revolt arose in a limited intellectual class against the formalism of traditional education. One of the most hopeful results is the New School movement which in England, under Cecil Reddie, has resulted in Abbotsholme, an interesting and also a successful school. A number of schools of this type established in Germany, Switzerland, and France during the past ten years have exerted a wide influence, and the movement has now spread to this country, manifesting itself in many places.

Its aim is for less formalism; for a more natural schooling; for a richer experience in school life; for more actual doing with less emphasis on book learning. In America the movement is well exemplified by Dr. Rumely in the Interlaken School, where the boys construct their own buildings, engage in farm work, in handicrafts, and other similar activities.

Contemporaneous with this was the 'back to the country' movement, which has resulted in a more wholesome existence and richer experience for thousands of families. The educational phase of the movement is represented by the Country Day School, which combines the best features of the boarding school without separating the boys or girls from home influence. The first successful example was established in Baltimore largely through the influence of Mrs. Francis K. Carey, who succeeded in imparting her enthusiasm for the plan to her husband and many leading citizens of Baltimore, including President Gilman of Johns Hopkins.

The school was organized in 1897 and has since been widely copied in most of the leading cities of the country. Mr. Frank S. Hackett of New York in his Riverdale School was one of the pioneers. The essential feature of the Country Day School is that it takes the boys and girls from city homes to a school in the adjacent countryside for the whole day. The afternoons are occupied with supervised play, athletics, manual training, and study periods. The Country Day School has led the way in showing that the pupil's whole day may be advantageously utilized in educational activities under proper supervision.

The modern private preparatory schools still lead the way in educational progress. In fact, they may be called laboratories of educational research, an experiment in which theories of education are developed and put into practice. It is to these schools that we must look for the enterprise and also the patience which will, first of all, analyze the virtues and the failings of modern education, and, secondly, will work out the successful solution of the problems thus discovered. This is only too clear when once we look into the matter, whether we view it historically and trace the growth of schools, as in the present article, or whether we compare public schools and private schools of the same type. The private school has blazed the way. Wider fields of education, new methods of pedagogy, new features of school life, have been introduced by the private schools into the systems of national education. The study of science, the utilization of athletics for mental and physical development, the country day movement, these are but three slight examples of the initiative and foresight of the private school's beneficent work.

DATE OF ESTABLISHMENT OF MILITARY SYSTEMS IN SCHOOLS AND ACADEMIES

- 1802 West Point Military Academy was founded largely through the efforts of George Washington.
 1819 Norwich Academy, Vt., was founded as the American Literary, Scientific and Military Academy by Captain Alden Partridge, a graduate and later a superintendent of West Point Military Academy.
 1839 Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., founded by Capt. Partridge.
 1842 The Citadel, Charleston, S.C., was created a military academy by act of the Legislature. It is now a college.
 1845 Kentucky Military Institute, Lyndon, Ky., was founded by a graduate of West Point and modeled after that institution.
 1858 Military instruction was introduced at Pennsylvania Military College, Chester, Pa., which was founded in 1821.
 1866 Military department was instituted in the University of Wisconsin, which was founded in 1848.
 1867 Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va.
 1868 St. John's Academy, Annapolis, founded in 1696, became military. It now does college work.
 1868 Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., military training from its beginning.
 1869 Military instruction was introduced in the University of California, founded in 1853.
 1869 St. John's Military Academy, Manlius, N.Y.
 1877 Military instruction was introduced in the University of Illinois, founded in 1867.
 1879 Georgia Military Academy, College Park, Ga.
 1881 Kemper Military Academy, Boonville, Mo., became military. It was founded in 1793.
 1881 Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, Mo., became military. It was founded in 1880.
 1882 The Bingham School, Asheville, N.C., became military. It was founded in 1793.
 1884 Military department of Michigan Agricultural College was organized. The college was founded in 1857.
 1888 Northwestern Military Academy, Lake Geneva, Wis.
 1889 Military department was established in the Oregon Agricultural College, which was founded in 1868.
 1892 Western Military Academy, Alton, Ill., was incorporated as a military academy. It was founded in 1879.

THE EARLY EDUCATION OF GIRLS

While the beginnings of "female education" in America go back to the earliest Colonial days, it was not until the close of the eighteenth century that there was any general provision made for the formal education of girls. Before that time the teaching of girls was a family, not a public matter. It was a common occurrence for a mother in teaching her own children to include others of the immediate neighborhood, and so grew up the "dame schools." These were often maintained under the sanction of the town and frequently received some slight assistance from the town treasury. In these schools there was some instruction in reading, spelling, sewing, and knitting.

A school of this type existed in New Haven as early as 1651, for the records tell us of a little girl brought into Court in that year for "prophane swearing." She was charged with using such expressions as "by my soul" and "as I am a Christian." At the trial her mother testified that she learned some of her ill-carriage at Goodwife Wickham's where she went to school. At first girls were barred from the town schools in New England, and it is doubtful when they began to be generally admitted. The earliest record in which girls are mentioned is in connection with the founding of the school in Dorchester in 1639. It was left "to the discretion of the elders and seven men whether maids shall be taught with the boys or not," and history shows adverse action on the part of the seven wise men. But in 1699 in Rehoboth, the selectmen engaged Mr. Robert Dickson "to do his utmost endeavor to teach both sexes of boys and girls to read English and write and cast accounts." Yet even in the early Colonial days there were girls who persuaded their fathers or brothers to teach them, and in such irregular ways attained knowledge beyond the rudiments.

The Moravians who established themselves in Pennsylvania about 1740 immediately opened schools for both boys and girls. The Moravian Seminary at Bethlehem, established in 1742 as a boarding school for girls, remains to this day the oldest girls' school in the country. The Penn Charter School in Philadelphia, perhaps influenced by the Moravian example, shortly after opened its doors to both sexes. In New England, where the English and ecclesiastical traditions of education prevailed, there was no separate school for girls until nearly forty years later, and it was not until 1829 that Abbot Academy, the first permanent school for girls alone, was established.

The Revolutionary days mark a time of awakening when a demand for education on the part of girls and young women resulted in more adequate provision for their instruction. About the year 1770, in and about Hartford, girls were taught in the public schools. They "had no separate classes though generally sitting in separate benches." At Portsmouth, too, we learn from the diary of David McClure that in 1773 he "opened the school consisting the first day of about thirty misses . . . from seven to twenty years of age. . . . I attended them in reading, writing, arithmetic, and geography, principally. This is, I believe, the only female school supported by the town in New England."

After the Revolution private schools for girls began to appear which offered a somewhat higher grade of instruction. The Rev. William Woodbridge, who graduated from Yale in 1780, during his senior year kept a young ladies' school at New Haven in which he taught grammar, geography, composition, and rhetoric. In the same year, too, Dr. Rush established an academy for girls at Philadelphia. Timothy Dwight, the first president of Yale of that name, was a distinguished pioneer in women's education. He maintained a Seminary at Greenfield Hill, Conn., until 1795 when he became President of Yale.

By the close of the eighteenth century, most New England towns had made some provision for female instruction. Usually they were attended to by the school masters during the noon hour. In at least one case the school master devoted his whole time to the "misses" from five to seven in the morning. The development of the academies was a great step in the higher education of women. Many of the earlier academies opened their doors on equal terms to both sexes. Leicester Academy founded in 1784, Westford in 1793, and Bradford in 1803, were coeducational from the start, and the latter shortly after became exclusively a girls' school.

In the female seminaries which grew up at this time no very high ideals of education prevailed,—the catechism, embroidery, "painting in oils and use of the globes" usually forming an inevitable element in the curriculum. But a stronger movement was at hand.

Sarah Pierce's famous Young Ladies' Seminary was established in 1792 at Litchfield, Conn. It was one of the pioneer institutions for the education of girls and during its forty years some fifteen hundred passed under her influence.

The Rev. Joseph Emerson's Seminary for Young Women at Byfield and Saugus, Mass., was attended in the six years of its existence by upwards of one thousand pupils. Many of them became school teachers, among them Mary Lyon, who with Emma Hart (afterward Mrs. John Willard) became the great apostles for the better education of girls. At Hartford, Catherine Beecher's Seminary (1822-32) together with her writings exercised a wide influence, contributing to the growing popularity of women's education.

The first endowed incorporate institution in New England expressly for the education of girls was the Adams Academy at Derry, N.H., 1823, where Mary Lyon and Zilpah Grant were co-laborers for four years until they removed to Ipswich, Mass., where the first incorporated girls' academy in Massachusetts came into existence in 1828, Abbot Academy at Andover being established the following year. With the second quarter of the nineteenth century, "female institutions" multiplied rapidly throughout the South and seminaries for women and coeducational schools through the North and West. Much of the instruction was doubtless what would now be called elementary, much of it would today be considered trivial,—undue attention was perhaps given to such accomplishments as the social standards of the times required for young ladies.

The ideals maintained by Mary Lyon, Emma Willard, and later by Sarah Porter at Farmington, all did much to raise the standard of solid learning for girls. Mrs. Willard taught successively at Westfield, Mass., Middlebury, Vt., and Waterford, N.Y., finally in 1821 on the invitation of citizens establishing a seminary at Troy, N.Y., which continues a prosperous institution to this day. Some two hundred schools for girls, one half of them in the southern states, were the direct result of inspiration received under her teaching. The labors of Mary Lyon culminated in an incorporation in 1836 of Mt. Holyoke Seminary. But all this was not without opposition and the question was gravely raised, "Who shall cook our food if the girls are to be taught philosophy?"

Since that day the steady growth of seminaries and academies and, more significant still, of colleges and universities solely for women has brought about a universal recognition of the rights and needs of women in educational matters. "Women's liberation from intellectual bondage," "the failure to utilize women's vast energies," "the romantic idea of treating women as a clinging vine," and other similar phrases have been relegated to the vocabulary of the past. The twentieth century regards the education of women as a common-sense, practical essential in the preparation of each generation for its work in the world.

More pertinent, perhaps, to our immediate subject is the fact that the number and popularity of women's colleges and other advanced institutions of learning has led to the creation of a new type of private school in which the preparation for entrance into college life is the most prominent aim.

The enterprise characteristic of educational movements of the present day is as evident in the education of girls as boys and it is the private schools that are still leading the way. For special training of all kinds, no high efficiency can yet be attained without resorting to private institutions.

Education for girls and womanhood has reached beyond mere academic grounding, and now aims to prepare not only for a position of equality, individuality, and freedom in knowledge with men, but for a high conception of her duties to the state and for her share in the world's work. It is the function of every private school for girls to play its part in developing a more efficient and a higher standard for women and, incidentally, for men.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE SUMMER CAMP

Each spring announcements of Summer Camps for both boys and girls become increasingly conspicuous in the magazines and newspapers. A decade ago it was still comparatively unusual for a boy to spend his summer at a boys' camp. Today, it is the customary thing, and as the days of the school year approach an end the question of "What camp?" arises in almost every family.

A list of these camps reads almost like a catalog of localities famous for their healthfulness or scenic beauty. They cluster thickly about the Maine lakes and the lakes of central New Hampshire. There is a sprinkling of salt-water camps along the Maine coast and in the Cape Cod region. The beauties of the upper Connecticut have attracted a considerable group, whence others straggle through the Green Mountains of Vermont to the shores of Lake Champlain and the Adirondacks. A thin line of them through the Berkshires continues interruptedly through the Pocono and the Blue Ridge Mountains. They are springing up rapidly along the shores of the Great Lakes and in the lake region of Wisconsin, while an ever increasing number is to be found scattered through the Rockies from Wyoming to Arizona, and in the Sierras.

Today there are more than three hundred of these summer camps, ninety per cent of which are in New England and seventy-five per cent in and about the foothills of the White Mountains in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

The camping instinct is primitive and there have always been times when boys camped with adults, but this summer camp movement is a wholly new departure. Its development has been coincident with the 'back to the country' movement out of which, too, has grown the Country Day School and the New School movement of England and the Continent, which is now becoming naturalized in America. The Boy Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls are an outgrowth of the same social conditions. The summer camp marks, too, a turning back toward the sturdier training of our forbears under more primitive conditions on the farm or the frontier.

But it is more than this,—more than a protest,—more than a reversion. It is a distinctive educational movement. As worked out by its best exponents the summer camp is one of the most notable achievements of America in educational progress. But not every summer camp, so called, is worthy of such commendation. Some are avowedly recreative, some are mere commercial enterprises, but many are actuated by the highest purpose.

The organized summer camp as we understand it today had its beginnings in the eighties, and its genesis as an institution must be ascribed to Ernest Balch. In a personal letter, he writes: "I first thought of the boys' camp as an institution in 1880. The miserable condition of boys belonging to well-to-do families in summer hotels, considered from the point of view of their right development, set me to looking for a substitute. That year and 1881 I had thought out the main lines of a boys' camp. That year, also, with two boys I made a short camping trip to Big Asquam. In 1881 I occupied and bought Chocorua Island." Camp Chocorua, thus started, was the first boys' summer camp and was continued by Mr. Balch until 1889. Through correspondence with Mr. Balch, the Rev. Mr. Nichols, inspired with this same idea, opened a camp for boys in 1882 at Stow, Mass., which he called Camp Harvard. This camp was later taken over by Dr. Winthrop T. Talbot, a son of Dr. J. T. Talbot, then dean of the Boston University Medical School, who, in 1884, moved the camp to Lake Asquam, where it was afterwards known as Camp Asquam.

Dr. Talbot's camp was eminently successful and was continued for many years until his failing health necessitated his abandonment of it. As a result of his work here and the methods he developed, some of the assistants trained by him early established camps which attained success and celebrity. Camp Pasquaney, one of the most successful camps today, was in 1895 established by Dr. Edward S. Wilson, who had received his inspiration and training in camp work under Dr. Talbot. Sherwood Forest Camp on Little Squam Lake was a rather disloyal offshoot of Dr. Talbot's camp. Established in 1903 by Dr. Shubmell it was popular for a considerable period, but has now passed.

The oldest organized camp existing today is Camp Dudley, which was established by the late Sumner F. Dudley in 1885 at Westport on Lake Champlain, where it has continued ever since under the management of the State Executive Committee of the New York Y. M. C. A. Mr. Dudley had perhaps heard of these earlier camps on Lake Asquam and even before 1885 had camped with boys on Lake Wawayonda, New Jersey. In 1886 Mr. Edwin DeMeritte, then connected with the Chauncy Hall School of Boston, opened his Camp Algonquin on Lake Asquam, which he still continues on the same site.

The summer camp idea at first met with slow response except from a few enthusiasts. It received, however, the hearty approval of General Armstrong and Mr. Frissell of the Hampton School, the former visiting Camp Chocorua and writing some accounts of it. He was the first who saw the greater possibilities of this summer camp idea. An article which appeared in St. Nicholas Magazine about 1887 did something to popularize the idea. McClure's Magazine in 1894 contained a fuller article on the summer camp, prepared by Ernest Balch with the assistance of his brother, and from that time on the summer camps multiplied rapidly.

Mr. John M. Dick, who for twenty-four years has maintained

Camp Idlewild on an island in Lake Winnepesaukee, became interested in camps in the early nineties, at first in connection with a Y. M. C. A. camp at Plympton, Mass. Mr. E. S. Gregg Clarke, who now conducts the Keewaydin Camps in Canada, was also early in the field, establishing Camp Kahkou on the Allagash in Maine as early as 1892. Dr. Roland J. Mulford, now head master of the Ridgefield School, in 1895 started Camp Choconut in the mountains of northern Pennsylvania, which has since been continuously successful. Dr. C. Hanford Henderson, now well known as an author and educator, established in 1898 Camp Marienfeld at Chesham, N.H., which still flourishes. Two years before he had a camp for boys in the upper valley of the Delaware. Dr. Henderson has been good enough to write extendedly of the camp situation as it then was for this book.

"At that time," he writes, "I did not know of any similar example elsewhere and fancied myself a veritable pioneer. One cannot speak positively, but in 1896 I think that at most there could not have been more than half a dozen of us, and I imagine that each man, like myself, fancied that he was breaking virgin ground. What was the motive for such a unique movement? I cannot speak for the others, but I suspect that their motives were equally as simple as my own. I was the young head master of a high school, and quite eaten up with pedagogical enthusiasm. I noticed that my boys came back to me in the autumn—the more well-to-do of them, at any rate—a little browner and somewhat more robust for the summer's outing, but in mentality and sometimes in morals not quite up to the achievements of June. In a word, they had slipped back. It seemed to me a boyish tragedy to be climbing the slow and arduous path of human attainment during perhaps nine months of the year, and then to slip back somewhat more rapidly during the remaining three months! So my own motive in starting a boys' camp was exceedingly simple,—it was to save the boys from slipping backward.

"This negative work of saving a boy's summer would be ample justification for all summer camps, but it falls far below the extraordinary possibilities of the situation. Every earnest adventure of the spirit brings one vastly more than one consciously starts out for, and it was so in this adventure of the summer camp. It speedily flashed upon us all that in the summer camp we had a novel and magnificent educational opportunity. Here were several dozen boys detached from the conventional atmosphere of city and suburban homes, and brought together in the simple bigness of the great open. Here was a group of young college men, clean, erect, unspoiled, bubbling over with ideals and enthusiasms, and for the moment free to be themselves. It was the material and setting for the creation of a New World!

"Quite unexpectedly we stood face to face with an immense opportunity,—the chance to weave the days into a larger pattern, and to draw the outline of a new and more self-reliant type of boy. As a result of this realization, the daily program transformed itself. The emphasis slipped away from the more formal studies of the curriculum over to the directed occupations,—to music, drawing, manual training, nature expeditions, gymnastics.

"It was not simply what a boy knew,—it was even more what he was and what he would do. And the moral test became equally practical and intimate,—was a boy a good comrade; did he do his share willingly and thoroughly; could he be depended upon, day by day, as well as in an emergency; was he a gracious and welcome member of the group? It is an illuminating experience to camp out with any one, just as it is to cross the ocean with him. Boys accustomed to having everything done for them are suddenly called upon to do things for themselves; accustomed to having pretty much their own way, they are suddenly balked by the somewhat imperative demands of the group. Life at a summer camp discovers the real stuff of which a boy is made; and often it reverses the judgment of the home. Boys accounted models at home,—models in the eyes of their mothers and maiden aunts, models perhaps because nothing is asked of them, often show themselves in the more exacting atmosphere of a summer camp to be essentially poor creatures,—selfish, petty, inconsiderate,—while original boys, troublesome in the atmosphere of a too narrow home, prove in a camp to be the fundamentally good boys, the genuine sort of fellows who can be depended upon. It is an education in social virtue to live in a summer camp, for the test is the world-test of a man's relation to his fellows."

But there are camps and camps and it would be far too much to claim that all are actuated by any such high ideals. Many of these camps have no more serious purpose than the making of summer wages for their proprietors. Others in their desire to be popular have degenerated into mere summer boarding-houses for boys. Some are avowedly recreation camps with no higher purpose than to give the boys 'a good time,' accepting the boy's own standard of what constitutes a good time. Some are known as athletic camps and make a specialty of competitive athletics, attracting boys by athletic 'stars' who are engaged for the staff.

Aside from the Y. M. C. A. camps practically all are the private property of their directors and reflect the individual character of the men who own and control them. What the master is, the camp is,—broad and inspiring, or narrow and petty and sordid. Between these two major types, the educational camp and the recreation camp, there is a varied array given over to special ends,—tutoring, civil engineering, physical culture, art, dramatics,—these are in effect summer schools conducted in the open. Then there are sectarian camps. Some of the best equipped and most efficiently organized are under Jewish management with Jewish clientele. There are excellent camps in which the clientele is drawn from Roman Catholic families or from Christian Science families.

Boys' camps had become generally popular long before any one was bold enough to suggest that what was good for boys might be equally good for their sisters. Dr. and Mrs. Luther H. Gulick as early as 1888 had a camp on the Thames river, Connecticut, for their own daughters, and as they grew up other girls were invited to join them on a paying basis. This Camp Gulick, with an interruption of only two years, was continued until in 1910 they established in Maine Camp Sebago-Wohelo.

It was in 1902 that Mr. C. E. Cobb, a Providence school teacher, started a small camp for girls on Highland Lake, Bridgton, Me. In spite of discouraging conditions, he and his good wife kept on and have now built up a group of highly successful camps for girls of all ages which are patronized by hundreds every summer and to which they, with a staff of assistants, devote their whole time. The example of Mr. and Mrs. Cobb was followed in succeeding years by others. In 1905 Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Gulick opened Camp Aloha on Lake Fairlee, Vt. Their success has been such that they now have three camps in that region. In the same year Mrs. Hassan established Pasquaney Nature Club for Girls on New-found Lake, and Eagle Point Camp was opened at Rumney, N.H. Since that time they have multiplied rapidly, until today they are almost as numerous as the camps for boys.

The girls' camps do not show as many distinct types as the camps for boys, and still the spirit of each camp is as diverse as the personalities that direct them. In general their purpose, perhaps, is not so serious. Recreation, good times, the making of the camp popular so as to insure continuous patronage is frequently the chief aim. Some of the camps, however, are actuated by higher ideals and loftier purposes. The life in the girls' camp differs only slightly from that of the camp for boys. They play baseball and have athletic meets, though they are not taken so intensely. Tennis and basket-ball are always popular and so of course are all sorts of water sports. Generally there is some real camping out, hikes of several days or more, during which they sleep in the open. The teaching of handicrafts and domestic arts has been introduced in most.

Perhaps the greatest single contribution that has been made to the methods of girls' camps was supplied by Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick when she originated the "Camp Fire Girls of America," at her Camp Sebago-Wohelo. Taking for its symbol the cheerful wood fire and teaching each girl to "seek beauty, give service, be trustworthy, pursue knowledge, hold on to health, glorify work, and be happy," it affords unlimited opportunity for joyous activity in earning the honors in camp-craft, healthcraft, homecraft, nature-lore, and patriotism which are required for advancement from one degree to the next. The movement has rapidly spread, and 'camp fires' have been organized all over the country. Last summer between seven and eight thousand girls camped out as Camp Fire Girls. A somewhat similar plan for girls under twelve years of age was originated by Mrs. Charles Lanier, and has been organized under the name of "The Blue Birds."

The educational possibilities of the summer camps for boys have continued to grow upon their directors and perhaps have not yet been exhausted. The summer camp, at its best as it is today, is the result of contributions from many men and divers sources. From the hunting camps of the past, woodcraft, campcraft, the woodsman's lore have been introduced and developed as a subject of real educational value to boys in their teens. All this has been organized in the Woodcraft Indians so as to appeal to the imagination of the growing boy, and many of the best summer camps have 'tribes' of Woodcraft Indians to which admission is eagerly sought by the boys but which requires proficiency in woodcraft.

The naturalist, the ornithologist, the botanist, have found in the summer camp an unequaled opportunity for interesting boys in every phase of nature study. Many camps have well-organized instruction in life-saving, in wireless telegraphy, in photography, and in shooting. The physical director has here an opportunity for training in all-round natural and normal activities,—swimming, diving, in horsemanship, and in divers activities which tend to self-reliance, poise, manliness.

There is little question that the summer camp is here as a permanent addition to our educational institutions. Already the camps have done more than save the boy's summer,—they have made him a hardier, more resourceful boy, the promise of a more self-reliant, better disciplined man.

The winter camp for boys is a recent conception of Mr. Ernest Balch. In the winter of 1915-16 he organized at the Cloyne School such a camp which proved popular and successful. Boys from twelve to sixteen slept in sleeping bags in tents within a stockade out of doors through the winter, even in the heaviest storms. As a result they were free from colds, less nervous, and in improved physical condition. The winter camp idea has been continued at Cloyne and is spreading.

"Perhaps the highest office of the summer camp," writes Dr. Henderson, "would be to make itself unnecessary, by importing into our whole scheme of education the saving idea that boys and girls ought to be brought up in the country and ought to live a simple, sturdy, open-air life twelve months out of the twelve. The camp idea is the direct progenitor of our so-called country day schools. Already there are indications that the summer camp, instead of supplementing education, may end by transforming it."

THE NEW SCHOOL MOVEMENT

The New School has become a 'movement' in England, where the traditional "Public-Schools-as-the-nurseries-of-empire" are so strongly entrenched in the tradition of the "Battle-of-Waterloo-won-on-the-playing-fields-of-Eton" that any innovation to survive must become a 'movement,' that is, must have a propaganda with driving power.

The whole purpose was to let a little light and fresh air into the musty traditions of school teaching. It grew out of the work of a group of enthusiasts in England among whom the poet, Edward Carpenter, was a leading spirit.

It was Dr. Cecil Reddie who started Abbotsholme in 1889, and his school has become the model and type of them all. Bedales was the first coeducational school on this plan. It was established near Petersfield, Hants, in 1893 by J. H. Badley.

Dr. Hermann Lietz, who had worked for a year at Abbotsholme and published a book on his experiences there, founded the first of his Landerziehungsheime in 1898. M. Edmond Demolins, the French writer and sociologist, transplanted the New School to French soil. His École des Roches was opened near Verneuil in 1899.

Dr. Lietz established and himself directs three separate schools. At Ilsenburg in the Harz is the preparatory school for boys from eight to twelve; at Haubinda in Thüringen, a school for those from twelve to sixteen; and at Bieberstein in Hesse-Nassau is one for the latest school years, sixteen to twenty.

The New Schools aim to give (1) Physical education through life in the country with pleasurable manual work in agriculture, carpentry, handicrafts; (2) Intellectual education—not mere memory work or book-learning, but reflection and reasoning based on observation, and training of the imagination; (3) Moral education—not mere bending to authority from without, but training in initiative, responsibility, and self-government.

The list of New Schools here appended may prove of interest though it was compiled before the outbreak of the war, which has doubtless resulted in the suspension of some. Those marked with an asterisk are coeducational. The abbreviation D. L. E. H. signifies Deutsches Landerziehungsheim; É. N., École Nouvelle.

THE YEAR'S ADVANCE IN EDUCATION

The past year has witnessed substantial advance along lines which have been the subject of agitation in previous years. Accomplishment has been such that the school man or woman who formerly complacently disregarded developments without serious loss of prestige cannot now afford to remain uninformed of the trend of thought of the leaders. The changes are of first importance to all teachers, and have come with a more searching inquiry into traditional practices long accepted. Progress has been made in all the public schools toward the reorganization of the twelve-year grammar and high school program on the basis of two equal periods of six years each.

The colleges are coming to a better understanding of what their standards should be. They have arrived at a somewhat broader and more intelligent view as to what constitutes preparation for college. They have made advances in adjusting themselves to those standards and in arriving at a more uniform statement of what they require of entrance candidates. The improvement of both public and private high schools and especially of the former has facilitated this readjustment. There is a more genuine desire on the part of the colleges to coordinate their requirements with the public high school course.

The junior high school and the junior college are terms that are coming more widely into use. They are phases of the readjustment of the former rigid grammar-school-high-school-college organization. The junior high school is a phase of the new 'six-and-six plan' permitting the introduction of differentiated elective and vocational courses in the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades. Johnny may now during his seventh and eighth years of schooling, instead of reviewing or torpidly progressing in the limited curriculum of the past, try his hand at various pre-vocational subjects which will enable him to make a more intelligent selection of his life work. Susie gets a chance at household arts and learns how to help mother, instead of interminably bounding the states, or naming the capitals, or calculating partial payments on notes she will never give or hold. The plan has been worked out successfully in Buffalo and Rochester.

There is a place for the junior college clearly defined by the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States. The essentials are that it shall do college work but shall not confer a degree. At present many institutions equipped to offer little above high school grade masquerade under the name of junior colleges and grant degrees. These institutions of course are not supported by public taxation and have to work their constituents for a living. Many institutions in the South announce themselves as junior colleges, but Miss Elizabeth Colton recently in her presidential address before the Southern Association of College Women in 1915 announced that excepting in Missouri there were none in the South deserving that designation. The situation has since improved, though complicated.

In South Carolina it has recently been shown that the regular academic college enrollment is forty per cent more than the total secondary school enrollment, public and private. This means that the colleges admit without secondary training; that they are in the high school business and consequently "retarding the growth of their own feeders."

Vocational training continues to make good. Recent effort has been to fit vocational education to real community needs, to humanize the program, to train for jobs that exist. The Richmond and New York surveys take cognizance of the fact that vocational training to be of service must be for trades where there is need of skilled workmen, and the Philadelphia Conference also emphasized the equal importance of trade opportunities with broad education. That our vocational training has not been in adjustment with conditions is made evident by the rapid development and present enormous significance of Corporation Schools.

The National Association of Corporation Schools comprises ninety-three corporations, capitalized at $3,000,000,000 and employing 1,000,000 people. These corporations want more education for some or all of their employees and are willing to pay for it. They are endeavoring to supply the deficiency of the public school system by training youths for jobs that are ready and waiting. The New York Edison Company gives fifteen courses, including as well as traditional school subjects, electricity, hygiene, office practice, advertising, and salesmanship. Many great corporations, finding the product of the schools incomplete for their purposes, have established schools in which salesmanship is an important subject of training. The United Cigar Stores Company graduates every future salesman from its school to a practice store. The National Cloak and Suit Company employs ten teachers, all normal school or college graduates. Salesmanship is coming to be recognized in the schools as a field of vocational training which leads to a job.

Agriculture as a school study is on the increase, if one may judge from the great number of excellent text-books of all grades and all on phases of the subject which have appeared. In twenty-one states legislation now requires it as a subject of instruction in all public elementary schools. Even some of the private schools make agricultural training a feature, notably the recently opened Loomis Institute. But the most efficient educational work in agriculture is being done by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, some of the State Agricultural Colleges, and the Russell Sage Foundation. Thousands of boys and girls have been organized into agricultural clubs, corn clubs, cotton clubs, pig clubs, etc. In 1915, 7,709 clubs in the northern and western states enrolled 151,195 boys. This is education by doing,—by doing even better than their elders. Twenty members of the corn clubs produced an excess of 120 bushels to the acre. There is nothing traditional, theoretical, 'hifalutin' about this kind of education. It has yielded results, physical, moral, and economic, from the start. Can as much be said for some of our time-honored traditional school subjects and methods?

One of the results of scientific educational research has been the application of measurement to educational processes. This has made possible the establishing of standards of achievement. Standards have been set not only for the individual but for the class or the school, thus inspiring both teachers and pupils by putting them in competition with others. One of the most important functions of school superintendents and principals has become the measuring of the class or school by standard scales, tests, or scores. This not merely for information as to progress, but to give inspiration and motive to the work of both teachers and pupils by definitely measuring and announcing accomplishment. S. A. Courtis in Detroit has inaugurated a system of measuring and following up the achievement of pupils. The inadequacy of the present standards of measurement are recognized, but are rapidly being improved.

Indirectly these beginnings toward the measuring and standardizing of educational processes and results have been greatly influenced by the work of Frederick W. Taylor and his disciples in the industrial field. But schoolroom practice has great advance yet to make before it arrives at any such efficiency as has been reached in machine shop practice. Better brains and more time and money have gone into improving the methods by which machinists turn out steel than those by which teachers turn out citizens. Advance in school room practice must continue to be slow, for the incentives that exist in the industrial field are lacking in the schools. The industrial manager is anxious to improve processes to decrease manufacturing costs and make more money. The machinist is willing to speed up to increase his earnings and shorten his hours. Similar incentives must be introduced into school work if we are to have similar advance. Such incentives can be supplied when there is sufficient intelligent direction and public opinion to support it. Pupils may be offered shorter hours and more play—teachers shorter hours and more pay—for greater accomplishment in less time. But incentive is not enough; they must know how.

Such standards as have already been established are almost wholly the standards of class or mass achievement. Time studies for individual processes which have been the basis of all improvement in machine shop management have hardly as yet been undertaken in the school room. And yet it is a simple thing for each pupil to determine under direction the average time it takes to acquire a pass mark knowledge of an average page of Cicero, or Roman History, or a Geometry proposition. The pupil, having determined his average time, can be led to reduce it. He can be put in competition with himself as well as with other members of the class. This can be given all the zest of a game,—the pupil with the teacher's aid observing, watching closely his concentration, and learning to take 'time out' as in football, when he finds he is not playing the game. No looking at a book with intent or pretence of study should be permitted without time records. When a class sits with books before them it is a simple matter to jot down in the margin the time at which study is supposed to begin, as 11.33. The time spent in study is not the time from the beginning of the study period to the end. With the average pupil it will seldom be sixty per cent. The teacher supervising the study period should be on the lookout to see that the pupil as soon as his attention falters or is disturbed jots down in the book opposite the point where he is, the time, as 11.41. Then when his attention is once more centered on the subject the time is again noted, as 11.46,—five minutes out.

No one can realize how little of a study hour is spent in study until such records have been kept for a considerable period. From records of twenty pages of history resulting in a pass mark the average time for the pupil can be computed. Then every incentive should be offered to reduce this time. But as long as school hours are fixed, as long as there is no reward for concentration and efficiency, there can be little hope of this.

This is a period of educational surveys. The survey is a taking account of stock, an examination into results, a questioning of values. Several important surveys have been completed within the year and more are under way. These have been carried out through varied agencies. "A Survey of School Surveys," issued by Dr. Leonard P. Ayres, of the Russell Sage Foundation, in summing up the results of thirty school surveys shows that seven have been undertaken by individuals, six by universities, five by bureaus of municipal research, three by state departments of education, three by educational foundations, two each by the United States Bureau of Education, municipal departments, national societies. Thirteen of these have been directed by professors of education. Nine surveys were conducted by one individual, eight by two individuals. The reports of these surveys, ranging individually from six to 2600 pages, yield a rich harvest of material. Some of them have stirred up no little contention. The survey of Wisconsin University almost split the state as well as the university. But out of such studies may eventually come a science of school and college administration.

The trend is toward the complete socialization of all educational functions. As the general public becomes aware of the value of educational innovations instituted by private initiative a demand grows up for the state to take them over. An interesting development of this is the State Teachers' Agency. The Teachers' Agency, after more than half a century of private initiative, has demonstrated its value. Massachusetts, after a decade of agitation, finally established a State Teachers' Agency in 1911. The vested interests of some of the commercial agencies bitterly opposed the recent attempt to increase the appropriation. This led to widespread discussion and the rallying of partisans to its support. Massachusetts has led, too, in the socialization of another educational function. A Bureau of Educational Investigation and Research has been established under the direction of Frank W. Ballou, and there is now considerable demand for such a national bureau.

In the progress of educational reforms must be mentioned the marked increase in the number of adherents to simplified spelling. Though some of us abhor it, most of us refrain from adopting it through lack of courage. It will hearten those to know that Prof. C. H. Grandgent of Harvard, President of the Board for Simplified Spelling, reports that the number of universities, colleges, and normal schools which have adopted simplified spelling is now 144, a gain of fifty-seven in the past year. In these institutions are enrolled 130,000 students. The number of newspapers and periodicals using the twelve simpler spellings adopted by the National Education Association has increased in 1915 from seventy to 250.

The education our schools offer is almost wholly aimed at the intellect. Moral and spiritual education are subjects of addresses and occasional articles. Little enough is attempted,—much less accomplished. There are no clear conceptions as to what should be attempted and any results attained are largely fortuitous. Religious education as it is understood is quite another matter. Formalized in the church schools it achieves results of a kind, probably bringing comfort to some but certainly revulsion to others. A recent meeting of the Twentieth Century Club in Boston was given over to a discussion of the "Attitude of the Harvard Student Toward Organized Religion." The undergraduates who spoke had had years of "religious training" in church schools. As reported in the Boston Herald:

C. A. Coolidge, '17, spoke with feeling of his experiences in one of the church schools: "We had religion crammed down our throats twice every day and twice on Sunday. . . . The attitude of a boy coming from such a school is, 'I have had enough religion to last me for the rest of my life.'

W. H. Trumbull, Jr., '15, was of the opinion that religion played a very small part in college. "That," he said, "is because a great many come who have had religion stuffed down their throats. . . . Some who come to college from non-church schools get religion through some crisis in their lives."

Arthur Beane, graduate secretary of the Phillips Brooks House, said, "What the undergraduates are more concerned about than the institutional church is their own religious life."

Our physical education is largely a matter of gymnasium classes and competitive athletics. In many schools the physical education of the gymnasium is as formalized as the religious education of the chapel. Athletic sports, as Dr. Eliot has repeatedly pointed out, more recently in connection with sense-training, leads to a high degree of skill in relatively few, and that skill is "of a coarser kind than the skill required by the artist and skilled workman." Dancing, as it has been developed in the best schools of physical education, is a marvelous means of attaining grace and body poise, but with most of us it is still too largely regarded as a social requirement and left to the initiative of parents.

Ernest Balch, he who thirty years ago initiated the summer camp and lately started the winter camp at the Cloyne School, has recently not only challenged the value of our physical education, but has devised and tested a system for "developing athletic efficiency and building a better type of boy." This was set forth in an address before the Conference of Church Schools in 1915 and more popularly in a recent article in St. Nicholas. "Teachers of scholarship or religion," he says, "generally speak of the boy as of a being detached from his body. The boy lives always with his body, hampered, swayed, and at times governed by it." He aims to find a system of physical training superior to those followed in the "development of muscle, nerve control, circulation, and digestion, meanwhile fascinating for the boy." Such a system he has developed and successfully tried out in a preliminary way with four classes of boys at the Cloyne School and in a New York gym. After pointing out the deficiencies in our present systems he attracts attention to the fact that physical training should not only result in complete command of the body at all times, but should tend to render it immune to incapacities resulting from colds and sickness.

Now he finds that there is a class who as the result of their special training, which has been followed the world over for centuries, have superior physique, nerve control, and immunity from illnesses. He has studied the children of the professional tumblers and acrobats. He tells us they disregard pretty much all the ideas of physical training that are generally accepted. They live in the roughest way, on poor food, exposed to disease, and under the most unhygienic conditions. Yet the system of training they by necessity follow enables them always at the appointed time to go through their acts, which require not merely strength, but perfect nerve control, patience, and valor.

Acting on these ancient and well-tested principles heretofore unrecognized by educators, Mr. Balch has worked out, with boys from twelve to sixteen, a system of physical training which boys enjoy, free from danger of strain. His work and his articles are stimulating and should lead to his system being further tried out on a larger scale.

The Boy Scout movement has proved itself of broadest educational value and deservedly continues to prosper. It has been enthusiastically characterized as the "greatest developing and utilizing institution started since the principles of government laid down by man." Dean Russell of Columbia speaks of it as "one of the most valuable educational agencies of this generation."

Begun in England about eight years ago by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, it was largely based on ideas and methods of American workers,—Ernest Thompson Seton and Dan Beard. It has spread all over the world to twenty-seven different countries, not including colonial possessions, and the total number of boys that have been reached is estimated at over a million. The King of Siam is most enthusiastic about it and gives much of his time to the training of the scouts. In the United States 300,000 boys have been enrolled. In 1915 there were 143,084 scouts in good standing, an increase of 49,106 over the previous year. There were 6,683 scout masters, 6,647 assistant scout masters, and 310 local councils. 11,976 badges of honor were issued, each representing on the part of so many boyish souls actual accomplishment toward some worthy ideal.

The ideals to be pursued advocated by Mr. West and Mr. Seton have for some time been in conflict. Mr. Seton resented the accenting of 'patriotism' that under Mr. West's leadership tended to a sort of junior militia, marching by fours and wig-wagging, instead of nature work. The movement as conceived by Mr. Seton is essentially non-militaristic. As a result he has organized a separate movement, the Woodcraft League, an association of the Woodcraft Boys, Woodcraft Girls, and Woodcraft Club, whose purpose is to develop a higher patriotism, to encourage life in the open and the study of nature. Still another organization, the United States Boy Scouts, follows distinctively military methods.

Many of the private schools, especially those for younger boys, have established Councils of Scouts or made use of scouting methods in their organized school work. The Stone School at Cornwall-on-Hudson was early to recognize the educational value of this. Mr. Frank S. Hackett at Camp Riverdale was one of the first in adopting this as an educational feature of the Summer Camp, and something of the scout methods has since been widely introduced.

The value of the Scout movement as an educational asset has been recognized by many of our larger universities. Courses in scoutcraft are announced for the summer schools of Columbia, Wisconsin, California, Virginia, Texas, and other universities.

The General Education Board is broadening its functions. It announces an exhaustive critical study to be undertaken of the Gary system, which will be of general interest and of immediate practical value, as so many cities are now experimenting with the Gary plan. The Board announces, also, a survey to be made of Hampton Institute which also is to result in making better known the system of education that has been developed there and at Tuskegee, of learning by seeing and doing instead of by reading and committing to memory. These institutions, as Dr. Eliot has said, "have proved that the mental powers, as well as the bodily powers, are strongly developed by the kind of instruction they give; so that nobody need apprehend that reduced attention to memory subjects, with increased attention to the training of the senses, the muscles, and the nerves, will result in a smaller capacity for sound thinking and for the exercise of an animating good-will."

Especially stimulating to general educational thought have been the three "Occasional Papers" recently published by the Board. In "The Country School of Tomorrow" Frederick T. Gates, chairman of the Board, pictures a country school "in which young and old will be taught in practicable ways how to make rural life beautiful, intelligent, fruitful, recreative, healthful, and joyous."

Ex-president Eliot's "Changes needed in American Secondary Schools" is a strong plea for a more complete training of the senses. He points out that tradition still too largely determines both the subject and the purpose of current education. If all human knowledge is derived through the senses, that their training should be a prime object seems almost axiomatic. Yet it has not been and is not today. Literature is the basis of education we have inherited, together with a Puritan and Quaker disdain for the fine arts. "The young men admitted to American colleges," says Ex-president Eliot, "can neither draw nor sing; and they possess no other skill of eye, ear, or hand." He advocates the introduction in the Secondary Schools of more observational science, handwork, ear and eye work such as drawing, carpentry, music. "In secondary schools situated in the country the elements of agriculture should have an important place in the program." To make room in the curriculum, Dr. Eliot proposes that the memory subjects and mathematics shall be reduced and that afternoon hours shall be utilized and the long summer vacations shortened.

Dr. Abraham Flexner in the third of these occasional papers, "A Modern School," at one blow cuts out all the tangled controversies of school men and comes straight to the root of the whole matter. He maintains that no subject should be taught and no method followed unless its actual value to the individual can be clearly demonstrated. How complete is the failure of the formal training afforded by the schools and how futile the pursuit of current school subjects for 'mental discipline' is made apparent by the many undisciplined minds which have been subjected to it. Whether or not a knowledge of Latin and Mathematics is valuable is wholly aside from the question, for the pupils do not get that knowledge. After years of 'mental discipline' in these subjects with additional coaching and tutoring, more than three fourths of all the candidates who took the examinations of the College Entrance Board in 1915 in Cicero and Vergil failed to make a pass mark of sixty per cent. More than two thirds failed in advanced algebra. "What would have been the record," he asks, "if all who studied these subjects were thus examined by an impartial outside body?"

The Modern School as conceived by Dr. Flexner will admit no subject that does not serve a purpose. Each item of the traditional curriculum will be scrutinized for its actual worth and nothing included for which an affirmative case cannot now be made out. The modern school will deal with the world about, but will not be utilitarian or materialistic. "The man educated in the modern sense will be trained to know and care about and to understand the world he lives in, both the physical world and the social world."

The Pittsburgh ideal of the perfect school as set forth by the Pennsylvania State Educational Association is worthy of cognizance and emulation by even the best of our private schools.

"The Schools of the people should give to the children:

Ample provision for exercise and joyous play.

Buildings simple, but stately; thoughtfully planned, skillfully built, generously equipped.

A course of study offering training for service and appreciation; presenting in the order of their importance those things which contribute to a strong, healthy body, an alert, sure mind, a fine, steadfast spirit.

Those things in art or craft which develop to the full the latent ability of each one to serve his fellows with dexterous hand, a lofty mind, and a glad heart, rich in response to the beautiful and noble in life.

Teachers who love children with a parent's love and books with a scholar's fondness; who find beauty and joy in service; are large of vision, learners always.

A training which leads from learning and doing on to wisdom, to high ideals, to service as a sacred trust, to worthy citizenship, to character."

COLLEGE ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

A brief statement of the present requirements for college entrance may be of service to parents and students in estimating the value of work already done or the approximate time and work still needed to meet college entrance requirements.

The following evaluation of the various subjects is accepted by colleges generally throughout the country:

		UNITS
ENGLISH	Classics A and B with Grammar. . . .	3
GERMAN	Elementary, two years . . . . .	2
	Intermediate, third year . . . . .	1
FRENCH	Elementary, two years . . . . .	2

A more detailed statement of the above work and its evaluation may be found in the publications of the College Entrance Examination Board or in most college catalogs.

Secondary school work and college entrance requirements are now quite generally measured in terms of a Standard Unit which is defined by the National Conference Committee on Standards of Colleges and Secondary Schools as follows:

"A unit represents a year's study in any subject in a secondary school, constituting approximately a quarter of a full year's work. . . . A four-year secondary school curriculum should be regarded as representing not more than sixteen units of work."

This statement takes the four-year high school course as a basis and assumes that the length of the school year is from thirty-six to forty weeks, that a period is from forty to sixty minutes in length, and that a subject is pursued for four or five periods a week.

The standard colleges require sixteen units for admission. Many of the smaller colleges have recently raised their requirements to fourteen units, which is rapidly coming to be the national recognized minimum standard for college entrance.

The unit system puts all knowledge, at least that recognized as of value for college entrance, in water-tight compartments and measures it exactly. "So much shalt thou know and no more will avail you," we say to the student. The exponents of the system say that the advantages lie in its inflexibility, in the ease with which students transferring from one college to another can be accurately tagged as having absorbed an exact amount of education.

Considerable criticism has been made as to the inequality of the work required to satisfy some of these units. The general testimony of school men has been that Mathematics A, if properly covered, has demanded eight units of time. The National Conference of Standards of Colleges and Secondary Schools therefore voted at its meeting in 1915: "That the valuation of the College Entrance Examination Board requirement in elementary algebra be increased to two units—mathematics A1 and mathematics A2—each to be counted as one unit; that colleges admitting on certificate, however, give credit for one and a half or two units for mathematics A, according to the time actually devoted to the subject, no more than two units credit to be given in any case."

On the other hand the objection has been made that the present unit values of history subjects were too liberal. The committee above mentioned therefore recommended: "That courses in history of less than four or five periods per week be not given in the first or second year of the secondary school course; that the minimum admission credit in history be one unit, and that credit be not given for more than one unit in one historical field.

"That the College Entrance Examination Board establish two examinations in each of the historical fields, to be known as elementary and advanced, or by some other distinguishing terms, and that elementary history be given a credit of one half unit, and advanced history of one unit. That colleges admitting on certificate grant credit for work in history of one half unit or one unit, according to the time employed."

It was further "Resolved: That, with a view to securing more uniformity in the standards of certification, it is recommended that the associations and commissions which draw up lists of approved schools for the use of colleges hold a conference in the near future, to which shall be invited also representatives of colleges in other parts of the country."

The College Entrance Examination Board at its April Meeting, 1915, adopted the recommendations of the National Conference Committee in regard to the unit of Mathematics A, but took no action on the requirements in history as a committee had recently been appointed to define these more fully.

In 1915 Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, who had hitherto offered their own private entrance examinations, finally discontinued them and adopted the College Board examinations.

The original purpose for which the board was founded, to substitute for "the separate entrance examinations held every June by individual universities, colleges, and scientific schools" uniform examinations of the board, has now been accomplished.

After some years of tentative measures, during which some of the colleges admitted by the "old plan," "new plan," and the "new old plan," the "comprehensive examination" is now in a fair way to be generally adopted. The term is relatively new, dating from the consideration of the plan in 1912 by the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland. President Lowell of Harvard University originated the plan in 1910. It has stimulated recruiting from the Middle Western high schools.

The "comprehensive examination" plan combines features of both the old examination and the certificate method of admission. Under the "comprehensive examination" plan a candidate presents a certificate from his secondary school as to the quantity of work he has covered. The college then examines him in four subjects 'taking a sample' as it were to determine the quality of his preparatory training.

The lead of Harvard has been recently followed by Princeton and Yale. In view of such evidence of the success of this plan it was resolved at its March Meeting, 1915, "That the National Conference Committee on Standards of Colleges and Secondary Schools recommends that consideration be given by colleges to the method of admission by means of a certified school record and comprehensive examinations in a limited number of subjects."

The women's colleges have joined the procession. Mt. Holyoke, Smith, Vassar, Wellesley by joint action have adopted a new plan of admission to become operative in September, 1919. Like the Harvard plan, it is an alternative and proposes to test the quality of the student's intellectual power by four comprehensive examinations in chosen subjects. In time this will probably do away with the system of certificates from approved schools.

The College Entrance Examination Board in April, 1915, resolved that there be offered such comprehensive examinations from June, 1916. With these changes has come a conscious effort to frame examinations which should test the student's general knowledge of the subject and capacity to use this knowledge rather than the old-time detailed and tricky questions or mechanical quizzes on prescribed portions of books or subjects.

MEASURING EDUCATIONAL RESULTS

BY ARTHUR O. NORTON

Professor of Education, Wellesley College

A revolutionary change has come over the manner of dealing with educational questions during the past twenty years. Instead of the opinions, beliefs, guesses, dogmas, and speculations, or the appeals to tradition and rule-of-thumb, which formerly shaped educational policies, we have scientific study of the results of education, a rapidly growing body of knowledge as to what those results are, standards of testing and grading results which do not depend on the caprice or whim of any individual, and the shaping of educational policies in accordance with facts.

This means that in these twenty years more progress has been made in learning the real facts about education than was made in the twenty-two centuries preceding.

In 1896 educational problems were discussed by exactly the methods used in ancient Athens in the fourth century B.C.—that is, by the assertion of opinions and appeals to traditional practice. The results were exactly the same in both cases,—a great variety of beliefs, and no proofs of any of them. The accuracy of this statement is indicated by two descriptions of the state of educational thought, the first written by Aristotle about the year 330 B.C. and the second by the pioneer of scientific investigation in the United States in 1896. The two passages are so strikingly alike that it is worth while to quote them.

Aristotle, ca. 330 B.C.: "Mankind are by no means agreed about the things to be taught. . . . The existing practice is perplexing. No one knows on what principle we should proceed,—whether the useful in life or virtue or the higher knowledge should be the aim of our training. . . . Again about the means there is no agreement; for different persons, setting forth different ideas about the nature of virtue, naturally disagree about the practice."

Rice, 1896: "In matters pertaining to the practical conduct of the schools our notions today are not much more definite than they might have been a century ago. [As the above quotation shows, Rice might have said "2200 years ago."] Indeed so crude are they that no sooner do we dip beneath the surface in our inquiries than we find ourselves surrounded by utter confusion. The statements made on practical questions, even among our leading educators, are conflicting to the point of absurdity. And, as there are no proofs to offer as to who is right and who is wrong, we are left completely without a guide; so that we do not know which way to turn. Everything is speculative: nothing is positive. . . . We have absolutely no definite knowledge in regard to the most elementary questions; our ideas in regard to a proper treatment of the old subjects—reading, spelling, penmanship, grammar, composition, and arithmetic—are fully as indefinite as they are in regard to what course to pursue in the sciences and the arts, or in the training of the moral character. Our leading educators are not even agreed, for example, as to whether the results secured by a five-year course in technical grammar are better than those secured by a one-year course, or whether the results will not be just as good if technical grammar be entirely omitted from the elementary schools. And, again, they are by no means agreed as to whether or not children who devote forty minutes daily to spelling turn out to be better spellers than those who devote, say, not more than five or ten minutes daily to that subject."

Any one who turns back to the educational literature of 1896 can easily verify Rice's report. In the whole range of that literature the best evidence cited by any one for his views was "my opinion" or the opinion of others; "my long experience" or the experience of others. Cocksure assertion and a loud voice were the chief aids to winning educational debates. "A wordy clamor was enough to secure the victory," wrote an English teacher in the twelfth century. So it was at the end of the nineteenth century. An Italian reporter characterized these debates exactly: "The paladins of the two views exploded against each other for more than two hours without concluding anything."

In 1896, to be sure, there was much eager inquiry on educational questions. The typical school master of the preceding generation,—that dogmatic, tyrannical, self-satisfied 'stand-patter'—was already disappearing. Practically every view about education was being revised; but only one man in the United States had hit upon the method of getting at the actual facts. This man was Dr. J. M. Rice, the distinguished pioneer in the scientific study of educational problems, later editor of "The Forum."

In December, 1896, Dr. Rice published in "The Forum" an article under the title "Obstacles to Rational Educational Reform." This article is epoch-making. It sketched in outline practically the whole program of scientific investigation which has been followed since that time. In 1897 Dr. Rice presented to a national gathering of superintendents of schools at Indianapolis the results of his pioneer study of spelling, which had been carried out in the schools of nineteen cities of the United States. Superintendents of schools in those days were rarely of a scientific turn of mind. As one might have expected, Dr. Rice's report raised a storm of opposition and ridicule, of which the burden was: "You can't test the efficiency of teaching by finding out what the pupils can do. Such investigations are silly, dangerous, and a waste of time."

We have come a long way since 1897. In 1912 the same association of superintendents of schools met in St. Louis. Instead of denouncing scientific investigation as a waste of time, they devoted forty-eight addresses and discussions to tests and measurements of educational efficiency. The burden of the discussion was: "You can test the efficiency of teaching by measuring its results as shown in what the pupils can do. Such investigations are the only way by which we can come to certainty about educational questions."

Four years have passed since the St. Louis meeting. Each year has broadened the scope of scientific research. Each year has improved its methods, has added to the certainty of its results, and has increased its use as a means of shaping educational policies. But scientific research is necessarily slow in its developments. In educational affairs it is still in its beginnings. Hasty work, general half-bakedness, and charlatanism appear here even as elsewhere. Nevertheless it is now possible to indicate some very substantial achievements.

The first problem confronting investigators was to discover the facts. The need for this was pointed out by Dr. Rice in the article above referred to: "What must be done, then, in order that our system of education may be placed on a secure foundation is to institute researches toward obtaining facts that will lead, first, to the establishment of standards by which the teacher may be able to determine when his task in a given branch has been satisfactorily performed; and, secondly, to the establishment of standards which will enable us to judge how much time is needed to secure a definite result. Once these truths are recognized, the factional lines between conservatives and radicals will cease to exist, and all will become co-laborers in the discovery of the laws that apply to all our educators, regardless of pedagogical creed."

How few facts were available was shown very promptly when investigators began their researches. Figures, figures everywhere, and not a word of truth. At the beginning it was not even possible to find how many children entered school for the first time in any given year. Even ten years ago these facts could be discovered in only two cities in the United States. Ten years ago nobody knew what proportion of the children who entered school remained to graduate. Similar lack of information was discovered at every point. A large amount of time has therefore been given to the improvement, collection, and analysis of school statistics. One of the best illustrations of work of this kind is the school report of the city of Newton, Mass., for 1912, in which the superintendent, Dr. F. E. Spaulding, answers clearly more than one hundred questions for which students of educational facts had long sought an answer. The collection of data has proceeded with great speed. In 1909 only twenty-nine cities in the United States had systems of individual record cards for keeping the school histories of their children. Three years later 216 cities had adopted a uniform system for this purpose, thus making it possible to compare the work of schools in different cities. These are samples of numerous and valuable investigations of this kind.

Another achievement of the first importance has been the establishment of the standard tests by which to measure the progress of school children. Without such standards no progress can be made in educational research. This fact was also pointed out by Dr. Rice in 1896: "When a standard is recognized in regard to the knowledge and skill which the child ought to possess in spelling, reading, penmanship, language, arithmetic, and so on, then all teachers may benefit from the labors of others directed toward the discovery of both economical and interesting methods of teaching. For want of such a standard, each individual teacher has, thus far, been a law unto himself; permitted to experiment on his pupils in accordance with his own individual educational notions, whether inherited from his grandmother or the result of study and reflection, entirely regardless of what was being done by others. So long as this condition is possible, pedagogy cannot lay claim to recognition as a science."

Since that time the following standards have been established:

1. Tests of general intelligence. The most widely known of these tests is that originated by Binet and Simon in Paris, first published in 1905 and revised in its final form in 1911. This test was intended chiefly for the diagnosis of cases of backwardness or feeble-mindedness, though it can also be used to test average, or more than average, intelligence. It consists of about five questions for each year of childhood from three to fifteen with an added series of questions for adults. These questions are so simple as to seem almost ridiculous at the first reading; but they have been selected out of many hundreds of questions, and after experiments with several hundred children, as the crucial questions for testing intelligence. They have been widely used in schools for defective or backward children.

A second test for general intelligence was published in 1915 by Yerkes, Bridges & Hardwick under the title "A Point Scale for Measuring Mental Ability." This remedies numerous defects of the Binet-Simon scale and has been in use at the Psychopathic Hospital in Boston for some time. It uses many of the questions developed in the Binet-Simon scale, but proceeds upon radically different principles. It promises to supersede the Binet-Simon scale, and to develop in various ways.

2. In addition to these general tests we find a series of standard tests of ability in the various special subjects of the curriculum. Among these may be mentioned the Curtis standard tests in arithmetic. The development of these was begun in 1907. The tests were published after extended experiment in Detroit schools. They have since been given to scores of thousands of children in the various cities of the United States and in Europe. They consist in a number of problems of various kinds which can be given in two periods of about forty-five minutes each and show conclusively the strengths and weaknesses of classes and of individual pupils. These are among the most scientific of tests and have yielded extraordinary and unforeseen knowledge concerning the methods and results of teaching. Other tests are issued by Mr. Curtis in reading and writing.

Among other tests of this group may be mentioned the Ayres measuring scale for handwriting. Similar scales for handwriting have been constructed by Professor Thorndike of Columbia University; tests in spelling by Dr. Ayres of the Russell Sage Foundation; and tests in reading and drawing by Professor Thorndike. Notable also is the Harvard-Newton scale for measuring the value of English compositions in the eighth grade. Many more are being developed.

3. A third result of the general movement for measuring educational results has been the establishment of permanent bureaus of educational research and measurement. These are now to be found in several cities. The Detroit Bureau is directed by Mr. S. A. Curtis, to whom we owe the tests in arithmetic. The Boston Bureau is directed by Dr. Frank W. Ballou. Dr. Ballou has been for some time engaged in setting minimum standards of achievement for each grade and in determining the efficiency of teachers by the results of their work with various classes of pupils. Many interesting discoveries have come from these investigations, as a result of which Boston is now publishing minimum standards of achievement for various grades and subjects.

4. Also an outgrowth of this movement for scientific research is the school survey. Within the last five years numerous investigations of school systems as wholes have taken place, in each case involving, first, a study of the facts; second, the conclusions based on that study; and third, recommendations for improvement in the schools as a result of the survey. The largest of these surveys was that of New York City, completed in 1912 by Professor Paul H. Hanus of Harvard University. Others which have been undertaken are those of Portland, Ore.; Cleveland, Ohio; Boston, Mass.; and numerous smaller cities and rural districts. Various institutions have also been surveyed by experts in one way or another. There is a growing and important body of reports of these surveys.

Scientific research in education, like every other new movement, has suffered both from over-enthusiasm and hasty adverse criticism. Such criticism much cultivated in our colleges requires only slight intelligence. Coupled with a judicial manner it often makes a great impression.

However, it is as easy to point out the present limits and defects of scientific investigation in education as it is to observe that a baby is not an adult. For instance, it is often remarked that no standards or tests can take the place of the teacher whose enthusiasm is a power, whose word is an inspiration, and whose ideals ennoble the commonest aspects of life. Enthusiasms, feelings, and ideals which make for righteousness are the highest fruits of education. The teacher's personality must after all be the greatest force in education. These things are not measurable. On the other hand, measurements of human ability are as impersonal and unemotional as a foot rule. They only touch the incidental and external aspects of education. They do not reach the heart of the matter at all. Why then concern ourselves about them?

This criticism will always appeal to a convention of teachers.

Excepting the last two sentences, it is obvious and true. It is also stupidly indiscriminating. It is the kind of criticism always made by people who think that so complex a matter can be disposed of by a few sweeping phrases. To expose its asininity completely would require a long article. But one may remark that educational problems are varied and complex enough to call for all the talents of both the scientific investigator and the inspiring teacher; and that neither can dispense with the other. It is interesting to note that scientific experiment has always confirmed the view that the teacher is the most important factor in education. It has also revealed everywhere the woful lack of consistency in the judgment of teachers about the results of class-room work.

Scientific measurements of education do after all accomplish results of the first importance, even though they concern only a part of our educational problems. What are these results? The whole matter is well summed up in the words of Mr. Courtis. They are:

- “1. Diagnostic. To make evident the actual conditions existing in schools, classes, and individuals, that the weak points may be noted, causes determined, and remedies devised.
2. Scientific. To discover the natural laws of mental developments which are operative in school work.
3. Experimental. To make possible control experiments that will settle all questions of educational procedure upon a fact basis. (Scientific determination of the efficiency of different methods.)
4. Supervisory. To secure the information needed in setting standards for the guidance of teachers and schools, and in determining whether or not standards already set are being attained.”

Scientific study and research of educational methods and processes tends to question traditional methods, and to curb the tendency of the school world to snap judgments. It compels one to suspend judgment, to study the facts, to think.

RECENT EDUCATIONAL LITERATURE

BY CLAYTON C. KOHL

Professor of Secondary Education, New York University

The "Monthly Record of Current Educational Publications" of the United States Bureau of Education cited 1617 titles of books, monographs, or articles for the year 1915, and these represent but a part of the total output for the year. The records for the past half dozen years differ very little from that of last year. Prior to the war, Germany was comparatively even more prolific in pedagogical publications; and France and England did not remain far behind. Recent educational literature constitutes, therefore, a huge bulk. What to read in education is very difficult to determine even for the one who gives his whole time to the subject; and when it comes to recommending a list of good books for the thoughtful teacher or principal, the task becomes well-nigh impossible of satisfactory solution. A dozen different lists prepared by as many different people might be made and each of them good. The present chapter purposes to give a brief critical review of some dozen or fifteen recent educational books which might interest and serve thoughtful private school men and women. A more detailed bibliography is appended to meet in part the needs of readers who care to pursue some one field of study more intensively.

In the field of the philosophy of education, two excellent books have appeared very recently: C. Hanford Henderson's "What is it to be educated?" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1914) and Ernest Carroll Moore's "What is Education?" (Boston: Ginn & Co., 1915). Many readers of a decade ago will remember with pleasure their reading of Mr. Henderson's "Education and the Larger Life." The present work is much like it in purpose and spirit; it is the attempt of a great scholar to get his mind about the problem of education as a whole. A mere glance at the bibliography appended to the volume will show the broad point of view from which the author worked. The book is really a philosophy of life. If any one sentence from the book could reflect the central theme, it would be the following: "Education is the unfolding and perfecting of the human spirit." This thought interpreted and elaborated runs through all the chapters, among the headings of which are: Religion, Bread-and-Butter, Body, Spirit, The Years of Grace, The Awkward Age, The Life Force, and The Wanderjahr. The student of social and vocational education may not like the author's outline of a course of study for youth, but he cannot help being inspired by its idealism. Professor Moore's book, while using almost wholly different data, is strikingly like that of Mr. Henderson in spirit. The author, with a wide training in school administration, psychology, and philosophy, turns his whole store of technical knowledge into a broad and telling interpretation of the way a mind comes to its own through its own activity. "To learn to order one's own experiences is a vital necessity and the workable purpose of education." Through each of the following eleven chapters runs this central thought: What is Education? What is Knowledge? The Doctrine of General Discipline, Education as World Building, The Kinds of Education, Learning by and for Doing, The Place of Method in Education, Learning by Problem Getting, Organization by Selection, Diagnostic Education, and Learning to Work with Concepts. Indirectly the book furnishes a foundational criticism of existing school practices.

Perhaps no aspect of the principles of education has received more interest in recent times than the biological and physiological aspects. Heredity, sex, growth, neurology, and like terms have become common in the literature of education. Books in this field which are at once readable, scientific, and cling to the educational point of view are not numerous. For the general reader, one of the earlier still remains one of the best; namely, John Mason Tyler's "Growth and Education" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1907). The evolutionary point of view is clearly explained; growth through childhood and youth is concretely described and its application to school life indicated; and the activities best designed for physical education, such as play, manual training, and gymnastics, are closely evaluated. Very recently a much smaller book has appeared which gives in a delightful way a fairly scientific treatment of the subject: F. W. Mott's "Nature and Nurture in Mental Development" (New York: Paul Hoeber, 1915). Heredity, instinct, sex, and brain are treated from the distinctly educational point of view, and with remarkable clarity. Any one who wishes to pursue the biological and physiological aspects into the very frontiers of a new pedagogical science should read Dr. Maria Montessori's "Pedagogical Anthropology" (New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company, 1914). The data of the book are hard to read, but the conclusions are suggestive in the extreme. No other book in English furnishes such an excellent introduction to the beginning science of pedagogical anthropology.

Closely related to the above, really a part of it, is the field of school hygiene. Perhaps no other topic in education claims and holds the center of interest in the way this does. International congresses meet to discuss it; parent-teachers' associations have it on their programs oftener than any other subject; and legislatures force its study and practice upon teachers. The literature of the subject outruns even the popular interest; at least a dozen good books have appeared on the subject within the last two years. For the teacher and the general reader it may well be doubted whether any one has treated the whole topic so well as Lewis M. Terman in his "Hygiene of the School Child" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1914). This book is literally packed with facts and practical suggestions, and yet it has been so done as to be admirably readable. Diseases of the eye, ear, mouth, throat, nose, and thorax, as well as disorders of digestion and of the nervous system, are so discussed that the intelligent parent can get real help from the treatment. The same author has written another volume in the same general field which every teacher would do well to read. This is the little book entitled "The Teacher's Health" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1913). A close second to Dr. Terman's works is that of Dr. Walter S. Cornell, "Health and Medical Inspection of School Children" (Philadelphia: F. A. Davis & Co., 1912). It deals with the same topics as Dr. Terman's school hygiene, but rather more from the physician's point of view.

Since the publication of Rousseau's "Émile" in 1762, the phrase "natural education" has never been without currency, and for the past few years it has literally permeated popular educational thinking and writing. No book or books can take the place of the one that gave rise to the movement, and every thoughtful reader who has not read the "Émile" should now do so, since it will aid in the understanding of many current innovations. Barbara Foxley's translation is easily accessible to all in the Everyman's Library. Two books have recently been published which show the principle of natural education in actual practice giving definite results. In 1914 Mrs. Stoner's "Natural Education" (Indianapolis: Bobbs-Merrill Company) appeared. The whole book is essentially a description of the way the author educated her daughter. The results are nothing less than phenomenal, though the writer maintains that they are not. The accomplishments of Miss Stoner in the way of mastering more than half a dozen languages as well as all the other subjects of the curriculum give the description of her education intense interest and importance. In 1915 Dr. Dewey and his daughter, Evelyn, published the "Schools of Tomorrow" (New York: The Century Company), which describes the doctrine of natural education as it is being experimented with in actual school practice. The introductory chapter on Rousseau's theory of education is one of the best short discussions to be found anywhere. Some of the experiments described are Mrs. Johnson's school at Fairhope, Ala., Professor Meriam's model school at the University of Missouri, Montessori Schools, Mr. Valentine's school in Indianapolis, and the Gary Schools. From no other source can one get such vital discussions of the experiments that are being tried to break away from traditional school routine. The book is not polemic; it is descriptive; and it should be read in the spirit in which it was written.

To merit the reputation of being abreast of current pedagogical movements requires that one know something fundamental about Dr. Montessori's work. A large number of articles and nearly a dozen books have appeared recently regarding her method. Among the very best of these are Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher's "A Montessori Mother" (New York: Henry Holt & Co., 1912), Professor W. H. Kilpatrick's "The Montessori System Examined" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1914), and Ellen Yale Steven's "A Guide to the Montessori Method" (New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company, 1913). The reader should, however, go to the sources, and the best book for this is Dr. Montessori's own book entitled "The Montessori Method" (New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company, 1912). Because of the heat of the discussions regarding the worth and originality of Dr. Montessori's method, attention has been riveted largely upon the didactic material and the element of personality involved in the new system. Her own book shows that these do not constitute the center of her interest; the scientific study of children acting freely and normally and learning naturally is the center of her whole study. No finer example can be found of a truly scientific study of child psychology and pedagogy than this book. For those who wish to emphasize the mechanical side and learn about the didactic material, "Dr. Montessori's Own Handbook" (New York: Frederick A. Stokes Company, 1914) may be consulted.

Within the past five years the field of secondary education has come for the first time to have a literature of books as opposed to magazine articles. Ten or twelve fairly good books on the subject have appeared within this time. The two which would seem to offer the most help to private secondary school men and women are Julius Sachs's "The American Secondary School" (New York: The Macmillan Company, 1912) and Samuel Chester Parker's "Methods of Teaching in High Schools" (Boston: Ginn & Co., 1915). Dr. Sachs's book espouses the German disciplinary ideal and discusses the problems of American secondary education in the light of this conception. The first chapter, which constitutes nearly a third of the book, is devoted to the teacher. For those who would like to see the teacher a genuine scholar of the best German type, this chapter will give great pleasure. Another section of the work treats of the course of study and allied problems. Here a few studies persistently pursued four days of the week for four years constitute the basic ideal; and all of these studies except one are of the classical and disciplinary type. The American elective system gets scant support. Unlike the other recent books on secondary education, the private secondary school gets a long and excellent chapter. Professor Parker's book attempts a scientific treatment of the high school teacher's practical problems with reference to instruction. Five types of learning furnish five chapters on the basic principles of method: Acquiring Motor Control, Associating Symbols and Meanings, Practice or Drill, Reflective Thinking, and Forming Habits of Harmless Enjoyment. These are excellent discussions of method; the psychology and pedagogy involved are brought out by means of telling illustrations. The remainder of the work is devoted to the mechanics of teaching; such as questioning, conversational methods, the use of books, laboratory technique, and marking pupils. Without doubt the greatest problem in American secondary education today is that of adjusting the disciplinary and social conceptions of the purpose of the high school. The reading of these two books will put one into the spirit of this problem.

Since the introduction of Herbartian pedagogy into this country a little more than a quarter of a century ago, books on general methodology have never ceased to be popular. These are the books which teachers buy, either willingly or under compulsion. Every thoughtful student of education knows that most of these are next to worthless; they cover up or slur over the most vital and important problems of the science of teaching. Among the great number which have appeared in recent times, one of genuine worth and one of moderate value may be mentioned. The former of these is John Dewey's "How We Think" (Boston: D. C. Heath & Co., 1911); and the latter is that of McMurry, entitled "How to Study and Teaching How to Study" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1909). The reviewer feels that Dr. Dewey's book is destined to become an educational classic. Perhaps the most difficult aspect of psychology for the teacher is the psychology of thinking. Because of this, the weakness and strength of the Herbartian "five formal steps" have been rarely understood and have been, therefore, erected into a system of pedagogical worship. Whether Dr. Dewey's book tells the exact truth or the whole truth cannot be determined: it does accomplish for the teacher one great thing; namely, it enables him to make a clear entrance into the psychology of thought as a whole. His analysis of a complete act of thought brings the problem out of the pigeonholes of general psychologies and causes one to see it as one aspect of the whole mind functioning. In spite of the difficulty of the task, the author has by his telling illustrations and clarity of general statements made the whole subject remarkably clear. Professor McMurry's book is packed with practical suggestions and illuminating cases of good and bad teaching. After a discussion of improper methods of study, the writer resolves efficient study into eight factors and discusses each of these. In some ways the analysis of study into such factors as "the finding of specific purposes," "supplementing thought," "memorizing," and the like, offers help to the teacher; but the significant weakness is that these factors are not separate entities and hence cannot be guided unless the teacher understands the psychology back of them,—and this the book does not give. The work is significant because it manifests a desire to make the learning process the center of pedagogy rather than the teaching process. With the great interest that now exists in teaching pupils how to study, it is hoped that this good book may be replaced by a better one.

The literature of class-room management may be characterized as a whole in much the same manner that the literature of general method was characterized. Among the legion of books old and new, two may be selected for brief mention simply because they show the modern tendency to study from the objective point of view specific problems rather than attempting a survey of the whole field. Very recently, three books on school discipline have appeared, two of which attack the question directly; namely, Frances M. Morehouse's "The Discipline of the School" (Boston: D. C. Heath & Co., 1915) and W. C. Bagley's "School Discipline" (New York: The Macmillan Company, 1915). The problem of keeping order in the school is not yet a thing of the past, and both of these works throw considerable light on this question especially through their use of examples. But the more pressing problem today is with reference to the initiating and guiding of pupil self-government. Dr. Bagley's book in particular gives an extremely critical and helpful discussion of the honor system and student government. The chief merit of Dr. Bagley's book lies in its critical character; the chief merit of Miss Morehouse's book is that it reflects the sympathetic thought of one living in the midst of the problems with which it deals.

The omission of child study from any survey of recent educational literature would be inexcusable; and yet the subject is so inclusive, the titles are so varied, and the points of view are so different that any selection is bound to be almost purely accidental. In view of the fact that the topic has been touched in the references to Dr. Montessori's and Mrs. Stoner's work, but one book will be briefly reviewed. H. Addington Bruce's "Psychology and Parenthood" (New York: Dodd, Mead & Co., 1915) is chosen because it illustrates excellently the way that a type of abnormal psychology is influencing this branch of science. Of the nine chapter headings, the following six will show the unique character of the book: Suggestion in Education, The Secret of Genius, The Problem of Laziness, A Chapter on Laughter, Hysteria in Childhood, and The Menace of Fear. The whole book reads like a novel; a parent, at least, having once begun it can hardly lay it down. The chapters on suggestion, genius, and fear are peculiarly illuminating. The author takes the position that the first few years of a child's life are the most significant ones in the individual's history. He also makes it clear again and again that the influences which really determine character and personality are far more subtle and far less conscious than people think. The average parent will be shocked at his own blindness and ignorance regarding child life if he reads this book thoughtfully.

Many other fields of educational thought are well represented in new books and even new journals. Mere mention may be made of some of them, such as the education of defective children, experimental pedagogy, pedagogy of special branches of study, efficiency tests in school work, and social education. The last ought to be of great interest to private school men and women. Many of the most recent movements, such as playgrounds, dancing, camping, Boy Scouts, clubs, and the like, are being treated essentially from the social point of view. While not touching all the specific aspects just mentioned, King's "Social Aspects of Education" (New York: The Macmillan Company, 1912) is the best single book in the field taken as a whole. It is a source-book, but remarkably well edited. The playground, school garden, school center, vocational guidance, democratic government of schools, the child as a social being, the social nature of the learning process, moral and religious education, and correlated topics are all discussed briefly and excellently from notable authorities are appended. A better book cannot be found with which to begin the study of social education. A special aspect of social education, the vocational guidance movement, is so much in the fore-front today and is so worthy of being here that every school man whether in public or private institutions should know something about it. Two admirable books have appeared within the last year and a half on this subject; namely, Jesse B. Davis's "Vocational and Moral Guidance" (Boston: Ginn & Co., 1914) and Meyer Bloomfield's "Youth, School, and Vocation" (Boston: Houghton Mifflin Company, 1915). Both authors have been doing actual and vital work in the field, and they treat the subject in a concrete yet comprehensive way. The reader will feel after an acquaintance with either of the books that both the home and the school have neglected perhaps the most significant part of a child's training, that of seeing the youth placed fittingly in a situation where his talents and formal education may serve himself and society best.

In spite of the fact that the literature of pedagogy is so rich as it is, and so cheap as things go, the fact remains that teachers in service read very little and buy few books. The thoughtful reading of one good book each month, a very simple and easy requirement, would work wonders in the teaching profession. The most significant factor in a teacher's personal growth and professional success is the feeling of at-homeness in pedagogical thinking. Without it teaching is drudgery. Say what we will about travel, mingling with people, and the like, good as they are, the most significant source of attaining it is reading.

A SELECT CLASSIFIED READING LIST

The following bibliography of books and articles of especial interest and value to secondary school teachers has been prepared by Professor Clayton C. Kohl, of New York University, to supplement the preceding chapter. For the most part only those titles have been included which would serve the general reader. In a few cases, technical and foreign publications have been included because of their exceptional merit. Now and then a magazine article or a specific chapter in a book has been inserted for the same reason.

CRITICAL DESCRIPTION OF SCHOOLS AND SUMMER CAMPS

The order of arrangement of schools under each classification is by states, geographically, from Maine to California.

In each state, the largest city, as Boston, Chicago, or Philadelphia, is first given and a logical and geographical order is followed, taking the schools in geographical proximity together.

In the Comparative Tables and Supplementary List of Schools, the same order is followed, except that for convenience of reference, under each state the schools are arranged alphabetically.

The Table of Contents, the Index of Schools, the Index of Summer Camps, and the Who's Who in the Private Schools, make it easy to find any institution and its head.

BOYS' SCHOOLS

MAINE

Abbott is a preparatory school for forty boys at Farmington. It was originated by the grandfather of Lyman Abbott and was formerly known as the Little Blue School. In 1902 George Dudley Church, A.M., Brown, took it over and under his vigorous administration it has prospered. Formerly for young boys only, it now carries them through to college entrance. Mr. Church has sound, old-fashioned ideals regarding the education of boys, and he impresses his pupils with his mental and physical vigor. He has made the school what it is today, one of a simple democratic life, where scholarship is made a requisite for athletic privileges, and where unquestioning obedience is the basis of control.

The Degen School for Boys, 169 Danforth St., Portland, the only country day school in Maine, was opened in 1915 by George Frederic Degen, A.M., for the past five years Assistant Principal at Dummer.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

The Phillips Exeter Academy was founded by John Phillips, who, stirred by the immediate success of Phillips Academy at Andover, founded by his brother and his nephew, established The Phillips Exeter Academy in his home town in New Hampshire. It was incorporated by the legislature in 1781, the wording of the charter following very closely that of the earlier school. The academy was formally opened early in 1783.

Benjamin Abbot, the second principal, ruled over the institution with great power and wisdom for the term of fifty years. He had been trained at Andover under Principal Pearson, graduated from Harvard in 1788, and came immediately to Phillips Exeter where he became perhaps the most famous of all the early academy teachers. "Little Daniel Webster came to him for schooling in 1796. Edward Everett finished his preparation for college here, at the age of thirteen. Lewis Cass came to the school at the age of ten, a headstrong boy, fond of pranks and of outdoor life; and here he remained for five years and made a very good record." In 1838 Gideon L. Soule, who had already been a teacher in the school for seventeen years, succeeded Dr. Abbot, and in 1872 the fiftieth year of his continuous service in the academy was celebrated.

Exeter's alumni number over eight thousand, representing every state of the Union and many foreign countries. No other school has given so many distinguished men to the nation. Thirty years ago, at the close of the first century of her existence, Exeter numbered among her alumni "nine college presidents, including three of Harvard, fifty-two college professors, two hundred and forty-five teachers, thirty-six authors, five ambassadors, seven cabinet ministers, twenty-eight members of Congress, twelve governors of states, a long list of Federal and State judges, Army and Naval officers, and more than a thousand professional men." Such a contribution to the nation's assets must be due to the spirit of Exeter, which has not only attracted pupils of promise, but accounts for their fruitful development.

Exeter has always been characterized by a spirit of earnestness, sincerity, and independence,—dignity without pose or affectation. There is no veneering process at Exeter,—that which is within is brought out. There is little of the paternal attitude. A boy must stand upon his own feet. He is put upon his honor.

The traditional saying that the academy has no rules until they are broken, although a humorous overstatement, still expresses the belief of the school that the boy's own conscience and good sense are in the main sufficient for right conduct. Rules relieve a boy of the responsibility of judging for himself. An alumnus recently asked what he considered the most signal benefit a boy derived from Exeter, replied, "Readiness to take responsibility." Thus the academy is today fulfilling the purpose of its founder "to learn them the GREAT END AND REAL BUSINESS OF LIVING." Education at Exeter, then, is not mere preparation for life. It is life.

Significant of the value of college preparation which Exeter gives is the fact that thirty Exeter men at Harvard in a recent year received fifty-two A's and ninety-six B's, both honor grades, and out of eighteen in the freshman class at Yale in the same year, eight were on the honor list. In college the Exeter man is found leading in college activities. In the major sports of the freshman class at Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, and Princeton, in two recent years, ten Exeter graduates have held the office of captain.

At Exeter there is a progressive spirit which accepts nothing as necessarily final in educational work. With all its rich traditions Exeter has never become moss-grown. There was no Theological Seminary as at Andover to hold it so strictly to orthodoxy, and its students continued to resort to the more liberal Harvard, and today Exeter remains to a marked extent a school preparatory to Harvard. There is more of the University atmosphere, of the freedom and the fostering of the individual at Exeter than at perhaps any other great American school. The atmosphere at Exeter is essentially democratic and thoroughly American. Not only does it attract nearly six hundred students from all over the country, but admission is in no way dependent upon class, color, or wealth, or the lack of any of these. Each boy stands on his merits.

Exeter has a large endowment fund from which it gives annually a larger number of scholarships than any other secondary school. The effect of this has been to increase democracy and to raise the standard of scholarship. As at Andover the dormitory system is a relatively new feature. During its early history students were quartered in the houses of the townspeople, and something of this still survives, though in the last half century more dormitories have been erected, largely through the generosity of alumni, where the boy receives much the same supervision as in smaller schools.

"One of the most precious institutions of the country" was the characterization that former President Eliot of Harvard gave Exeter, and this invaluable position must be attributed to its long line of principals, who have been men of strong personality, above the pettiness which so often stigmatizes other schools. Not the least of these was Harlan P. Amen, who, coming to the principalship after "a period of executive laxness," in his eighteen years of office, by strong and sympathetic leadership, brought Exeter back to her ancient standards.

Lewis Perry, A.B., Williams '98, A.M., Princeton, was elected principal in 1914, a post for which his previous experience as a master at the Lawrenceville School and as professor at Williams had prepared him. His view of the school curriculum was tersely expressed at an educational meeting at Brown University in 1915: "Latin grammar, the beginnings of algebra, English composition, are the fundamentals. These fundamentals should be drilled into a boy until he knows them. Then he is prepared for other subjects."

St. Paul's School, Concord, founded in 1855, marked a new trend in education in America. The economic development of the country and the great increase in wealth had created a place for a new type of private school which should meet more nearly the requirements of a growing wealthy class who no longer wished for their sons the old type of democratic schooling. This need was first recognized by Dr. George Cheyne Shattuck, who in 1855 gave his estate near Concord for the purpose, as he expressed it in his deed of gift,—“Of endowing a school of the highest class for boys, in which they may obtain an education which shall fit them either for college or business, including thorough intellectual training in the various branches of learning, gymnastics, and manly exercises adapted to preserve health and strengthen the physical condition, such æsthetic culture and accomplishments as shall tend to refine the manners and elevate the taste, together with careful moral and religious instruction.”

The Rev. Henry Augustus Coit was called in 1856 by the trustees to the position of first rector of the new school. Dr. Coit, whose family name for two generations has been prominent in American education, had received his training under the Rev. William Augustus Muhlenberg, at whose suggestion he was later an instructor in the College of St. James, Hagerstown. Dr. Muhlenberg's school at College Point, L.I., which later became St. Paul's College, in its eighteen years' existence exerted a great influence on the future private schools in America, for among his pupils in addition to Coit were several future bishops who were later influential in organizing the earliest Episcopalian Church schools of the parental type. At St. Paul's Dr. Coit entered upon a virgin field and during the formative years of the school he indelibly stamped his personality upon it. As Dr. Coit developed it the school showed the influence of his master, Muhlenberg, in its unreserved adoption of the "in loco parentis" theory. Combined with this was much from the English public schools which he had visited, freely adapted to new conditions, and inspiration was without doubt especially derived from Arnold's methods at Rugby. Dr. Coit was an able administrator and a keen student of boys and men. His career was marked by an unswerving adherence to lofty Christian ideals, and the strength of his success lay in his remarkable ability to inspire others with them.

For nearly forty years, until his death in 1895, Dr. Coit was the head and heart of St. Paul's and made it one of the foremost of the American schools. Not without some reason has he been called the greatest of American school masters.

But Dr. Shattuck's influence has also been apparent. Established by a physician, St. Paul's was perhaps the first school in which the deed of gift accented physical development; and healthy outdoor life has always characterized St. Paul's. But it may be questioned if the founder's coordinate aim of "esthetic culture" has been equally well carried out. The beautiful situation of St. Paul's, two miles from Concord in the valley of the Turkey river with its vast extent of woodland, fields, its rivers and ponds, has offered every facility for outdoor life, for golf, tennis, swimming, canoeing, skating, and hockey. But even in outdoor life English influence was at first apparent. Dr. Coit encouraged cricket rather than baseball. The English school room nomenclature, too, was here introduced to the American boy. St. Paul's still has "forms" and "evensong." But the "removes" and "matins" and even the cricket of Dr. Coit's time are now forgotten.

The boys of the three upper forms have separate rooms. The younger boys have "alcoves" in the dormitories similar to the "cubicles" of many of the English public schools. This custom here first introduced in the American private schools has been followed by Groton, St. Mark's, and other schools.

St. Paul's has grown to be one of the largest preparatory schools, enrolling over three hundred and fifty boys, who come equally from city and country, and largely from families of wealth and social prominence in all parts of the nation. The atmosphere therefore is cosmopolitan if not democratic. Two hundred and thirty-five of the two hundred and fifty boys graduating in a recent five years entered college, and of these thirty-one left college without completing their course.

Dr. Coit's immediate successors have been somewhat overshadowed by his greatness. He was followed by his brother, Joseph Howland Coit, who had been vice-rector since 1865, while for a time his younger brother, J. Milnor Coit, presided as acting rector. Dr. Henry Ferguson of Trinity College was rector for five years. The present head master, the Rev. Samuel Smith Drury, A.B., Harvard '01, formerly rector of St. Stephen's Church, Boston, was made vice-rector of St. Paul's in 1910, and in the following year appointed rector. It is his purpose to raise the standard of scholarship and the general tone, and to make the school more democratic.

The Holderness School is the diocesan school of New Hampshire founded by Bishop Niles in 1879. It is beautifully situated among the foothills of the White Mountains at Plymouth. The rector, the Rev. Lorin Webster, A.M., L.H.D., Trinity, his family, and the masters live in the same building with the boys. It is a school that for a moderate charge affords many of the advantages of the high-priced Church'schools.

VERMONT

Vermont Academy, Saxton's River, five miles from Bellows Falls, after a long career as a coeducational institution was seven years ago reorganized by Dr. George B. Lawson, A.M., D.D., Colgate; Ph.D., Bonn, as a boys' school exclusively. Dr. Lawson gave up the ministry to undertake this and has made a great success of his task, and under him the school has become virile and inspiring. James P. Taylor was for several years a master in the school, and it was in connection with the outdoor life and winter sports which he did so much to foster here, that the Green Mountain Club was organized, out of which has grown the Greater Vermont Association. There are about seventy students in attendance from wide-spread regions.

MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON

Chauncy Hall School, 553 Boylston St., was established in 1828 by Gideon F. Thayer, who made it for thirty years a pioneer in many educational innovations. The school has undergone many changes of management. Notable among its recent heads have been Edwin DeMeritte and Rev. James B. Taylor. In recent years the school has prepared exclusively for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Franklin T. Kurt, who has been connected with the school since 1896 and sole owner since 1910, administers the school in a strictly businesslike way.

Noble and Greenough School, 100 Beacon St., was founded in 1866 by George W. C. Noble, A.M., Harvard '58, who is still nominally head master. For many years it was very successfully managed, until his death in 1913, by James J. Greenough, son of Professor Greenough of Harvard. The association of these two able, enthusiastic scholars resulted in the most stable and influential day school in New England, drawing from the fashionable families of Greater Boston. Most of the seven hundred alumni are graduates of Harvard. Albertus T. Dudley, A.B., Harvard '87, for many years connected with the school, is now the actual managing head.

Volkman School, 415 Newbury St., is one of the leading day preparatory schools of Boston. For twenty years it has been maintained by Arthur L. K. Volkman, A.B., Cornell '78, formerly a popular teacher at Hopkinson's. His new school succeeded in large part to the popularity of "Hoppy's" and for some years held the primacy among Boston schools. For the past fifteen years the school has occupied a building especially designed for it, and in this regard it is unique among Boston schools. Mr. Volkman is a man of breadth and liberality with unflinching faith in boys, and his strong personality and knowledge of boy nature enable him to exert a valuable influence upon them. He is ably supported by the wholesome influence of F. A. Sheldon, A.B., Amherst '93, as head master, and others associated with him.

The Stone School, 488 Beacon St., has since 1879 been conducted by Charles W. Stone, who originally won a wide reputation for unusual success in tutoring boys for the Harvard entrance examinations. There are now full facilities for all desirable branches of athletics. The teaching staff, headed by A. L. Benshimol and S. R. Dunham, is unusually strong.

Mr. Legate's Private School, 66 Beacon St., is the successor of the Hopkinson School, familiarly known for a score of years as "Hoppy's," in its day perhaps the most fashionable Harvard preparatory school in Boston. It in turn had succeeded the Dixwell School. The two schools in their career sent over eight hundred boys to Harvard. Mr. Legate, a teacher in the school since 1879, has been head master since 1905. In the past ten years he has prepared about twenty boys for Harvard.

The DeMeritte School, 815 Boylston St., is a day school preparing for colleges and technical schools, especially for M. I. T., established in 1900 by Edwin DeMeritte, A.B., Dartmouth. Mr. DeMeritte has had many years' experience in Boston schools, having been a teacher and principal at Chauncy Hall and the principal of the Berkeley School. See p. 507.

The Huntington School, Huntington Ave., established in 1900, has proved most successful in utilizing the unequalled plant and equipment of the new Y. M. C. A. building. It purveys modern education, both technical and college preparatory, at moderate cost to a great number who might otherwise fail to get it, or elsewhere pay more and get less. The school has had a rapid growth and now enrolls over three hundred and fifty pupils, more than two thirds of whom are taking the college preparatory course. Ira A. Flinner, A.B., Harvard, is the head master. See p. 506.

Roxbury Latin School, founded in 1645, is the oldest endowed secondary school in the United States. Nine years after the establishment of Harvard College, and only fifteen years after the founding of Boston, it began to prepare boys for Harvard, and has continued its work without interruption. It resulted largely from the influential efforts of John Eliot, the "Apostle to the Indians," who when minister of the First Church of Roxbury, together with other inhabitants of the town, signed a statement that they "in consideration of their religious care of posterity, have taken into consideration how necessary the education of their children in literature will be, to fit them for public service, both in Church and Commonwealth, in succeeding ages. They, therefore, unanimously have consented and agreed to erect a free school in the said Town of Roxbury."

"The Free Schoole in Roxburie," as it was called, was not then free in the sense of being supported by uniform taxation or free from all tuition fees. But today the school is free to all boys living within the limits of the original town of Roxbury. In 1671 Thomas Bell, formerly a freeman of Roxbury, died in London, willing two hundred acres of Roxbury lands to the school, and naming the Rev. John Eliot and two other officers of the First Church as trustees of the endowment. This and a few other smaller gifts constitute the present foundation.

Cotton Mather, half a century later, wrote of the school, "Roxbury could not live quietly without a free school in the Town: and the Issue has been one thing which has almost made me put the Title of Schola Illustris upon that little Nursery; that is that Roxbury has afforded more Scholars, first for the College, and then for the Publick, than any Town of its Bigness, or if I mistake not, of twice its Bigness, in all New England."

The school has always been intimately associated with Harvard, fitting its pupils for the higher work there. College preparation in Colonial days was a matter of intensive education. The regulations for admission were thus stated: "When any Scholar is able to understand Tully, or such like classical, Latine Author extempore, and make and speake true Latine in Verse and Prose, suo ut aiunt Marte; and decline perfectly the Paradigm's of Nounes, and Verbes in the Greek tongue: Let him then and not before be capable of admission into the Colledge."

Though controlled by a self-perpetuating board of trustees who are bound by its ancient charter, the school has kept abreast of the educational changes of the years. Inherent worth has given it vitality and importance. It is now planning a future of great promise, and an option has been secured upon three acres facing Franklin Park. The line of its new development will follow that of the country day schools.

William C. Collar, for more than half a century connected with the school, in his long career attained a national position in the educational world. Appointed a master in 1857, head master in 1867, he resigned in 1907 and died in 1916. The present head master is D. O. S. Lowell, a graduate of Bowdoin and for several years a master in the school.

The Browne & Nichols School, 20 Garden St., Cambridge, was founded in 1883 by George H. Browne, A.M., and Edgar H. Nichols, A.M., Harvard classmates, soon after their graduation. They were pioneers in enriching the rather meager curriculum of the day. Mr. Browne's personality and intense enthusiasm incite in his boys a genuine devotion to the sound scholarship which has always distinguished the school. Since the death of Mr. Nichols, the Rev. Willard Reed has with Mr. Browne been joint principal. The appreciation by Mr. Nichols' pupils of his nobility and devotion is memorialized in Nichols Field, a playground, providing the usual features of a country day school. The school prepares almost exclusively for Harvard, and the masters are almost all Harvard men. At first its patronage came almost entirely from the established families of Cambridge, but in recent years as its enrollment has grown, pupils have been drawn from greater Boston. See p. 509.

William Whiting Nolen, familiarly known as "The Widow," A.B., Harvard '84, A.M., '86, Little Hall, Harvard Sq., Cambridge, has since 1886 built up a huge tutoring institution, the success of which has been such as now to require sixty assistants.

Mr. Rivers' Open-air School for Boys, 81 Marion St., Brookline, is an open-air day school with supervised afternoon playground work, opened in 1915 by a former master at Noble and Greenough's. The school prepares for college but accepts no new pupils above the fourth grade.

The Longwood Day School, 36 Browne St., enjoys a patronage from wealthy families of the Back Bay and Brookline. It was established by Miss Ware and Miss Park of Miss Pierce's School and is for young boys. The present head is Robert L. Cummings.

The Country Day School for Boys of Boston is located on Nonantum Hill, Newton. It was established in 1907 by citizens of Greater Boston to secure for their sons the advantages of an all-day school in the country. It was directly inspired by the ten years' success of this educational departure at the Gilman Country School and may be regarded as the first on the Baltimore plan. The school was opened under the efficient leadership of Shirley K. Kerns, A.B., Harvard '98, one time master of English in the Gilman School, its acting head master in 1900-01, and later a master at Middlesex. Inaugurated under the best of social auspices the school was a success from the start, but credit must be ascribed to the kindly, pervasive personality of Mr. Kerns, whose tact and ability inspired confidence. The boys come from the substantial families of Greater Boston. By careful elimination the college preparatory work has been maintained at a high standard so that the school makes a high record on Harvard College entrance examinations.

The Fessenden School, West Newton, is for young boys exclusively, fitting them for the leading secondary schools. It was established in 1903 by Frederick J. Fessenden, A.M., Williams, and has had a consistent growth as appreciation for all that it offers has become more widespread. Without the support of any special clique or denominational influence the school has won a national patronage. Mr. Fessenden is an efficient organizer and a man of modest and somewhat retiring temperament but winning personality. Both he and Mrs. Fessenden are unusually successful in creating a genuine and sincere home atmosphere, the latter giving the boys many little attentions unusual in a school. The masters have uniformly been young men of fineness and sympathy who have caught the prevailing spirit and communicated it to the boys.

Danforth School, Framingham, is a small school for boys under sixteen recently established by James Chester Flagg, A.B., formerly connected with Milton Academy and the Hackley School. Mr. Flagg gives his boys close supervision and prepares them for the final years at the secondary schools.

Middlesex School, Concord, was established in 1901 by Mr. Frederick Winsor, A.B., Harvard '93, whose family name will be recognized about Boston as prominent in education and finance. After graduating from Harvard Mr. Winsor taught for two years at Phillips Exeter. From 1897 he was for four years head master of the Gilman Country School, Baltimore. In 1901 he interested a group of Harvard men of Boston to assist him in organizing the Middlesex School. Through their influence gifts have poured in, making possible the building of a splendid plant. Middlesex has from its beginning been financed and trusteeed by Harvard men; its masters are Harvard graduates; and the school draws its patronage from those families throughout the country predisposed toward Harvard as the college for their sons.

Today the school accommodates somewhat over one hundred boys, less than one half of whom come from Massachusetts. At Middlesex we find the best features of the Episcopal Church schools adapted to a non-sectarian environment. The house system has been adopted. Each house accommodates twenty boys under the supervision of a house master and an assistant master. The spirit of the school is honest and virile with a simple, wholesome life characterized by intimacy between the boys and the masters.

Mill Brook School, Concord, is a small country school for city boys, accepting both day and resident pupils and offering college preparation and manual training. Wilmot R. Jones, a member of the Society of Friends, is the head master.

The Mitchell Military Boys' School, Billerica, is conducted by Alexander H. Mitchell, A.B., by whose father it was established in 1870. It is a boarding school for fifty boys under sixteen years of age. The amount of time devoted to military training is comparatively small.

Phillips Academy, Andover, was in a way an outgrowth of the older Dummer Academy, for Samuel Phillips, its founder, had been educated at Dummer under Master Moody's care, as had also its first head master, Eliphalet Pearson. They were both at Dummer and classmates at Harvard College, graduating in the class of 1771. In 1778 Samuel Phillips together with his father and his uncle John deeded both land and money for the purpose of founding the school. According to this document, the donors proposed "to lay the foundation of a public free SCHOOL or ACADEMY for the purpose of instructing Youth, not only in English and Latin Grammar, Writing, Arithmetic, and those Sciences wherein they are commonly taught; but more especially to learn them the GREAT END AND REAL BUSINESS OF LIVING." Further on, "it is again declared that the first and principal object of this Institution is the promotion of true PIETY and VIRTUE."

Andover was doubtless chosen as the site because it was the old home of the family, as the father of the two brothers had been a former master of the Grammar School at Andover. The school opened in the midst of the Revolution and in 1780 was incorporated with the title of Phillips Academy, the first chartered academy in New England. Andover has been fortunate from the first in attracting men of the highest ideals to its control. Eliphalet Pearson, the first principal, was a man of great force and versatility and of commanding presence who held his thirteen pupils well in awe and was known to the boys as "Elephant" Pearson:

"... Great Eliphalet (I can see him now),—

Big name, big frame, big voice, and beetling brow."

He afterward became professor of Hebrew at Harvard and still later in the Theological Seminary at Andover, which was an outgrowth of the same foundation.

There were twenty-three boys in the academy, when, in 1810, Dr. John Adams came to the master's throne, which he occupied for twenty-three years. By 1817 the number of boys had increased to one hundred, and during his time Dr. Adams admitted 1119 pupils, nearly one fifth of whom became ministers. But it was under Samuel H. Taylor, a man of picturesque and striking personality, head master from 1837 to 1871, that the institution gradually took on its present character.

As is natural Exeter and Andover have had much in common. Both have from the first repudiated the "in loco parentis" theory of school life. They attracted "students with a definite educational purpose" declaring that "the academy is not a suitable place for boys who are idle, insubordinate or lacking in self-control; nor for such as require the constant supervision of a teacher and the routine of the school room in order to enforce industry and fidelity."

Andover perhaps more than Exeter long remained conservative, less influenced by the Unitarian movements which have stirred New England, and perhaps for that reason Andover early became primarily a preparatory school for more conservative Yale rather than Harvard, which early came under more liberal influences. Andover has in its long career prepared more boys for Yale than any other school in the country. As at Exeter democracy and simplicity have been its tone. Andover has many scholarships for boys needing financial aid. About one hundred boys each year receive some assistance in paying their expenses.

Phillips Andover today attracts nearly six hundred boys, more than half of whom come from outside of New England, and it is truly "national in its representation and democratic in its life and spirit, and is 'equally open to youth of requisite qualifications from every quarter.'" It endeavors to enable its students, as the catalog further states, "to pass by gradual and natural stages from the paternalism of home life to the freedom that awaits them in college. A natural and progressive development is provided for subsequent years in the houses and halls which are in charge of married instructors. The regulations which obtain in all dormitories are here in force, but there is in them the atmosphere of home. The later life of the dormitories is designed to develop a larger sense of responsibility and to prepare for the community life of college." In the early days no housing provision was made for the boys, but they were left to the mercies of the townspeople. It has been found advisable to gather them in dormitories under the control of the school.

The loyalty of Andover men through the years has brought increasing endowment and gifts, many of which commemorate prominent alumni. A recent generous alumnus has aided in providing a new dormitory especially for young boys which further supplies "a stepping-stone between the natural restrictions of the home and the somewhat freer life of a large school." The Archeological Museum and department, endowed in 1901, is unique among secondary schools.

Andover has at the present time over eight thousand living alumni, and something like twenty thousand have graduated from the school during its history. About sixty per cent of these have gone to Yale and perhaps fifteen per cent to Harvard. Its alumni are loyal and are organized in numerous associations throughout the country. The present head master, Alfred E. Stearns, is a graduate of Andover, Amherst, Yale, and Andover Theological Seminary. He has been an instructor at Andover since 1897 and head master since 1903.

St. John's Preparatory College, Danvers, established in 1907, is perhaps the leading Catholic college preparatory school of New England. The commercial department offers the usual business course and athletics are made a strong attraction. The boys are largely from Massachusetts, but the crowded dormitories accommodate a considerable number of boys from as far afield as Cuba.

Dummer Academy was endowed by William Dummer, Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts, who in 1761 bequeathed his house and farm at Byfield for the establishment of a Grammar School. This was a notable innovation, breaking away from the tradition of local and public provision for education. The school was first opened in 1763 under the charge of the celebrated Samuel Moody, who had graduated from Harvard College in 1746. Master Moody made it a Grammar School of the olden type, and prepared many boys for Harvard who became prominent in the life of the nation, including the founder and first master of Andover Academy.

Dummer, like so many of the old academies, has had its vicissitudes. Eight years ago the school was almost extinct, reduced to a mere handful of pupils. Dr. Ingham then took hold of it and under his strong and tactful administration he has brought the school again to prosperity. Its numbers have increased, the spirit has improved, and new endowment has been added to it. He has created a wholesome home atmosphere and commands the respect of all who come in contact with him. The school is about equally divided between day and boarding pupils, and about half the patronage is local.

Milton Academy was established by an act of the legislature in 1798, opened in 1807, and continued with short periods of suspension until 1866 when, on the establishment of a town high school, it was closed. The board of trustees, however, having secured additional funds, reopened the academy in 1885 on a new site. Until 1901 the academy was coeducational, but in that year boys and girls, except those in the primary department, were given separate buildings and instruction. The girls' school is for day pupils only, but Hathaway House, not a part of, but under the supervision of the academy, provides for eighteen girls. The boys' school and the academy dormitories are exclusively for boys in the last six years of college preparation. The board of trustees is made up of men and women prominent in Milton and Boston. The school achieved great success during the long administration of Harrison Otis Apthorp. Under the able administration of the present head master, Frank Edwin Lane, and W. L. W. Field, the assistant head master, the school has lived up to its former prestige. The patronage of the boys' preparatory school though from all over the country is largely from the leading families of Milton and greater Boston. The spirit of the school is honest, the character of the work thorough, and the boys lead a simple, wholesome life in intimate relations with the masters.

The Powder Point School for Boys, Duxbury, was first opened in 1886 by F. B. Knapp and was formerly almost exclusively a preparatory school for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Henry P. Moulton represents the school proprietors, but the school is leased to Ralph K. Bearce, formerly of the Suffield School.

Edwin Bryant Treat's School during the summer months is located at Oak Bluffs, Marthas Vineyard, and during the six winter months at Helenwood, Tenn., in the midst of a seven-thousand-acre hunting preserve high up in the Cumberland Mountains. A dozen boys from wealthy families are tutored for college.

St. Mark's School was founded in 1865 by Joseph Burnett, a wealthy Boston merchant and manufacturer, who is said to have been inspired by the success of St. Paul's, and by the desire to have a similar school in his own native town of Southborough. Members of the Burnett family have continued on its administrative board watchful of the interests of the school. Beginning with twelve boys the school has at intervals increased its dormitory accommodation and in recent years receives nearly a hundred and fifty. Assured of prestige from the first, it developed steadily in strength and efficiency under the capable management of William E. Peck, head master from 1882 until 1893.

St. Mark's is a Church school of the parental type. A notable feature is that all the school activities are confined to one large building. "That the entire life of the school should be under one roof," one of its masters wrote a few years ago, "its chapel services, study, recitations, eating, and sleeping, means much not only for convenience, but also for community of interest among the boys and between masters and pupils." The boys of the three lower forms do not have separate rooms but occupy dormitories with windowed alcoves.

Though the general policy of St. Mark's was modeled after that of St. Paul's one notable innovation in American school boy life was introduced which has proved a valuable contribution and has been extensively adopted by private schools since established. A modification of the English "Lancastrian Monitorial System" which had its origin in England early in the century was successfully adapted to American conditions. From its opening St. Mark's has had its present system of monitors, six or seven boys chosen from the sixth form who "are the representatives of the school, have certain duties and a general oversight of the life of the boys. They are supposed to stand for the school ideals and to exert their influence and leadership in all school matters."

St. Mark's offers an intimate, proscribed, community life, admission to which is eagerly sought and rigidly restricted. It is distinctly a "fashionable school," as Mr. Arthur Ruhl puts it, "in the sense that socially ambitious parents will move mountains to get their sons admitted, and that a list of the boys' names reads like a rather carefully expurgated Social Register of Boston and New York. There is so long a 'waiting-list' that unless a boy is registered at birth he has little chance for a place." The Rev. William Greenough Thayer, A.B., Amherst '85, A.M., '88, D.D., '07, formerly a master at Groton, has been head master since 1894. A capable manager, administrator, and churchman, he has zealously maintained the tone and high social standing of the school.

The Fay School was founded to prepare young boys for St. Mark's, the year after its opening, by Harriet Burnett and Eliza Burnett Fay, cousins of Joseph Burnett. The present head master, Waldo Burnett Fay, is a son of one of the founders. Mr. Fay was one of the first pupils of the school and after a varied experience in business and teaching took charge of the school in 1896. It is an Episcopal Church school of the parental type, preparatory for St. Mark's, Groton, St. Paul's, Pomfret, and other schools of their class. A strict adherence to English ideals of education is maintained, and thoroughgoing instruction in the traditional school subjects is offered. There are about eighty boys in attendance, three fourths of whom come from New York and Massachusetts.

Groton School was the result of economic causes and a personality. The great accumulation of the wealth of the country, and the further development of social planes caused a further development of the movement which led to the founding of St. Paul's and St. Mark's. It was around the personality of the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody that this fresh development centered, and it resulted in the establishment in 1884 of Groton School. Dr. Peabody, its founder and head master, is a member of the Peabody family of Salem, long prominent in the mercantile and philanthropic life of the country. He was educated in England, graduating from Cheltenham College, took his master's degree at Trinity, Cambridge, in 1880, and after a brief interval of business in Boston, graduated from the Theological Seminary, Cambridge, Mass., in 1884. Dr. Peabody has been described by Mr. Ruhl as "an American with an English school and University training. . . . He is an all-round athlete, and yet a churchman; a scholar and yet a very graceful and sophisticated man of the world. Altogether his is a personality peculiarly fitted to win the confidence and lead the type of boy for whom Groton School was started."

Groton School began with a small number of pupils and masters carefully selected from the social and financial aristocracy of the country. Through a natural inheritance, from friend to friend, rather than from conscious intent, Groton has attained unequalled social prestige. Thus although Groton has always been a class school, this has probably not been the result of conscious effort on Dr. Peabody's part. So long is the waiting-list that as an old graduate expressed it, "A Groton man wires to Dr. Peabody as soon as his son is born. Others generally think a letter is quick enough."

Although largely English in its inspiration and atmosphere, Groton is one of the most remarkable and successful institutions in American education today. It was established with the same earnestness and sincerity of purpose as was any foundation of Puritan times. From every American point of view it is exotic, but it is sincere, and its sincerity commands not only the loyalty of its alumni, but the respect of those least in sympathy with its ideals. Groton attempts to steer a course between the "in loco parentis" plan of St. Paul's and the larger freedom of Andover and Exeter. A modification of the monitorial system which for twenty years has been in successful use at St. Mark's was adopted at Groton and has from the first proved successful, but at Groton the boys are called prefects. A head prefect and six prefects are appointed annually from the upper form. They exercise a considerable measure of influence in the student body, which develops responsibility in the holders of those offices and lessens the load of the masters.

The boys at Groton do not have separate rooms; all except the prefects live in cubicles. The system that is followed at St. Paul's and St. Mark's for the younger boys is here continued through all forms, and Groton's system in this respect has been copied in the newer Middlesex School. Two upper forms are provided with studies and the lower forms study at desks in large school rooms. The relations between master and pupil at Groton are particularly intimate in all branches of school activity. Of recent years an interesting effort at democracy has been made at Groton. A rule has been passed admitting a few boys each year from the West and South upon competitive examinations. The previous environment of these boys, however, must meet such a standard as would be approved by those patrons whose sons enter through the waiting-list.

Scholastic seclusion has been sedulously sought. The buildings, well known for their architectural excellence, stand some two miles from the village on a ridge overlooking the Nashua valley. The most prominent feature is the chapel tower, which dominates the countryside. The chapel, a gift of W. Amory Gardner, who has long been a master in the school, is a notable example of late decorated Gothic.

Red House, a small home school limited to ten boys, opened at Groton in 1913. Under the direction of the head master, Carleton A. Shaw, A.B., Harvard '95, and his assistant the boys are prepared for secondary schools, especially Groton.

Lawrence Academy, Groton, was incorporated in 1793 as The Groton Academy. In 1846 it received its present name in honor of the liberal gifts of Amos and William Lawrence. Coeducational until 1898 it has since, under the present head master, Arthur J. Clough, who entered on his work in 1908, become exclusively a boys' preparatory school giving special attention and aid to the individual. The moderate cost of tuition and numerous scholarships and prizes and the able administration attract about forty boys from far and near.

Worcester Academy, incorporated in 1834, is situated in spacious grounds upon an eminence in the city of Worcester. Dr. Daniel Webster Abercrombie came to the school as head master in 1882. At that time it was a run-down, coeducational academy of the old type. Dr. Abercrombie, a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, had traveled and studied abroad making a special study of foreign secondary schools. Under his able administration and dominating influence Worcester Academy has steadily grown in efficiency, in numbers, and endowment, until today it is a prosperous community of three hundred boys who come from more than thirty states and a dozen foreign countries, though half of them are from the smaller towns of Massachusetts. About two thirds of the graduates enter college, largely Brown. The spirit of the place is ruggedly democratic and American.

Monson Academy, Monson, dates from 1804. It is a boarding school for boys with a coeducational day department. Henry Franklin Dewing, A.B., Harvard, is the principal.

Wilbraham Academy, ten miles east of Springfield, chartered by the Massachusetts Legislature in 1824, is a continuation of Wesleyan Academy chartered at Newmarket, N.H., in 1817. Coeducational through its long history it has been attended by over twenty-five thousand students. The trustees appreciating the changes in the educational field closed the academy in 1911 and, the alumni having raised additional endowment, the school was reorganized and the new Wilbraham formally opened in 1912 under Gaylord W. Douglass, head master. The school affords boarding and day accommodation for sixty boys who come from all sections of the United States. The school prepares especially for college.

Williston Seminary, Easthampton, was established in 1841 by Samuel Williston, a wealthy button manufacturer, whose family have through generations continued their interest and support. In its early history the school was coeducational, but for fifty years it has been exclusively a boys' school. Its educational policy and academic standards were greatly influenced by Professor William S. Tyler of Amherst College. Nearly ten thousand pupils have attended the school since its opening, and its present enrollment is upward of two hundred, many of whom are preparing for college. The present principal, Dr. Joseph Henry Sawyer, A.B., '65, L.H.D., '02, Amherst, has been connected with Williston for nearly half a century.

The Mount Hermon School, Mt. Hermon, started by Dwight L. Moody in 1881, faithfully embodies the vigorous Christianity of its founder. Here every boy has abundant opportunity to get an education, if he is in earnest,—and not otherwise, for each boy must give two hours a day to work, either on the farms or in the buildings. "Mr. Moody undertook to make education possible for every poor boy who was willing to work, by offering a thorough secondary school course with emphasis on the religious motive, at the cost of $70 per term of fifteen weeks. Since the school opened thousands of boys, whose education had been or would otherwise have been neglected, have passed through its portals." The principal is Henry F. Cutler, A.M., who through years of preparation has fitted himself for his large task of administration.

Berkshire School, Sheffield, occupies a beautiful site in a natural amphitheater on the slope of Mt. Everett. It was established in 1907 by Seaver B. Buck, A.B., Harvard '98, who for eight years had been a master at Hackley School. Mr. Buck has a wonderful way in dealing with boys. His vigorous and wholesome methods are admirably supplemented by his wife who is a vital force in the life of the school, though she takes no formal part. It is a school community of homelike wholesomeness conducted like a big family. The directness of the methods, the sincerity of the atmosphere, and the efficiency of the simple organization command the admiration of the boys as well as all who know the school. Each boy has a separate room but two seniors may have in addition a study in common. The upper class men are given a considerable liberty and responsibility to bridge the gap from school to college. Without conscious effort the school achieves much more than mere college preparation, though this latter is met in a scholarly and efficient way. See p. 511.

The Sedgwick School, originated in Hartford seventy-one years ago as Sedgwick Institute and moving to Great Barrington in 1869, was the first school in the Berkshires. Edward J. Van Lennep has for thirty years been its principal.

Hallock School, Great Barrington, was established in 1908 by Gerard Hallock, A.M., for fourteen years previous a master in Hill School. The location is most healthful, and the boys receive individual care and efficient preparation for college in a quiet home atmosphere and pleasant surroundings. See p. 510.

Pine Brook School, Worthington, on the edge of the Berkshires, has been recently established by Miss R. B. Dickinson for a few young boys who need outdoor life or special care.

RHODE ISLAND

The Moses Brown School, Providence, long known as Friends School, adopted its present name in honor of its founder in 1904. It was first opened in 1784 at Portsmouth and reopened at Providence in 1819. A few years later it was liberally endowed by Obadiah Brown, son of the founder. Coeducational through its long history, it is now essentially a college preparatory school for boys. Dr. Seth K. Gifford, a graduate of Haverford College and the University of Halle, has been principal since 1904.

The Morris Heights School is a day school established in 1899 with a small boarding department. The upper and lower schools have a total attendance of about ninety boys. Its close proximity to the country plays an important part in the life of the school. John Shaw French, A.B., Bowdoin '95; Ph.D., Clark, who from 1898 to 1908 was professor of mathematics and for six years a master in Tome Institute, has been principal since 1908. About twenty boys are annually prepared for college.

St. George's School, Middletown, fronting the ocean near Newport, has developed from a private boarding school opened in Newport in 1896 by the present head master, the Rev. John B. Diman, A.B., Brown '85, A.M., '03; A.M., Harvard '96. Previously Mr. Diman had been a minister in charge of St. Columba's Chapel, Middletown, and for three years following a teacher in the University Grammar School, Providence. Mr. Diman is a man of impressive personality, a zealous churchman, and a tactful administrator. He has been successful in inspiring his patrons to liberal gifts toward the equipment of the school, and has built up a well-appointed institution. His supervision of the school is admirably supplemented by the sympathetic interest of his sister, Miss Diman. It is an Episcopal school, showing the influence of the earlier church schools in its prefectorial system, its surpliced choir, and the intimate relations of boys and masters. A special feature of the school is the attention given to nature study and science. The loyalty of its alumni is evidenced by the St. George Clubs at Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, to which its boys go in about equal numbers.

Cloyne House School, Newport, embodies the ideas gathered in England by Dr. Oliver W. Huntington, the founder, in his study of the English schools. Dr. Huntington was formerly an instructor at Harvard. An especially interesting feature is the outdoor winter camp on the school grounds.

CONNECTICUT

The Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, was established and endowed in 1892 by Mrs. Maria Hotchkiss, a native of the region. Edward

G. Coy, its first head, was one of America's great head masters, and in the organization and administration of the school endowed it with high ideals and left a lasting impress of his own fine personality. The Rev. Huber Gray Buehler, A.B., Pa. Coll. '83, A.M., '86, Litt.D., Pa. Coll., who had been a master in the school from its beginning, has since the death of Mr. Coy in 1904 successfully continued the same policy. It has become one of the leading preparatory schools of the country, drawing its patronage from upper-class families of all parts of the United States. The students have a considerable degree of freedom. There is no prefect system. The atmosphere of the school is thoroughly American, and the influence is wholesome and democratic. Though many boys come from wealthy families some forty each year pay no tuition, and those who work their way are received on terms of fraternal equality. Yale influence predominates at Hotchkiss and eighty per cent of the boys go to that college, but of the faculty of twenty-three only eight are Yale men, four are Harvard men, and the remainder are of other universities. There is a strong feeling of loyalty on the part of both alumni and faculty.

Salisbury School, Salisbury, is an Episcopal Church school established in 1901 by the Rev. George Emerson Quaille, Irish by birth and educated at Trinity College, Dublin. The boys come from all parts of the country. The instruction in college preparatory subjects is thorough. The life of the school is concentrated under one roof.

Kent School, established at Kent in 1906 by the Order of the Holy Cross of the Episcopal Church, is something of a departure in American education. It provides a high-class private Church school at low expense. It is intended for the sons of professional men who cannot afford the expensive private school. More than average ability is demanded of its applicants. In scholastic, social, and religious life a spirit of sincerity and democratic service characterizes the whole body. The boys do all the housework outside the kitchen and laundry, and take turns waiting on table. Under a system of self-government the pupils supervise even their own school room. The Rev. Frederick H. Sill, A.B., Columbia '95, a member of the Order, has from the first been head master.

Westminster School, Simsbury, was founded at Dobbs Ferry in 1888, but since 1900 has been in its present location, fifteen miles from Hartford. W. L. Cushing, A.B., Yale '72, A.M., founder and head master, is assisted by his brother C. E. Cushing, A.B., Yale '85, and two sons, C. C. S. Cushing, A.B., Yale '02, and W. S. Cushing, A.B., Yale '08. The atmosphere of the school is simple and sincere and though Yale influence naturally prevails some of its three hundred and fifty graduates have entered Harvard, Williams, Cornell, and other colleges. The alumni are loyal and helpful and have made important gifts to the school. See p. 513.

Connecticut Literary Institution, Suffield, dates from 1833. Following the trend of the times it now emphasizes its boarding department known as THE SUFFIELD SCHOOL, which is exclusively for boys, though girls are still admitted as day pupils. A loyal body of alumni have contributed a small endowment, making possible substantial rather than pretentious aims, at moderate cost. Hobart G. Truesdell has been principal since 1913.

The Loomis Institute, Windsor, had its origin in 1874 when six of the Loomis family provided for a school on what had been, since 1639, the Loomis homestead. At that time a charter was drawn up and the school incorporated. But it was not until 1912 that the accumulated funds of over two millions were available. The trustees then decided to open a non-sectarian school with two separate departments, a day and boarding school for boys and a day school for girls. Nathaniel Horton Batchelder, A.B., Harvard '01, previously a master at Hackley and Hotchkiss, was appointed head master and organized the school, which opened in 1914. In addition to the college preparatory work, courses in agriculture, business, and domestic science are provided. There is a measure of self-government and all the pupils share in the useful labor of the school, performing such tasks as caring for their own rooms and class rooms.

The Taft School is rightly named. It was established in 1890 by Horace D. Taft, a brother of Ex-president Taft, who first located it at Pelham Manor and three years later moved it to Watertown. It is the expression of his personality to which he has given his whole life together with his high ideals of work and scholarship. Mr. Taft graduated from Yale in 1883, and, like his brothers, studied law and was admitted to the bar, but teaching was evidently his fore-ordained vocation for we find him back at Yale, a tutor in Latin from '87 to '90. Mr. Taft has proved himself a great head master. Himself a tremendous worker, he may be said to inspire his boys with industry rather than to exact it of them. But there is no salvation for a boy at Taft except by hard work, and any boy who survives the course of several years at the Taft School is sure to have a well-trained mind. Mr. Taft sympathizes with the life of the boys on the playground as well as in the school room and at once wins their comradeship and confidence by his geniality and large-heartedness. A judicious amount of freedom is a part of his discipline in order that a boy's school life may properly grade into the greater freedom of after life. The boys come from the substantial and well-to-do families throughout the country. About half are from Connecticut and New York, and the Middle West is strongly represented. Naturally a strong Yale influence prevails.

The Gunnery School, Washington, is a school of historic interest opened by Frederick W. Gunn in the late thirties. "There was in it so much of abolitionism and other radical tendencies that it aroused great opposition and was for a time discontinued." "The Gunnery" was founded in 1850 by Mr. Gunn and his wife, Abigail Brinsmade Gunn. Mr. Gunn was a man of broadly religious personality, who dared to belong to no sect at a time when all was sectarian, and in education he followed his own advanced ideas. He made Gunnery one of the prominent schools of his time. Among its patrons were Henry Ward Beecher, Mrs. Stowe, and General John C. Fremont. In his story, "Arthur Bonnicastle," J. G. Holland has set forth the school and its master. Since Mr. Gunn's death in 1881 the school has been conducted by John C. Brinsmade, A.B., Harvard '74, a nephew of Mrs. Gunn, who on graduating from Harvard had come to the school as a teacher and two years later married Mr. Gunn's daughter. They are now assisted by their son, Frederick Gunn Brinsmade, A.B., Harvard '04. The school accommodates sixty boys in residence and a few day pupils from the neighborhood.

The Ridge School was opened in 1894 by William G. Brinsmade, a brother of the principal of the Gunnery School, on adjoining land. Since Mr. Brinsmade's death, six years ago, the school has been conducted by his wife, and since 1912 has been exclusively for boys under fourteen.

Canterbury School, New Milford, especially for boys of Catholic parentage, was opened in 1915 by Dr. Nelson Hume, formerly of the Newman School, N.J. It occupies the beautiful site of the former Ingleside School and is under the patronage of distinguished Catholics.

The Curtis School for Young Boys, Brookfield Center, is a home school for thirty boys. It has been maintained since 1875 by Frederick S. Curtis, Ph.B., Yale, and his wife, and now has the cooperation of their son, Gerald Curtis, Columbia. The strength of the school lies in this cooperation of two generations: the elder Curtis has a genuine love for boys and deep sense of the grave responsibility of a teacher's functions and untiring devotion to the needs of his pupils; the younger Curtis brings to his work a more intimate sympathy with boy life. A strictly parental attitude prevails and Mr. Curtis demands of his patrons perfect freedom in every detail of management, restriction, and discipline.

Rumsey Hall, a school for young boys, was founded by Mrs. Lillian Rumsey Sanford in 1902 at Seneca Falls, N.Y., in her own home. It was moved to Cornwall several years ago. It is still under the general control of Mrs. Sanford, but Louis Henry Schutte, A.B., A.M., Yale, is the present head master.

The Sanford School, Redding Ridge, was founded about ten years ago by Daniel S. Sanford after his long and successful career in the Brookline High Schools. This school will appeal to those parents who "believe that the New England farm of their youth was the best educational institution that America has known, affording opportunities that are scarcely duplicated by the most carefully-planned courses in manual training of our urban schools." Mr. Sanford offers opportunities for individual education and all-round development in a natural wholesome way, free from the artificialities and formalities of usual school life. The influence of the old New England farm and of the New School movement of England and the Continent is here shaped by the personalities and immediate presence of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford.

Ridgefield School, opened by the Rev. Roland Jessup Mulford in 1907, was incorporated the following year. Dr. Mulford, A.B., Harvard '93, LL.B., '96; Ph.D., Johns Hopkins '03, had been a master at St. Mark's and Pomfret and head master of the Country School of Baltimore and the Cheshire School. From the beginning he has elicited the interest and endorsement of men prominent in education and religious life, who have served the school as trustees. The school is Episcopalian.

Brunswick School, Greenwich, is a day school patronized by the families of wealthy New York business men who reside here. Established in 1902 by the present head master, George E. Carmichael, it was three years later incorporated with the assistance of generous residents who appreciated Mr. Carmichael sufficiently to raise the necessary funds for a new and permanent school home. The school has thus been fortunate in having the cordial support of its patrons. Mr. Carmichael is a man with interesting and original ideas on such educational matters as the sequence of courses and arrangement of hours to maintain interest and lessen strain. The school rooms are models in light, in color scheme, ventilation, and seating plan. It is a preparatory school insisting on thorough work, providing instruction throughout the school course. The faculty is especially strong and represents all the leading eastern colleges. Provision is made for a few boys from a distance in private families under the supervision of the principal.

The King School, Stamford, now in its fortieth year, was founded by Hiram U. King and incorporated in 1913. It is a day school patronized largely by the people of Stamford with accommodation for a small number of resident pupils in the home of the head master, Ralph Erskine Rearick, A.B., M.S., Princeton. This school has prepared about one hundred and fifty boys for the leading colleges.

Betts Tutoring School, Stamford. Since the destruction by fire of the old Betts Academy in 1908 Wm. J. Betts has given his time to tutoring for Yale, avoiding the usual cut-and-dried methods in achieving success with hopeless cases.

The Thorpe School, Stamford, established three years ago by Edward O. Thorpe, A.B., Williams '03; A.M., Columbia '11, is a small school offering individual instruction in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe. It aims to teach how to study and how to get results.

The Harstrom School, Norwalk, has been maintained since 1893 by Dr. Carl A. Harstrom, Ph.D., Yale, and since 1899 exclusively as a college preparatory tutoring school.

University School, Bridgeport, is a small school in its twenty-fourth year, offering individual attention, in preparation for college. Vincent C. Peck, A.B., Yale, is the principal.

The Hopkins Grammar School, at New Haven, was established in 1660 as the result of the Hopkins bequest. For nearly fifty years, until Yale came into existence, Hopkins sent its graduates to Harvard, but since that time it has naturally prepared chiefly for Yale College. More than twelve hundred of its alumni have graduated from Yale, including seven of the presidents of Yale. The school under the present rector, Arthur B. Woodford, continues to attract more than one hundred students most of whom come for the last year or two of college preparation. The majority are from New Haven, but a considerable number come from a distance.

The Booth Preparatory and Tutoring School, 124 High St., New Haven, has since 1897 been successful in preparing boys for college examinations, particularly those of Yale. In addition to regular class work, one hour of private instruction each day is given a boy. George A. Booth, Ph.B., Bellevue Coll. '93, is the principal.

The Hargrove School, New Haven, was formerly at Fairfield, Conn.

It is a tutoring school, the charges being in proportion to the amount of tutoring.

The University School, 7 College St., New Haven, has for fifteen years been maintained by George L. Fox, A.M., who previously had for sixteen years been rector of the Hopkins Grammar School. Not a cramming institution it gives thorough individual training for college entrance to a small number of boys whose life is carefully supervised.

Roxbury Tutoring School, New Haven, was taken over in 1911 by J. W. Lowrance, who has built up a strong organization and has had remarkable success. In recent years there have annually been prepared for Yale examinations one hundred boys, of whom ninety-nine per cent were successful.

The Rosenbaum Tutoring School, 262 York St., New Haven, claims that in the last two years out of one hundred and sixty boys prepared for Yale examinations only two have failed to pass.

Hamden Hall, Whitneyville, twenty minutes from the center of New Haven, is a country day school for boys established by Dr. John P. Cushing, A.B., Amherst; Ph.D., Leipzig, formerly principal of the high school in New Haven. In addition to the characteristic program of the American country day school there have been introduced some of the best features of the new educational movements in England and the Continent. The school has already in its fourth season attained success.

The Choate School, Wallingford, was opened in 1896 and named for the Hon. William G. Choate. Mark Pitman was its first master but eight years ago it came into the capable hands of George Clare St. John, A.B., Harvard '02, who had previously been a master in the Hill and Hackley Schools. Both Mr. and Mrs. St. John are wholly devoted to the school and have been successful in the attainment of their purpose to keep a homelike atmosphere. Mr. St. John now owns a controlling interest and under his fostering care the school has had a consistent growth. Something of the spirit of the school is evidenced by the school prayer: "Prosper Thou Oh Lord our labors, and may the good name and influence of this School be handed down from generation to generation for the comfort of this Nation and for Thy glory." There is no one college influence, many universities being represented on the faculty, and in a recent graduating class of twenty, seven different colleges were chosen. An attempt is made to adjust the curriculum to each individual by avoiding a rigid system of forms.

The Cheshire School was founded in 1794 as the Episcopal Academy of Connecticut and during the middle of the nineteenth century played an important part in the education of southern New England. Following the trend after the Civil War it became a military academy. Its alumni include many, like J. Pierpont Morgan, whose names have become prominent. The school is now under private management, having been leased in 1910 to Paul Klimpke, a graduate of Yale and a former master in the Taft School.

Pomfret School was founded by the late Wm. E. Peck in 1894 at Pomfret. After twelve years as head master of St. Mark's School Mr. Peck resigned to establish this school in order that he might more fully carry out his own ideals. Upon his death, which occurred in the winter of 1896-97, the property was taken over by the Rev. Wm. Beach Olmsted, L.H.D., who for ten years had been a master at St. Mark's. Dr. Olmsted's administration has brought great prosperity to the school. His tireless efforts and optimism have secured the interest of many people of wealth and social prominence whose gifts have made the physical equipment of the school comparable to any in the country. Since 1906 the school plant has been almost wholly rebuilt on a carefully thought out plan. Pomfret is a school of the Episcopal Church, attended by about one hundred and thirty boys mostly from the wealthier families of the cities of the East.

MIDDLE STATES AND MARYLAND

NEW YORK CITY

La Salle Academy, 44 E. 2d St., was opened in 1848 under the direction of the Brothers of the Christian Schools. The Rev. Brother Arnold is the principal.

New York Preparatory School, 13 W. 43d St., reorganized in 1893 under its present name by Emil E. Camerer, A.M., LL.B., from an earlier foundation, prepares especially for regents and college examinations. In 1895 the Dwight School was merged with it and is now continued as a day department. A branch is also maintained in Brooklyn. The school gives special attention to those preparing for examinations at moderate cost.

Bovee School, 4 E. 49th St., has for twenty-two years been maintained by Miss Kate Bovee. It is a school of social standing which prepares about thirty boys for the Browning and other schools.

The Browning School, W. 55th St., is in a way unique among the New York day schools. It is a high-class tutoring school to which admission is eagerly sought because of its social prestige and its long-established reputation for efficiency in preparing boys for college. Established in 1887 it has for a generation been presided over by John A. Browning, A.B., Columbia '76, A.M., a man of reserve and conservative tendencies, who has won a clientele of the highest class and has a tremendous hold on both his patrons and his boys. The school occupies three adjoining private houses remodeled in some degree for school purposes. Though the school fees are high enough to tend to exclude all but the wealthy, over one hundred boys are in attendance.

Allen-Stevenson School for Boys, 50 E. 57th St., was established by and continues under the direction of Francis B. Allen, A.B., Harvard, and Robert A. Stevenson, A.B., Princeton. It attracts pupils of various social classes, largely sons of college graduates, because of the special attention given to physical development. The upper school prepares boys for the leading colleges. The better attended lower school takes boys of six or seven and prepares them for the upper grades and for secondary boarding schools.

St. Bernard School, 111 E. 60th St., is a successful school for younger boys with an attendance of about sixty. The afternoon recreation and study feature has recently been introduced and a new building is being erected. The founders and present heads are Francis Tabor and John C. Jenkins. The latter was formerly a popular teacher associated with Mr. Craigie, an Englishman who maintained a school on English lines.

Kirmayer School, 34 E. 60th St., is a school for fifty boys maintained by Frank H. Kirmayer, S.B., Harvard. The boys do good academic work in preparation for boarding schools and colleges.

The Lawrence Smith School for Boys, 111 E. 60th St., first opened in 1915, is for young boys. Mr. Smith, A.B., Harvard '97, A.M., '04, has had an extended experience at preparatory schools, Milton Academy, and St. Paul's, Concord.

The Cutler School, 49 & 51 E. 61st St., a day preparatory school providing instruction from primary to college, was established in 1876 by Dr. Arthur Hamilton Cutler, A.B., Harvard '70; Ph.D., Princeton '85. The school adheres to conservative principles and high standards. It has prepared more than five hundred boys for the leading colleges, the great majority of whom have entered Harvard, Columbia, Yale, and Princeton, the numbers being in the order named. The list of the Cutler School Alumni includes the names of leading families in New York, and many of its former pupils have become prominent in the life of the nation.

St. George's School, 59 E. 64th St., established in 1907, is a small school for young boys, preparing them for secondary schools, giving individual instruction in conversational modern languages and memory training. Herbert L. Picke, the head master, is of English birth.

The Buckley School for Boys, 696 Madison Ave., is a private day school, established in 1913 by Benjamin Lord Buckley, A.B., Columbia, to prepare young boys for leading secondary schools. Boys as young as six are admitted. Mr. Buckley has proved himself exceptionally well fitted in the work of educating younger boys and deserves hearty support.

The Brown School of Tutoring, 241 W. 75th St., opened in 1910, grew out of the summer school established by Frederic L. Brown, B.S., Syracuse, in 1906. It prepares both boys and girls for the leading secondary schools and colleges. There is accommodation for a small number of boarding pupils.

St. Ann's Academy, Lexington Ave. & 77th St., a day and boarding school, has since 1892 been conducted by the Marist Brothers and offers instruction from primary grades to college. Afternoon work, recreation, and exercise are arranged for the day pupils.

Collegiate School, 241 W. 77th St., is the oldest existing private secondary school in the United States, having a continuous history running back to the early settlement by the Dutch of Manhattan Island. Long believed to have been established in 1633, recent research has shown that the first school master began his work in 1638. Established by the Dutch Reformed Church it has long been non-sectarian. For two hundred and fifty years it was maintained as a parish day school, but in 1887 it became a grammar school, at first for boys and girls, in 1891 preparatory, and after 1894 for boys only. The school has occupied many sites progressively northward as the city has developed. The school is administered by a board of trustees and the nineteenth head master, Arthur F. Warren, a graduate of Amherst and a prominent educator, has capably filled that position since 1910.

The Pinneo School for Boys, 801 Madison Ave., in 1914 was opened by Alfred W. Pinneo for younger boys. For twenty years he was with Mr. Browning.

Loyola School, Park Ave. near 83d St., opened by Rev. Neil N. McKinnon in 1900 under the direction of the Jesuits, is a day preparatory school. In 1915 Rev. J. Havens Richards succeeded Rev. David W. Hearn as principal.

Kelvin School, 331 W. 70th St., opened by G. A. L. Dionne, Wooster '93; Columbia '01, the head master, in 1903, is a college preparatory day school. Mr. Dionne is a charming gentleman and his work seems uniformly successful. The classes are small so that much individual attention is given without exclusive tutoring.

Berkeley School, 72d St. & West End Ave., named in memory of George Berkeley, Bishop of Cloyne, is a college preparatory school founded in 1880 and is under a board of trustees of which Wm. H. Brown is president. It was first organized by John Stuart White, LL.D., who was head master for twenty-five years and now head of the Thomas Arnold University School. Six years ago Columbia Institute was purchased by the trustees and merged with the Berkeley School. In 1914 M. S. H. Unger, for many years the head master of the Manlius School, was appointed head master. The school in its long career has sent over seven hundred of its graduates to college. Its clientele embraces some of the best-known families in New York City and elsewhere.

The Carpenter School, 310-312 West End Ave., opened in New York in 1900 by H. Manning Carpenter, continues the work begun at Rochester in 1862 by his father. Mr. Carpenter is an educator of unusual vision and sense of proportion. It is a day school preparing young boys especially for St. George's. The boys are from the well-to-do families who wish for their young children especially able, yet sympathetic supervision. Special stress is laid upon practical manual training and out-of-door life, both handled with sound common sense.

Hamilton Institute for Boys, 599 West End Ave., a day school making a specialty of college preparation, has been maintained since 1892 by the present principal, N. Archibald Shaw, A.B., Hamilton '82, A.M., '85. The school takes a prominent part in athletics. Mrs. Shaw conducts Hamilton Institute for Girls.

The Irving School, 35 W. 84th St., a large day school preparatory to college, has been maintained for a quarter of a century by Dr. Louis D. Ray, A.B., '82, A.M., Columbia; Ph.D., N.Y. Univ. Mr. Ray as a New York boy was fitted for college by F. F. Wilson, now of the Columbia Grammar School, and after graduation served as instructor under his old master in the Wilson and Kellogg School while further preparing himself for his profession. In 1890 at the suggestion of his friend, John A. Browning, Mr. Ray opened The Irving School with Mrs. Ray and Anton Reuter. Miss Brodhead became head of the primary department a year or so later and Mr. Berry of the faculty has served since 1898. They are all together still, and the personality of these people has made the school what it is. Of the two hundred graduates about one hundred and fifty have entered Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia, and other leading colleges.

Franklin School, 18-20 W. 89th St., formerly the Sachs Collegiate Institute, is a day school now in its forty-fourth year. It was founded by Julius Sachs in 1872 and was continued by him until 1904, when he gave up his two schools for girls and boys for his work at Teachers College. The present principal, Dr. Otto Koenig, has been connected with the school since 1896 and continues the traditions and policy which have always characterized the school. Courses are provided from primary to college preparatory.

Trinity School, 139-147 W. 91st St., was founded in 1709 by the venerable "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts" and was endowed in 1796. It was maintained in connection with Trinity Parish until 1806, when the school was incorporated. Conducted at first in the tower of old Trinity Church as an elementary school it has moved uptown with the progress of the residential district and has increased the range of instruction. In 1898 the corporation established a separate school for girls, St. Agatha. It is today a prosperous, endowed day school under the auspices of the Episcopal Church giving instruction from primary to college preparation. The Rev. Lawrence T. Cole has been rector since 1903. Four fifths of the graduates yearly enter the leading colleges.

Columbia Grammar School, 93d St. & Central Park West, was founded in 1764 as a preparatory school to Columbia College. With the college, though no longer directly connected, it has progressively moved uptown as the city has grown. In the middle years of the nineteenth century it rose to high prominence under the able direction of Dr. Anthon, America's earliest classical scholar. The head masters are B. H. Campbell and Francis F. Wilson, formerly head master of the Wilson and Kellogg School, now defunct. They are assisted by a large faculty nearly all of whom, like the head masters, are Columbia men. Naturally its students prepare chiefly for Columbia.

Polytechnic Preparatory School, 99 Livingston St., Brooklyn, founded in 1854, is a well-known, local day preparatory school largely patronized by the people of Brooklyn. It is a department of Polytechnic Institute which in its later years has become largely an engineering college. A large proportion of the pupils are relatives of an earlier generation who attended the school. Francis Ransom Lane, A.M., Dartmouth '81; M.D., Columbia '85, except for an interval of six years has been head master since 1902.

Prospect Heights School, 51 7th Ave., Brooklyn, founded in 1899, is a day school patronized by the younger sons of Brooklyn families. William K. Lane, A.B., Williams '01, is the principal of the school and directs the college preparatory work.

The Flatbush School, Newkirk Ave. & E. 17th St., Brooklyn.

Dwight R. Little, the principal, is a graduate of Williams, with degrees in education from New York University, and was for seven years head of Froebel Academy and previous to that instructor in the Brooklyn Polytechnic.

St. Paul's School, Garden City, is the Diocesan School of Long Island, controlled by the Cathedral Chapter of which the Bishop, the Rt. Rev. Frederick Burgess, is the head. St. Paul's was founded by Mrs. Cornelia M. Stewart as a memorial to her husband, Alexander T. Stewart. Walter R. Marsh, A.B., Harvard '89, the head master, formerly head of the Pingry School, is well known as the author of a series of mathematical text-books. He has brought new life and efficiency to the school and built up a strong patronage largely from Greater New York, though the school attracts a lesser number from the whole United States.

The Barnard School, Fieldston, W. 244th St., a day school for boys established in 1886, is one of a group of four schools, one for girls and two elementary schools, all bearing the same name in honor of a former President of Columbia. Influenced by the country day movement the school in 1912 opened on a new site overlooking Van Cortlandt Park, where the boys are kept occupied throughout the day. William L. Hazen, A.B., LL.B., has been the head master of the Barnard Schools since their establishment. The associate head master is Theodore E. Lyon. The kindergarten and elementary schools are under the direction of Katharine H. Davis. One hundred and fifty boys have entered the leading colleges from this school.

Horace Mann School, Fieldston, W. 246th St., was established as a model and experimental school in connection with Teachers College, a department of Columbia. First opened in 1887, it was coeducational until 1914. In 1914 the boys' school was separated and removed to a new site opposite the playgrounds of Van Cortlandt Park, where it now offers all the facilities of the boys' country day school to pupils in the last six years of college preparation. Ninety per cent of the pupils prepare for college and eighty per cent enter. Virgil Prettyman, A.B., Dickinson '92, A.M., '95, Ph.D., '05, has been the principal since 1895. The upper school for boys over twelve is located at Riverdale.

Massee Country School, Lawrence Park, Bronxville, is a boarding school with a department for day pupils, conducted on the country day plan. Dr. W. Wellington Massee, A.M., Columbia; Ph.D., Christian Coll., has had long experience in tutoring boys of the leading New York families for college entrance examinations.

Riverdale Country School was opened nine years ago by Frank S. Hackett in response to the demand of New York families for a nearby country day and boarding school. Following the country day school plan, which this school instituted in New York, the boy's whole day is utilized in school work and outdoor occupations. Pupils return home each night, or for week-ends, or remain at the school continuously. The patronage is chiefly from Greater New York, Yonkers, and vicinity. Howell North White, assistant head master, has taught at the Hill School for ten years. See p. 510.

The Kohut School for Boys is conducted on the plan of the country day and boarding schools, at Riverdale-on-Hudson. It was founded in 1908 by Dr. G. A. Kohut, succeeding a school of long standing and is now conducted by Harry J. Kugel, A.B., Yale, and Henry Friedrich, A.B., N.Y.U. It draws its patronage from the Jewish families of New York City and its suburbs.

Heathcote School, founded at Harrison in Westchester County in 1901 by Arthur De Lancey Ayrault, A.B., Columbia, has attained a position of some social prominence. It is a large school for young boys having a resident department of twenty-five.

Roger Ascham School, White Plains, was established about six years ago by Mrs. Joseph Allen (Annie Winsor), a sister of the Winsors of Boston. Mrs. Allen is an able woman with sound and clearly defined ideas on education of children, and author of an inspiring book, "Home, School, and Vacation." The Roger Ascham School was established to put these views into practice and has met with marked and merited success. It is a day school for both boys and girls of all ages from kindergarten to college. To provide for the demand a branch school at 129 E. 79th St., New York City, has been opened for fifty boys and girls under eleven. Since 1915 Ralph I. Underhill has been chief master.

Kyle School, Irvington-on-Hudson, maintained by Dr. Kyle since 1890, is a small semi-military boarding school for boys of all ages. The school also conducts a camp in the Catskills.

The Holbrook School, founded at Ossining, N.Y., in 1866 by the Rev. David A. Holbrook, Ph.D., has remained continuously in the Holbrook family and is today being conducted by Dr. Holbrook's sons and grandson. Dr. Holbrook was especially fitted to win the confidence and affection of boys, and the school attained an acknowledged position among the secondary institutions of its section largely as the result of his personality. Dr. Holbrook's sons have since his death in 1898 continued the administration of their father and in 1907 a grandson became associate head master. The wives of the principals play an important part in the social life of the school.

The Stone School, Cornwall-on-Hudson, is a home school for young boys, established in 1867 and since 1887 has been under the control of the Rev. Carlos H. Stone. Four years ago Alvan E. Duerr, A.B., Williams '93, became associate head master and contracted to take over the school as Dr. Stone gradually withdrew. Mr. Duerr had had a broad experience in secondary schools at Exeter, Penn Charter, and Brooklyn Polytechnic, and brought to the school enthusiasm for his profession. He is a progressive Episcopalian much interested in settlement work and has been both president of the School Masters' Association and secretary of the Head Masters' Association. Mr. Duerr is opening new educational possibilities to increase the boys' individual efficiency by discovering with the aid of modern medical science the physical cause for mental inefficiency. The school recognizes the genuine educational value of the Boy Scout movement, and its location on a spur of Storm King Mountain affords opportunity for the teaching of woodcraft and weekly hikes. The boys come largely from the vicinity of New York, though a considerable proportion are from widespread regions.

The Hackley School, Tarrytown-on Hudson, founded under Unitarian influence and generously endowed by Mrs. Caleb Brewster

Hackley, is administered by a board of trustees. Opened in 1899 with the Rev. Theodore C. Williams as head master there were frequent changes in the management, until in 1908 Walter Boutwell Gage, Exeter, and A.B., Harvard '94, who had been an instructor in the school since 1900, became head master. Mr. Gage is a man of vigorous personality and democratic ideals, open-minded to educational advance, enthusiastic, and devoted to the school. During his régime the school has prospered. It is distinctly a college preparatory school drawing boys from well-to-do families of the northern states, but funds are available for the assistance of boys of inadequate means. The lower school, about half a mile distant, is a separate institution though under the same administration.

Blake Country School, opened at Tarrytown in 1908, offers individual instruction for twenty-five resident pupils. It is an offshoot of the Blake School of New York City, which has existed under varied managements since 1883. A few years ago the school was taken over by Willis G. Conant.

The Irving School, Tarrytown, was established in 1837 and has for the last twenty-two years been owned and operated by John M. Furman, A.B., Union Coll. '89, A.M., '92.

Repton School for Young Boys, Tarrytown, was opened in 1906 under the management of O. C. Roach and Mrs. L. M. Henly, on a part of the old Gould estate. Mr. Roach is an Englishman of quiet but definite personality with the ideals of the modern English school. Boys are accepted as young as seven and are prepared for secondary schools.

Pawling School was established by Frederick L. Gamage under conditions which assured its success from the start. Dr. Gamage, A.B., Brown '82; D.C.L., Hobart '98, had for fourteen years been head master of St. Paul's School, L.I. In 1907 he withdrew with many of the faculty, some of whom still remain with him, and established at Pawling a new school which opened the first year with eighty-five of his former pupils. As a memorial to his son who had died while a pupil of Dr. Gamage's at St. Paul's, George B. Cluett established the Cluett foundation which made possible the new buildings. The confidence felt in Dr. Gamage by his patrons has resulted in further generous gifts and endowments. The boys come largely from New York and adjacent states.

Riverview Academy, Poughkeepsie, dates from 1836, and was known as the Poughkeepsie Collegiate School until 1867. In 1862, following the trend of war times, the school was reorganized on a military basis and it was thus continued for fifty years under the name of Riverview Military Academy. In 1915 it was sold by Clement C. Gaines and is now under the management of F. C. Wheeler and G. G. Sawyer.

The Raymond Riordon School opened in 1914 at Chodikee Lake in the Southern Catskills, Highland. Mr. Riordon, late of Interlaken School, attempts to get away from the formalism of the traditional school, to utilize the arts and crafts, and to stimulate constructive activity without essential neglect of academic instruction or college preparation. Lessons, industrial activities, and play are all conducted as much as possible in the open air.

Hoosac School, on the edge of the Berkshires, is closely associated with the Episcopal Church, its whole order being regulated and influenced by religious teaching. It was incorporated under a board of trustees in 1903 and the Rev. Edward D. Tibbits is the rector.

Christ Church School, Kingston-on-Hudson, is an Anglican residential school of the English type for young boys, none over fourteen being accepted. It was established as a day school in 1910 by its present rector, the Rev. J. Morris Coerr, St. Stephen's Coll., and the principal, M. F. Elder, Trinity and Univ. of Toronto.

Albany Academy, founded in 1813, has in the last twenty-five years prepared over three hundred boys for the leading colleges and scientific schools. Henry P. Warren has been the principal since 1887. The attendance is almost wholly local. Military drill is required of all and a cavalry troop is maintained.

La Salle Institute, Troy, conducted by the Brothers of the Christian Schools, was founded in 1853 and incorporated in 1891. Though Roman Catholic, it receives both Protestant and Catholic students. In addition to the usual studies, commercial subjects and military drill are features of the school.

Woodland School for Boys, Phoenicia, established three years ago by Erwin Spink, is a home school characterized by a wholesome outdoor life. There are twenty-five boys from New York State.

Mackenzie School, Monroe, Orange County, was established by the Rev. James Cameron Mackenzie in 1901. Dr. Mackenzie was born in Scotland but educated at Phillips Exeter, Lafayette College, and Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1882 he reorganized the Lawrenceville School and administered it for eighteen years, resigning in 1899 to organize the Tome School. In 1901, with the financial assistance of J. Scott McComb and other friends of the school, he established the present school at Dobbs Ferry. In 1914 to provide for a larger growth the school was removed to Monroe, in the Ramapo region of Orange County, forty-eight miles from New York City. The enrollment is representative of the whole country. There is a junior department and a summer quarter. See p. 516.

The Mountain School, at Allaben in the Catskills, is an open-air school for fifty boys established in 1908 by Dr. Elias G. Brown, A.B., M.D., Columbia Univ.

The Adirondack-Florida School, founded in 1903 by the late Paul C. Ransom, inaugurated the plan of spending the spring and fall in the Adirondacks and the winter months in Florida. For six preceding winters Mr. Ransom had taken a group of boys to the present winter home, Coconut Grove, on the east coast of Florida south of Palm Beach. The fall and spring terms are on Rainbow Lake, Post Office Onchiota, Franklin Co., N.Y. It is a successful tutoring school accommodating twenty pupils from leading families of the East. Upon the death of Mr. Ransom in 1907 L. H. Somers, A.B., Yale, became the head master.

The Lake Placid School, established in 1905 by John M. Hopkins, A.B., who had formerly been a teacher in the Hill and Adirondack-Florida Schools, follows the plan of the latter. The school spends the spring and autumn on Mirror Lake, Lake Placid, the winter at Coconut Grove on the Biscayne Bay, Florida.

Cascadilla School, Ithaca, was founded in 1870 by Prof. Lucien A. Wait, of Cornell, to afford special instruction for boys preparing for that college. From 1893 to 1914 Charles V. Parsell, A.M., St. Lawrence Univ. '81, was in control. He was succeeded by W. D. Funkhouser, A.B., Wabash; A.M., Cornell.

Somes School, maintained by Albert Somes, A.B., Bowdoin, at Aurora, receives boys as young as eight years, and fits them for the secondary schools. The pupils are drawn for the most part from the central part of New York State, where the school has an established reputation, and they are under the constant personal care of both Mr. and Mrs. Somes.

Nichols School, Amherst & Colvin Streets, Buffalo, a country day school for boys of Buffalo and vicinity founded in 1892 by the late William Nichols, was incorporated 1909 and moved to its present site, where it offers all the opportunities, outdoors and in, for its all-day work. The capacity of the school is a hundred and fifty. Joseph Dana Allen, A.B., Vermont '93; A.M., Harvard '97, the head master since 1909, was formerly head master of the De Lancey School, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY

Stevens School, Hoboken, the academic department of the Stevens Institute of Technology, is preparatory for that institution. An earlier existing school was reorganized and taken over by the trustees in 1870. It is a day school enrolling over three hundred students, chiefly from the vicinity of New York City. Frank L. Sevenoak, A.M., Princeton; M.D., College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia, is the principal, and the Rev. Edward Wall, A.M., has been the principal emeritus since 1907.

Newman School, Hackensack, draws its sixty pupils from the Roman Catholic families of wealth in all parts of the United States. It was established in 1900 under the patronage of the Archbishop of New York.

Montclair Academy embodies the educational ideals and methods of J. G. MacVicar, A.M., Ypsilanti State Normal School '81, the present head master, under whose management the school was established twenty-five years ago. A steady growth in local patronage has marked the school's career. The fact that several of the faculty have been with Mr. MacVicar during the greater portion of the life of the school has greatly assisted him in developing his methods, and has given the school a better defined personality than is commonly found in young institutions.

Kingsley School, Essex Fells, was established in 1900 by James R. Campbell, A.M., Coe. Mr. Campbell's undergraduate education was received in Edinburgh and the Stevens School. He has had a broad educational experience as a teacher in secondary work in Stevens School, Pratt Institute, and Tome Institute, and in college work at both Coe and Rutgers. It is a college preparatory school for sixty boys. The patronage is largely from New York and New Jersey with a number from more widespread regions. See p. 514.

Newark Academy, founded in 1792 by gifts of citizens of Newark, is an endowed day school for boys, offering instruction from primary up to college. Samuel A. Farrand, for forty years head master from 1859, was one of America's great masters of a profession, and in his long régime greatly strengthened the school. In 1901 he was succeeded by his son, Wilson Farrand, A.B., Princeton '86, A.M., '89. The patronage is largely from Newark and the surrounding towns, including the Oranges.

Carteret Academy, Orange, stands on land originally granted to Sir George Carteret. It was established in 1901 by Dr. David A. Kennedy and Charles A. Mead, A.B., Yale, who in their long connection with the till then coeducational Dearborn-Morgan School saw the need for a boys' school in the community. With the encouragement and financial assistance of public-spirited citizens of the Oranges a corporation was formed. In 1906 Dr. Kennedy resigned and his place was taken by Oscar A. Beverstock, A.B., Amherst, formerly in charge of the Robbins School at Norfolk, Conn., and later a master in the Hotchkiss School. An elementary department was added three years ago so that now the school includes ten forms.

Summit Academy, twenty-one miles from New York City, may be said to have begun in 1885 when the school came under the charge of the present principal, James Heard, A.M., Columbia. In 1895 its location was changed and the former military system abandoned. It is a small day school but resident pupils not exceeding eight are received in the family of the principal.

Carlton Academy, Summit, is a boarding and day school conducted for the past nine years by Charles H. Schultz, A.M. It offers college preparatory and business courses. The aim is to train boys in the Roman Catholic faith, to give them individual attention in their studies, with home care for the younger boys. See p. 514.

Pingry School is a day school at Elizabeth, founded in 1861 by the Rev. John F. Pingry, Ph.D., one of the great teachers of his day. It continued under his direction until 1892 when it was incorporated. It has not outgrown the possibility of small classes, and boys are thoroughly prepared for the leading colleges. Walter R. Marsh, for seven years head master, was succeeded in 1907 by S. Archibald Smith, A.B., Univ. of Michigan, who resigned in 1915, and was succeeded by David Magic, Jr., formerly assistant head master of Newark Academy.

Mr. Leal's School for Boys, Plainfield, is a small day school established in 1882 by the present principal, which has won an excellent reputation for college preparation.

Morristown School, thirty miles from New York City among the hills of northern New Jersey, was established in 1898 by a group of prominent men and is administered by a board of trustees, with an advisory board. Francis Call Woodman, A.B., Harvard '88, is head master and secretary of the board of trustees. It is a college preparatory school for both boarding and day pupils, and is attended by about seventy-five boys largely from New York and New Jersey, but also with a scattering from all over the country. Through a committee of seven boys, elected by the students themselves, the school is governed in virtually all its activities.

Morris Academy was founded in Morristown in 1791 by citizens of the town as a classical day school for boys. In 1899 the school was reorganized by the present principal, Harry W. Landfear, who has degrees from Amherst and Yale. In a recent year eight boys entered Princeton and Harvard with more than usual success.

Blair Academy, Blairstown, was founded and liberally endowed in 1848 by John I. Blair under Presbyterian influences and was long known as Blair Presbyterian Academy. The school, long coeducational, in 1915 became exclusively a boys' school. The Rev. John C. Sharpe, A.B., Univ. of Wooster '83, A.M., '87, D.D., LL.D., principal since 1898, has had a long educational experience and was for fourteen years previously connected with Shady Side Academy, Pittsburgh.

Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick, was established in 1766, the same year as the college which was then known as Queen's. Originally known as "The Grammar School" it has always been preparatory to that college, but in recent years an increasing number of its pupils have gone to other institutions. William P. Kelly, a graduate of Dartmouth, became head master in 1911 after successful experience in the public and private schools of New England. Mrs. Kelly is house mother.

The Lawrenceville School, now in its 107th year, is essentially young. The present school on the John C. Green Foundation was chartered in 1881. It was a reorganization of an earlier school established in 1810 by Isaac Brown, a Presbyterian clergyman. From 1839 to 1878 under the management of the Revs. Samuel and Hugh Hamill, it prospered as the Lawrenceville Classical and Commercial High School and during that time enrolled 2500 pupils. John C. Green, who had been one of the original pupils, amassed a fortune in the China trade, and leaving it without restrictions, his executors determined upon the establishment of an endowed preparatory school for boys. They purchased the Lawrenceville School and Dr. James Cameron Mackenzie, appointed head master, organized the new school, which reopened in 1884.

Dr. Mackenzie proved himself an organizer of no ordinary ability and gave to Lawrenceville its present characteristic policy. During his administration and that of Charles Ewing Green, the sole surviving residuary legatee and President of the Board of Trustees, the school greatly prospered. He introduced the English "house" system, then a novel feature in American schools, which has since been widely copied by other American private schools. The boys below the upper form occupy separate houses, each presided over by a master and his wife, assisted by an unmarried master. Every house is a home unit, and there are inter-house instead of inter-class contests in athletics. The effect of this system has been to preserve and foster individuality, a problem difficult to attain otherwise in an institution containing four hundred pupils. In the "Upper House," for the boys of the Fifth form, there is more personal freedom than in the masters' houses; the discipline is largely in the hands of the boys, in order that they may the better prepare themselves for the greater freedom of college life.

Lawrenceville is today one of the larger popular preparatory schools of the country, attracting four hundred boys, largely of the "second generation," from all parts of the country. Financial aid is extended to a few boys, but the names of these are not divulged. The school though non-sectarian has Presbyterian traditions, which, together with proximity, incline forty per cent of the students to choose Princeton as their university. The atmosphere is intensely American, and to the boy of character and independence of spirit, Lawrenceville offers an opportunity to work out his salvation along lines much as in the outside world.

Boy life at Lawrenceville, more than at any other American school, has some of the features of the life at the great English public schools. It has developed a local vocabulary and evolved time-honored customs. Arthur Ruhl, who alone has written critically of American schools, mentions as characteristic "among Lawrenceville's historical exhibits, the Jigger Shop, a semi-scholastic refreshment parlor kept by a Jersey philosopher who has learned the tastes of boys." The picturesque side of Lawrenceville life has been portrayed in numerous stories by its best-known literary alumnus.

Henry W. Green, grand-nephew of the founder and President of the Board of Trustees, is devoted to the school's interests. The Rev. Simon John McPherson has for eighteen years as head master successfully administered the school and surrounded himself with a strong staff of instructors.

Princeton Preparatory School has for thirty-nine years had great success in preparing boys for the universities, particularly Princeton. John B. Fine, A.B., Princeton, is the head master. There are over sixty boys in attendance coming from all over the country.

The Princeton Summer School, now in its twenty-fourth year, has since 1906 been conducted by C. R. Morey, A. M. Hildebeitel, and H. D. Austin with a permanent staff of experienced tutors. Over eight hundred boys have been prepared for Princeton, of whom only thirty-one have failed to enter. See p. 518.

The Pennington School, eight miles from Trenton, recently celebrated its Diamond Jubilee. The school was established by the Methodist Conference and through the efforts of the Rev. John Knox Shaw, who raised a large fund, was located at Pennington. It is a moderate-priced boys' preparatory school. Most of the boys come from New York and New Jersey. There are eight thousand living alumni many of whom have distinguished themselves in public life. Frank MacDaniel, A.B., A.M., D.D., Dickinson; B.D., Drew Theol. Sem., is a capable head master.

The Peddie Institute, Hightstown, midway between New York and Philadelphia, began as early as 1864, but in 1879 was endowed and chartered under its present name in honor of its benefactor, the Hon. Thomas B. Peddie. In 1898 Roger W. Swetland, M.E., Pa. State Normal School; A.M., Univ. of Rochester, became head master and under his able administration it has greatly prospered. Its endowments make possible an efficient faculty and thorough instruction at moderate cost. In 1908 it was made a school for boys exclusively and since then its attendance has increased from eighty to three hundred and thirty-five boys who come mostly from New York and New Jersey while representing thirty other states. Ninety per cent of the graduates yearly enter such colleges as Princeton, Yale, Harvard, Cornell, and Brown.

Lakewood School, Lakewood. Mr. Elmer E. Wentworth, A.B., A.M., Harvard, accepts six boys in his family for college tutoring. Formerly of Adelphi Academy and Vassar, he has much more to offer than most tutoring schools.

Pine Lodge, Lakewood. Frank L. Olmsted has for twelve years taken into his family ten boys, giving them a broad training and simple life, a minimum of formal lessons, a good deal of play-acting and woodcraft,—a sort of laboratory course in education.

PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA

The William Penn Charter School was opened in 1689, as the result of an intention which Governor Penn had declared previously. It received three Charters from William Penn, the first in 1701 of the same date (October 25, 1701) as the Charter of Philadelphia, the second in 1708 and the third and final one in 1711. The school is still conducted under the Charter of 1711. This Charter provided for "the good education of youth and their early instruction in the principles of true religion and virtue, qualifying them to serve their Country and themselves, by breeding them in reading, writing, and learning of languages and useful arts and sciences, suitable to their age, sex, and degree."

For the first few years the school was under the joint control of the Meeting and the Board, but this plan of conducting the school proving unsatisfactory, Penn, then in England, determined to place the management of the school upon an independent basis under the sole control of a self-perpetuating body of fifteen men. Hence the Charter of 1711.

It is a city day school for boys with an attendance of three hundred and fifty from the substantial families of Philadelphia. A high standard of academic work has long been maintained through the nine-year college preparatory course.

Richard Mott Jones, LL.D., Haverford and the Univ. of Penn., a member of the Society of Friends, has since 1875 been head master. Under the control of his dominating personality the school has prospered and enrolls and prepares for college an increasing number of boys from year to year. See p. 520.

The Academy of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Locust and Juniper Sts., a day school locally known as The Episcopal Academy, was founded in 1785. The De Lancey School, with which the Blight School four years previously had been merged, was in 1915 consolidated with it, Coleman P. Brown, the former head master, becoming a trustee and most of the masters and boys joining the academy. On the resignation of Dr. Wm. H. Klapp, who had been on the staff of the academy since 1871, the Rev. Philip J. Steinmetz, Jr., A.B., Harvard '01, was elected head master.

Brown College-Preparatory School, Broad & Cherry Sts., was established over thirty years ago by Alonzo Brown, a graduate of Haverford College. His brother, George J. Brown, has been associated with him for more than a quarter of a century.

The Cedarcroft School, Kennett Square, was established ten years ago by the present head master, Jesse Evans Philips, a graduate of Haverford, and formerly a teacher in Worcester Academy. The school offers a home life for forty boys on the former country estate of Bayard Taylor. Mrs. Philips presides over the home life of the school.

Maher Preparatory School, 837 Witherspoon Bldg., established by John F. Maher in 1903, is a small tutoring school offering college preparation and courses preparatory to medicine, dentistry, and pharmacy.

The Spiers Junior School, Devon, was opened in 1914 by Mark H. C. Spiers, a graduate of Haverford, who had for five years previously been a teacher in the William Penn Charter School. It is a junior school for boys between eight and fifteen years of age accommodating a limited number of boarders, and the work prepares for leading secondary schools.

St. Luke's School, Wayne, is an Episcopal school which had its beginnings in 1863 as the "Ury House School." Charles Henry Strout, A.B., Dartmouth '80, A.M., '83, came to the school as a teacher of mathematics in 1880 and in 1884 became head master and reorganized the school under its present name. In 1902 the school was removed to its present site in the open country, fourteen miles from Philadelphia. For thirty-two years the school has revolved around Mr. Strout's dominating personality and he has shown himself most successful in handling men and dealing with boys. See p. 519.

The Haverford School, nine miles west of Philadelphia, combines the advantages of the country day and boarding school. Its aim is distinctively college preparatory. Founded in 1884, under the auspices of Haverford College, it later became an independent organization and is non-denominational. The President of Haverford College is, however, still president of the advisory board of the school. The school is in a quiet, dignified environment, a quarter of a mile from the College. Its graduates number more than four hundred, nearly all of whom have entered colleges and universities of the East. The head master, Edwin M. Wilson, A.B., Guilford Coll. '92; A.M., Haverford Coll. '94, has been connected with the school since 1895.

Chestnut Hill Academy, one mile south of Chestnut Hill, a northern suburb of Philadelphia, was chartered in 1861 under Episcopalian influence and the Bishop of Pennsylvania is president of the board of trustees. James L. Patterson, Ph.B., Lafayette '77, previously an instructor in Hill and Lawrenceville Schools, has been head master since 1897. It is a boarding and day preparatory school for boys with a large local patronage. The day pupils have all the advantages of the modern country day school.

Montgomery School, Wynnewood, Pa., is a country day school providing instruction for boys from seven years old upward opened in 1915 by the Rev. Gibson Bell, A.B., Harvard; B.D., Cambridge Theol. Sch., formerly head master of St. Stephen's School, Colorado Springs, and master at St. Paul's, Concord, N.H.

Germantown Academy, founded by the citizens of Germantown in 1760, is a day school under the control of a board of trustees chiefly residents of that aristocratic suburb of Philadelphia. It possesses perhaps the oldest school building in the country which has been devoted continuously to secondary education, and has been endowed by legislative act and by individual contributions. Samuel E. Osbourn succeeded William Kershaw as head master in 1915.

Swarthmore Preparatory School, Swarthmore, was founded in 1892 and is owned by Arthur H. Tomlinson, the present head master, a member of the Hicksite branch of the Society of Friends. Formerly coeducational, it has recently followed the trend of the times and become exclusively a preparatory school for boys. Mr. Tomlinson gives the school a conscientious capable administration. The proximity to Swarthmore College offers many advantages.

Yeates School, Lancaster, was founded by the Rev. Dr. Coit, afterward the first rector of St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H. This is a Church school endowed in 1857 by Miss Catherine Yeates in memory of her father, the Hon. Jasper Yeates, Judge of the Supreme Court. In 1915 J. H. Schwacke succeeded the Rev. Frederic Gardiner, head master since 1899.

Franklin and Marshall Academy, Lancaster, had its beginnings as the preparatory department of Franklin College founded in 1787. It was the result of a plan for an academy, first proposed by Benjamin Franklin as early as 1743. In 1872, nineteen years after the merger of Marshall and Franklin Colleges, the preparatory department became a separate institution. The ownership and administration of the academy are vested in the board of trustees of the college, but the school has its own management, faculty, buildings, equipment, and life apart from the college. While sufficiently removed from the college to avoid too intimate intercourse its proximity secures the students many advantages. The four-year college preparatory course is attended by about two hundred students chiefly from Pennsylvania. The principals, Thaddeus G. Helm and Edwin M. Hartman, are both graduates of the college. The former has been connected with the academy for more than twenty years and has been principal since 1897. See p. 515.

The Hill School, Pottstown, has long been regarded by many discriminating parents as the best preparatory school in the country, and because of this it has grown perhaps too large to justify the superlative. Established by the Rev. Matthew Meigs in 1851 it prospered under its founder but owes its great success to the executive capacity of his son, Dr. John Meigs, who reorganized the school in 1876, and to whose genius it remains a lasting monument. An eye for results and a passion for thoroughness characterized his management and resulted in the system which remains intact today. John Meigs is to be numbered among the few great American head masters. After his death in 1911 Dr. Rolfe became head of the school. For a time its friends thought there was a let-down in the school efficiency. In 1915 Dwight R. Meigs became head master and gives evidence that he inherits his father's executive ability. Under the third generation there has been an energetic tightening-up and the veterans of the faculty feel there is more of the spirit of the old days.

The school has no endowments and does not attract attention by the unusual or by special emphasis on any phase of its life or work.

As one of its friends rather bluntly put it, "It is neither the fad of any social set, nor the pet of any religious denomination." The standard of work is such that "The Hill School masters good-humoredly sigh now and then at the pace they have to keep, but it is a matter of record that few Hill graduates fail to pass their college entrance examinations." They are unusually successful, too, among college undergraduates.

Hill is proud of her boys and the families from whom they come. Thirty-nine pages out of the sixty-two page catalog are given over to the lists of boys, the alumni association, and past patrons who represent wealth, intellect, and social prominence in all parts of the country. Hill boys are proud of their school, too, and all applicants for admission must furnish references to or endorsement by old boys or their parents.

Mrs. John Meigs, familiarly and affectionately known as "Mrs. John," has played a most important part in the upbuilding of Hill. A woman of strong personality and deep religious feeling, she is in personal touch with the boys of the school. "Mrs. Meigs came to the school as a bride," as Arthur Ruhl says, "and she has grown up a part of that little court-year life. At twelve each morning when the boys are nibbling sandwiches, the masters drift into her cheerful drawing-room for tea and coffee and some of her famous cinnamon buns. Here, too, after the game with Hotchkiss, I watched the football team, looking absurdly small and boyish in their everyday clothes, learning manners and being fed with tea and cakes and tactful praise. And the discussions about their future which these young men have with Mrs. Meigs in the 'sky parlor' are matters of daily school life."

Allentown Preparatory School, formerly the academic department of the Lutheran Muhlenberg College, became a separate institution in 1904 under its present name. It is a preparatory boarding and day school for boys who come chiefly from the region round about and some who come from foreign countries under missionary influences. Most of the two hundred graduates of the past ten years have entered the Pennsylvania colleges. In 1915 the school opened with an entirely new equipment. Frank G. Sigman, A.B., A.M., Lafayette, has been the principal since 1913.

Bethlehem Preparatory School, in the Lehigh valley fifty-seven miles from Philadelphia, was established in 1878. Though under Episcopalian auspices it is not rigidly sectarian. In 1915 J. M. Tuggey succeeded H. E. Foering, who had been head master for eighteen years. The school accommodates about seventy-five boarding students and an equal number are drawn as day pupils from nearby towns. Over fourteen hundred graduates have entered college from this school.

Nazareth Hall was first opened by the Moravian Church in 1759 at Nazareth as a boarding school for the youth of that denomination, but its history reaches back even further. The first building was erected in 1755 as a Manor House for the Silesian Count Zinzendorf. Fifteen years before that the Methodist preacher, Whitefield, then at the zenith of his activity, had projected a boys' school on this site. The estate had originally been granted by William Penn in 1682 to his daughter, Letitia, as the barony of Nazareth, on the condition of rendering service to him and his heirs forever by paying, if demanded, a red rose in June of each year. At first the language was German but English soon took the first place. "The institution became widely known for the excellence of its instruction and discipline. Pupils came from neighboring states, from Europe, and in considerable numbers from the West Indies. In the first twenty-five years of the school's existence two hundred and ninety-five boys were entered, eighty-three of whom were Moravians."

With a brief interregnum during the American Revolution the school has continued under Moravian auspices for more than a century and a half. During the Civil War military discipline was established and has since been continued as part of the school life. Two hundred and six of the school's graduates served in the Civil War. The school today draws largely locally and prepares chiefly for Lafayette, Lehigh, and Bethlehem. Though still under the control of the Moravian Church the school is non-sectarian. The head master is Rev. S. J. Blum.

Hillman Academy, Wilkes-Barre, established in 1878 as Wilkes-Barre Academy, has since 1883 borne its present name in memory of an old student. In 1914 it was reorganized along modern lines. Frederick H. Somerville, who was then appointed head master, had previous experience at the Lawrenceville and William Penn Charter Schools. Since that time the school has prospered.

Harrisburg Academy dates from 1784 when, immediately after the founding of the town, John Harris and other citizens subscribed for an academy where "English and German should be taught." Incorporated in 1809 it has since been governed by a board of trustees. The growth of the city has six times necessitated the removal of the school. Originally the old type of coeducational academy, it has become exclusively a boys' college preparatory school with a dormitory for resident pupils. Arthur E. Brown is the head master.

Conway Hall, Carlisle, is a boarding and day preparatory school which had its beginnings in 1783 as the "Grammar School" in connection with Dickinson College. Since its reorganization in 1877 it has received numerous gifts and endowments. Andrew Carnegie gave money for a new building and at his request the school was renamed in honor of the distinguished traveler and writer, Moncure D. Conway, an alumnus of the class of '49. The president of the board of trustees is the president of Dickinson College.

The Mercersburg Academy, dating from 1836, remained a purely local institution until the present head master, Dr. William M. Irvine, took charge in 1893. Dr. Irvine was educated at Phillips Exeter and Princeton and afterward made a special study of such English "public schools" as Rugby, Eton, and Harrow. He has organized Mercersburg following the best traditions of Exeter and incorporating some of the features of the English schools. Under the vigorous and able administration of Dr. Irvine the school has grown to an almost national patronage. Each year the academy sends more than one hundred boys to college, and during Dr. Irvine's administration Mercersburg boys have entered ninety-five different colleges and universities in this and other lands. A notable innovation is a modification of the Princeton preceptorial system. Five college men have recently been engaged who hold no formal classes but assist the laggards to keep up in their work. There is a rugged vitality about Mercersburg, and the atmosphere of the school remains intensely democratic.

Bellefonte Academy, Bellefonte, was organized and incorporated by the legislature in 1805. The academy has steadily grown. The Rev. James Potter Hughes, the head of the academy for forty-five years, was succeeded in 1900 by his son, James R. Hughes.

Kiskiminetas Springs School, Saltsburg, fifty miles east of Pittsburgh, is a boarding and day preparatory school that has had twenty-six years of uninterrupted growth. It draws nearly two hundred students not only locally but from the surrounding states. The school is under the direction of A. W. Wilson, Jr.

Shady Side Academy is a prosperous and growing day preparatory school for boys patronized by the leading families of Pittsburgh. It had its inception in a private school established in Allegheny as early as 1881 by the late Dr. W. R. Crabbe. Two years later the rapid growth and evident promise of the school induced the patrons to transfer the school to a more central location in Shady Side, Pittsburgh. The school is administered by a board of trustees and prominent citizens of Pittsburgh are members of its alumni association. Luther B. Adams, A.B., formerly vice-principal of Peddie Institute, is principal.

George H. Thurston School, Pittsburgh, was established in 1908 by Alice M. Thurston, founder and principal of the Thurston Preparatory School for Girls. It is a small but growing day school. In 1915 it came under the able supervision of Charles W. Wilder, A.M., whose sound educational ideals and advanced methods have given the school a greatly improved standing.

MARYLAND

Boys' Latin School, 1020 Brevard, Baltimore, is a thorough college preparatory school attended by upward of ninety boys and has a large elementary department. James A. Dunham is the principal.

Mt. Vernon Collegiate Institute, 210 W. Madison St., Baltimore, was established in 1884 by Dr. E. Deichmann, and was long known as the Deichmann College Preparatory School. Three years ago it was reorganized under its present name. It is essentially a tutoring school preparing boys for Johns Hopkins and other universities and professional schools. It is under the scholarly management of Dr. Wyllys Rede.

Mount St. Joseph's College, Folk Ave., Baltimore, on the western outskirts of the city, is a boarding and day school established in 1876 by the Xaverian Brothers, an order devoted to teaching.

The University School for Boys, 1901 N. Charles St., Baltimore, has been maintained since 1880 by W. S. Marston, and with him is now associated his son, W. W. Marston, as junior principal. The school in its long career has enrolled five hundred and twenty-four pupils. It is a day school with accommodation for a few resident pupils in the home of the principal.

The Jefferson School for Boys maintained as a Baltimore day school by William Tappan for eleven years has, following the country day school movement, recently moved to a country site in the northwestern section of the city.

Calvert School, 2 Chase St., Baltimore, for boys and girls from six to twelve years of age, was founded in 1897 by prominent public-spirited citizens anxious to provide the best modern scientific methods of education for young children. It is administered by a board of trustees, whose members represent the wealth and intellect of Baltimore. Virgil M. Hillyer, a Harvard man, has been head master since 1899. The Home Instruction Department instructs parents by correspondence how to educate their young children at home with competent supervision.

Milton Academy, 310 W. Hoffman St., Baltimore's oldest private school, was established in 1847 and has had some prominent alumni. It is a day school with night sessions and a summer term, preparing for college, business, and civil service examinations.

The Gilman Country School, Roland Park, Baltimore, was the first country day school, a notable development in American education, and owes its initiation to Mrs. Francis K. Carey and others who enthused the interest of leading citizens of Baltimore, including the late President Daniel Coit Gilman, and formed a committee which in 1897 incorporated "The Country School for Boys of Baltimore City." In 1911 the school was moved to Roland Park, and the school was renamed in honor of the former President of Johns Hopkins. The boarding department has gradually been emphasized and has proved a cosmopolitan educational influence for the southern middle states. One third of the pupils are now boarding pupils and two thirds of them enter Princeton. Frank Woodworth Pine, A.B., Univ. of Mich. '94; A.M., N.Y. Univ. '97, who for fifteen years had been head of the English department at the Hill School, became head master in 1912. Under his conscientious and capable leadership with the undivided support of the trustees the school has taken a high scholastic standing and its graduates have achieved an unusual degree of success in the college board examinations. The school has the patronage and support of the foremost families of Baltimore. See p. 518.

McDonogh School, McDonogh, is an endowed farm and industrial school, one of the best in the country. Morgan H. Bowman, Yale, long a moral force at the Hill School, became head master in 1915 and is very much on the job.

The Tome School, Port Deposit, was founded and chartered in 1889 as the "Jacob Tome Institute." Jacob Tome, for three quarters of a century a resident of Port Deposit until his death in 1898, had acquired a great fortune in business and banking. The institute he established was a system of schools offering instruction from kindergarten to high school for both boys and girls. In 1898 the trustees having at their disposal an endowment of two and a half millions, under the directorship of Dr. Mackenzie, decided to conduct the institute as a preparatory school for boys. A beautiful site on the palisades of the Susquehanna near the head of Chesapeake Bay was purchased, and with the assistance of the best architects and landscape and sanitary engineers the trustees created what is from every point of view probably the finest secondary school equipment in the world, expending a million and a half in carrying out their plans. Everything that money can buy was lavishly provided.

Dr. James Cameron Mackenzie organized the new Tome School, and served for two years as director. A modified Lawrenceville plan was adopted. There is a house master on each floor of each of the four dormitories. Each boy has a separate room and the younger boys are provided for in a separate house.

The curriculum is unusually rich for a secondary school and the faculty of forty is in the proportion of one to every seven of the three hundred boys enrolled. These benefits attract boys from many states yet there is a general feeling among those who know the school that its material advantages are not as fully utilized as might be. Since 1909 the director has been Dr. Thomas S. Baker, Ph.D., Johns Hopkins, who had studied in Germany. See p. 521.

Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, founded in 1808, the second oldest Catholic collegiate institution, has a preparatory department attended by seventy boys from the eastern states.

St. James School, six miles from Hagerstown, in the Cumberland valley, is the diocesan school of Maryland. It was the first church school in America, the outcome of a plan conceived by the Rev. T. B. Lyman, rector of St. John's Church, Hagerstown, and immediately espoused by the Bishop of Maryland. Dr. William Augustus Muhlenberg, who had first introduced the English Episcopal school system at Flushing, L.I., sent his chief assistant, Rev. J. B. Kerfoot, to be the first head master, and here, too, another pupil of Muhlenberg's, Dr. Henry Augustus Coit, taught until he was called to organize St. Paul's of Concord, N.H. In 1844 the school was chartered as the "College of St. James." Closed during the war, it reopened in 1869 under Henry Onderdonk, who continued head master until 1896. In 1903 he was succeeded by his son, Adrian H. Onderdonk, and the name was changed to St. James School. Mr. Onderdonk is a man's man, a strong and lovable personality, and a great teacher. A hero to his boys he instills them with the spirit of courtesy and of service. He intimates rather than requires what a boy is to do. Were he stronger on business administration he would undoubtedly occupy a larger position in the educational world. It is a small school of forty to fifty boys largely from Maryland and neighboring states. The personnel is of the best and "home life" and "individual attention" and the "honor system" in this school are not empty phrases.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Emerson Institute, 1740 P St., N.W., established in 1852 and named in honor of George B. Emerson, in recognition of his services to the cause of college education, is a day school with night classes attended by boys as young as seven.

Georgetown Preparatory School, 37th & O Sts., N.W., is affiliated with Georgetown College, one of the oldest Catholic colleges in this country under Jesuit control, established in 1789. The president of the college is the rector of the school. The preparatory school is for both boarding and day pupils. The classical high school course follows conservative Jesuit lines and all the instructors are members of the Society of Jesus.

The Army and Navy Preparatory School, 4105 Connecticut Ave., was opened in 1901 by E. Swavely, formerly an instructor at Annapolis. It efficiently prepares boarding and day students for West Point and Annapolis.

St. Alban's, the National Cathedral School for Boys, established by the bequest in 1904 of Mrs. Harriet Lane Johnston, was opened in 1909. It accepts both day and boarding pupils and prepares boys for college, West Point, and Annapolis. Attendance has grown to over one hundred, two thirds of whom are from Washington. William Howell Church, A.B., A.M., Hamilton, was appointed head master in 1915.

SOUTHERN STATES

VIRGINIA

Stuyvesant School was opened in 1912 at Warrenton, fifty-six miles from Washington, by Edwin B. King, A.B., Yale '98, A.M., '08, a St. Mark's boy and a Yale graduate, for nine years a master at St. Mark's, and for three years head master of the Gilman Country School. As the school is small much individual attention is possible. See p. 522.

Randolph-Macon Academy, Front Royal, in the heart of the Shenandoah Valley, was established in 1892 by the college of the same name and is administered by the board of trustees of the college. Charles L. Melton, A.M., is principal.

Randolph-Macon Academy, Bedford, is one of the two boys' preparatory schools maintained by the Randolph-Macon System as feeders to the college. In the past nineteen years it has prepared four hundred and sixty-three graduates for college and the professions. E. Sumter Smith is the principal.

The Massanutten Academy, Woodstock, in the Shenandoah Valley, is a school for boys preparing for college or business. It was opened in 1900 and is under the control of a board of trustees. Since that time the school has been prosperous. The hundred boys come from widespread regions with the majority from Virginia. Howard J. Benchoff, A.B., Franklin and Marshall College; A.M., Columbia, who had ten years' previous experience in some of the foremost preparatory schools of the North, is the head master.

Woodberry Forest School, Woodberry Forest, in the Piedmont section of Virginia, is a college preparatory school, established in 1889 by the late Robert S. Walker, and now under the control of his son, J. Carter Walker, A.M. Mr. Walker, one of the most progressive head masters in the South, has done much to raise the standards of secondary instruction. He was president of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the Southern States in 1913-14. The school maintains a standard of college preparatory work equaled by few schools of the region. It accommodates over one hundred boarding pupils who come largely from the better class families of the southern states. The equipment is modern, attractive, and complete. The discipline and instruction are founded on the highest principles and carried out with sympathy and yet with firmness.

Cluster Springs Academy, Cluster Springs, in southern Virginia, was founded in 1865. Though the students come largely from the surrounding region, many states and foreign countries are represented. Hampden Wilson has been principal since 1900.

The Danville School, established by William Holmes Davis in 1908, is a boarding school emphasizing preparatory work. Eighty-eight per cent of its graduates have entered colleges or universities. Mr. Davis had for eight years been in charge of Randolph-Macon Institute at Danville and superintendent of the public schools of the same city. His educational career in Virginia has been marked by continuous effort to raise the standards of the schools in Virginia and the South. His school has had a consistent and prosperous growth. The majority of the boys come from Virginia, but it is not a local school and will draw more and more widely as its merits become known.

McGuire's University School, opposite William Byrd Park, Richmond, was founded by the late John Peyton McGuire in 1865, who presided over it for forty-one years until his death in 1906. The school is continued by his son, J. P. McGuire, Jr., who was educated in the school and was for twelve years a teacher before he became principal in 1906. It is conducted on exactly the same lines as when it was first established, and is a prosperous example of the old-time day "fitting school" such as still survive in the South. There is a lower school which has its own staff of teachers. The school is patronized largely by the old families of Richmond and vicinity.

Richmond Academy, West Broad St., on the old Richmond College campus, established in 1902 by the authorities of Richmond College for which it is largely preparatory, is a day school with accommodations for a limited number of boarding pupils.

The Chamberlayne School, Richmond, offers to the people of that city the opportunities of a country day school. It was established in 1911 by Churchill G. Chamberlayne, A.B., Univ. of Va., and Ph.D., Halle, Germany, formerly of the Gilman Country School, Baltimore. In 1914 it was moved to Westhampton, a suburb of Richmond. There is dormitory accommodation for twenty-five resident pupils.

The Episcopal High School, the diocesan boys' school for Virginia and West Virginia, was established near Alexandria in 1839. A. R. Hoxton was appointed principal in 1913 following the death of L. M. Blackford, who had been principal for more than thirty years. The school maintains a high standard in college preparatory work and enjoys an enviable reputation among the schools of this region.

Norfolk Academy was founded in 1804 and incorporated under a board of trustees. It is a day school attended by over a hundred almost wholly from Norfolk. The faculty are all college graduates.

NORTH CAROLINA

Trinity Park School, Durham, was established by the North Carolina Methodist Conference in 1898 as a preparatory department for the adjacent Trinity College. It provides a school of modern equipment and dormitories at low cost. Wm. W. Peele, A.B., is the head master.

Mariefeld Open-air School for Boys, Samarcand, was opened in 1915 by Dr. C. Hanford Henderson, one of America's most inspiring educators. Dr. Henderson is well known for his work in the development of the summer camp for boys. He further developed his ideas for several years in his open-air, simple-life school near Riverside, Cal. Mariefeld is small enough so that each boy may be sure of personal attention and a share of Dr. Henderson's inspiring personality. What his influence means may best be gathered from his recent book "What Is It To Be Educated?" It is part of Dr. Henderson's present comprehensive plan to open branch schools in Switzerland and the Far East.

Oak Ridge Institute, Oak Ridge, is an old-fashioned Southern school, dating from 1852. In its long history it has enrolled thousands from the Carolinas and the adjoining states. T. E. Whitaker is head master.

The Asheville School is in standards, faculty, and patronage a Northern school in the South. The climate affords splendid opportunity for year-round, vigorous, outdoor life. It is five miles from Asheville, on a seven-hundred-acre estate in the Blue Ridge Mountains. The principals, Newton M. Anderson, B.S., and Charles A. Mitchell, A.B., who were formerly for ten years principals of the University School in Cleveland, established it in 1900. In its brief career the school has prepared over a hundred and eighty boys for the leading universities and colleges of the North. Ninety-five per cent of the pupils come from the Middle West and the North. See p. 524.

Pinehurst School, Pinehurst, opened in 1915 by Eric Parson, formerly a master at Groton, is a small open-air school offering both elementary and college preparatory courses.

Blue Ridge School for Boys, Hendersonville, recently established by Joseph R. Sandifer, A.B., and H. G. Randolph, A.B., is a small school providing individual instruction at moderate cost.

The Fleet School, opened by John S. Fleet in 1914, is located on Highland Lake, twenty-one miles from Asheville, two thousand feet above the sea. Mr. Fleet, formerly of Culver Military Academy and the Peacock-Fleet School, Atlanta, recognizes the educational value of the Boy Scout movement and makes it the basis of discipline and recreation and the point of contact between boy and teacher.

The Collegiate Institute, Mount Pleasant, has been maintained by the Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church since 1854 as a boarding school. G. F. McAllister has been co-principal since 1903 and principal since 1909.

SOUTH CAROLINA

The University School, 29 Legare St., Charleston, is a college preparatory boarding and day school, since 1914 owned and conducted by Edward F. Mayberry, M.A., Univ. of Va., who had for ten years previously been connected with the school.

Wofford College Fitting School, a Methodist institution, at Spartanburg, formerly a preparatory department of that college, was established as a separate institution in 1887. It is a day school with dormitory accommodations for a limited number, about forty per cent of whom enter Wofford College. It is administered by a board of trustees of the college. F. P. Wyche is the principal.

GEORGIA

Peacock School, formerly the Peacock-Fleet School, Atlanta, was established in 1898. It is a day school attended by one hundred boys from leading families of the city, affording thorough preparation for college. D. C. and J. H. Peacock, Ph.B., Univ. of Ga., for six years head master of the Peacock Military School, are the principals.

Academy of Richmond County, Augusta, is a day school for boys now in its one hundred and thirty-third year, providing a five-year course in preparation for college. Military drill is required of all pupils except in special cases. George P. Butler is the principal.

FLORIDA

Florida-Huron Mountains School, directed by Clarence K. Snyder, A.M., Ill. Wesleyan Univ., opens its fall term, September to December, in the northern woods (see Camp Sosawagaming). The first of January the school migrates to Camp Captiva, on the Florida West Coast, and in April moves north to Lake Fairfield in the Blue Ridge Mountains of North Carolina. The school work is carried on regularly under ideal conditions. See p. 525.

KENTUCKY

The Country Day School, Louisville, was opened in January, 1912, on an attractive site just outside of the city. It succeeded the Patterson-Davenport School which was established in 1902. This with the backing of leading citizens of Louisville insured its success from the first. It offers the usual all-day program of the country day schools. Its numbers are growing from year to year. William Davenport, A.M., a Yale man who also studied at Harvard, is the head master.

Louisville Training School, Beechmont, a suburb four miles from the center of Louisville, was established in 1889 by H. K. Taylor, who in 1907 turned over the school to W. H. Pritchett, A.M., its present owner, who with his family largely make up the faculty. Military drill is required of all.

TENNESSEE

Castle Heights School, Lebanon, thirty miles east of Nashville, is a private enterprise, established in 1902 and owned by L. L. Rice, Ph.D., the head master. Mr. Rice, a graduate of Cumberland University, was for many years a professor in that institution. The school attracts patronage from all over the southern states.

Montgomery Bell Academy, Nashville, named after an early benefactor, is under the control of the University of Nashville, and for nearly half a century has prepared boys for it and other universities. The school moved in 1914 outside the city, where it will serve as a country day school. Isaac Ball, A.M., has been head master since 1911.

The University School, 2006 West End Ave., Nashville, is a day school established in 1886. It is administered by a board of directors, and C. B. Wallace, A.M., Univ. of Va., is the principal. It prepares not only for the southern colleges, but also for the greater universities of the country.

Peoples-Tucker School, Springfield, twenty-nine miles north of Nashville, is a boarding school established in 1908. The school is now under the sole management of J. A. Peoples, a graduate of Webb School and Vanderbilt University.

The McTyeire School, McKenzie, in the western part of the state, has for thirty years and more been conducted by a board of curators. The present principal, James A. Robins, A.B., was educated at the Webb School and Vanderbilt University. It has sixty-five students, with boarding accommodation for twenty.

The Massey School, Pulaski, was begun by Felix M. Massey in 1903, and has been since 1908 at its present location. Mr. Massey, like so many of the school masters of the state, was educated in the Webb School and at Vanderbilt University.

The Fitzgerald and Clarke School, Tullahoma, is the continuation of an earlier school established at Trenton, by W. S. Fitzgerald, as early as 1904, and since 1911 in its present location, under the principals, whose names it bears, both of whom are graduates of Vanderbilt University. It is both a boarding and day school, attended by one hundred and admitting a few girls from the neighborhood as day pupils. It prepares for the southern universities and the United States Military and Naval Academies.

The Webb School, Bell Buckle, was established by Wm. R. Webb in 1870. His brother John M. Webb joined him as co-principal four years later and in 1886 the school was moved to its present location. In 1897, W. R. Webb, Jr., began to teach in the school and became one of the principals in 1908. It is a college preparatory school. For forty years the personality of the Webbs has attracted to it increasing numbers of students from the country round about. There are two hundred and fifty pupils in attendance and more applications each year than can be received. No attempt has been made to build up an elaborate equipment, and the boys board in private families of the village under the close and direct supervision of the principals. The school has a large and loyal body of alumni, many of whom have become prominent in the life of the South. Both the Webbs were graduates of the Bingham School, and many of their graduates have in turn established schools throughout the South.

Grandview Normal Institute, sixty miles north of Chattanooga, was founded by the American Missionary Association in 1884. It is a boarding school furnishing complete education from primary school to college. All boarders must work five hours a day to compensate for the very low tuition. Raymond A. Fowles is the principal.

The Baylor School, Chattanooga, formerly the University School, has been recently reorganized on a new site outside the city by J. R. Baylor, A.B., principal.

The McCallie School, Missionary Ridge, was established in 1905 by Thomas C. McCallie, since deceased, and is continued by his sons, S. J. McCallie, A.M., and J. P. McCallie, Ph.D. It is largely a day school though some boarding pupils are received. A high standard of work for this section of the country is maintained.

MISSISSIPPI

Chamberlain Hunt Academy, Port Gibson, in southwestern Mississippi, now in its thirty-sixth year, was named after the founders of Oakland College, one of the early educational institutions in the South. It is an endowed Presbyterian boarding and day school owned and operated by the Synod of the state. The self-help department enables many poor boys to earn their expenses either wholly or in part.

LOUISIANA

Rugby Academy, New Orleans, now in its twenty-second year, is the outgrowth of a private school established in 1894, by W. E. Walls, the present principal, and J. H. Rapp. It is located in the best residential section of New Orleans. The school is preparatory to Tulane University. Military drill is required of all students, unless especially excused.

TEXAS

The Terrill School, Dallas, established in 1906 by Menter B. Terrill, A.B., A.M., Yale, prepares boys for the leading colleges and scientific schools. Of the two hundred and forty boys there is provision for sixty in residence.

NORTH CENTRAL STATES

OHIO

University School, Hough & 71st St., Cleveland, is a large college preparatory day school of high standing established in 1890 and incorporated by prominent citizens. The dormitory was opened in 1896 to accommodate a limited number of boys from a distance. The boys come largely from prominent families of Cleveland and vicinity. Of the thirty or more boys graduating each year ninety-five per cent enter colleges or technical schools, Yale and Cornell leading. The lower school has had an unusually rapid growth in the last six years. The faculty come from nine colleges, Yale and Harvard being most strongly represented. Harry A. Peters, A.B., Yale, appointed principal in 1908, had been connected with the school for six years previously.

Columbus Academy, 1939 Franklin Park, Columbus, established in 1911 by an incorporated company of prominent citizens, is a preparatory school with many of the modern country day features, utilizing the boy's whole day. Frank P. R. Van Syckel, A.B., Princeton, is head master.

Franklin School, 2833 May St., Cincinnati, is a preparatory day school. It was established in 1880 by Joseph E. White, A.B., Harvard '77, and the next year Gerrit S. Sykes, A.B., Harvard '77, became co-principal. In 1905 the school was incorporated with many prominent citizens as stockholders. The school is organized in preparatory, intermediate, and primary departments. Since 1881 three hundred and fifty graduates of this school have entered twenty-nine different colleges, about one half entering Yale and Harvard in approximately equal numbers. Twenty-five per cent of Ohio boys entering Harvard from 1900 to 1910 came from this school.

INDIANA

The Brooks School for Boys, Indianapolis, established in 1914 by Wendell Stanton Brooks, A.B., Yale, who had previous experience in several preparatory schools and also as high school principal, is a college preparatory school arranging for a limited number of resident pupils in the homes of the masters.

Interlaken School, on Silver Lake, Rolling Prairie, is the most notable and successful attempt to naturalize in America the New School, originated by Cecil Reddie at Abbotsholme, England. It is a revolt from the formalism of traditional school life, and aims to combine in the freedom of country life the child's physical and mental activities with the actual economic and cultural interests of man. The school was opened in 1907 by Dr. Edward A. Rumely to afford American boys a more rational physical, manual, and mental training. Dr. Rumely has perhaps the most constructive and unconventional mind engaged in educational work today. Born a wealthy Roman Catholic, he early revolted; despite privation and other obstacles he went abroad and made his own way in Europe to a position of intellectual prominence. He studied at Heidelberg and Freiburg and became interested in the New School movement, teaching under Dr. Lietz at Ilsenberg. On his return to America, though thrust into an important executive and financial position in a manufacturing company, he did not hesitate to break new ground in the educational field by establishing this school. Realizing that a man's success depends upon the coordination of motor and mental processes he saw the necessity for a more adequate training of these. The boys get efficient training through the greatest variety of useful activities. In addition to the formal school studies of grammar and high school grade there are classes in metal work, carving, and painting. The boys have built practically the entire school plant and have a share in all the activities of running the farm and providing for the large family of one hundred and fifty boys. Athletics and outdoor sports are by no means neglected. The plan is a great one. Dr. Rumely's interests are many. O. P. Pitts, A.B., B.S., Chicago, an experienced school man and capable executive, is now at the head of the staff of teachers. See p. 513.

The University of Notre Dame, near South Bend, perhaps the foremost Catholic educational institution in the country, has a total enrollment of ten hundred and fifty, of which four hundred and fifty are in the high school and elementary departments. It maintains a four-year high school course which has an enrollment of three hundred and fifty boys. The instruction is given by priests, Brothers of the Holy Cross, and male lay teachers. St. Edward's Hall is a separate department for boys of grammar school grade and here all the instruction is given by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. More than half of the high school students enter the University of Notre Dame.

Howe School, in northern Indiana, had its origin in 1884 in the bequest of John B. Howe to the Episcopal Church for educational purposes. The school was established by Bishop Knickerbacker and has since been further endowed by the family of the founder. It is an Episcopal preparatory school of six forms divided into upper, middle, and lower schools, each occupying separate buildings. The school especially prepares boys for colleges which require entrance examinations, Harvard, Yale, and Princeton. Though not a military school, the military system is utilized in the two lower departments as a means of discipline and physical training, a total of less than three hours per week being the maximum time given to drill. The patronage is chiefly from the Middle West. The Rev. John H. Mackenzie, D.D., L.H.D., rector since 1895, had for ten years previously had a wide experience in the ministry and in educational institutions. Grover C. Good, A.B., Harvard '00, has been connected with the school ten years and head master since 1910. See p. 526.

MICHIGAN

Detroit University School, 16 Elmwood Ave., is a college preparatory school, first organized in 1890. Two years later it was incorporated and combined with the Detroit School for Boys, which had been running for ten years. The school has had a successful and prosperous career, but of recent years patronage has fallen off and finances have become precarious. In 1914 Frederick L. Bliss, who had been principal since 1901, resigned, and a reorganization of the school, both as to finances and to faculty, was undertaken by the trustees. Frederick E. Searle, A.B., Williams '93, who for a dozen years had been a teacher in the school, was elected principal and a number of changes made in the faculty. The school is now conducted under the direction of an advisory committee of its patrons.

ILLINOIS

CHICAGO

The Harvard School for Boys, 4651 Drexel Boulevard, is a day preparatory school established in 1867. Since 1876 it has been under the management of the present principal, John J. Schobinger.

The Thomas Arnold University School, Dearborn Ave. & Elm St., is a college preparatory school. It is the result of the combining of the University School, owned by Walter R. Kohr, and the Thomas Arnold School, opened in 1912 by Dr. John Stuart White, Harvard '70. Dr. White's rich experience and never-waning enthusiasm are supplemented by Harry N. Russell, head master of the University School.

Boys' Chicago Latin School, 18 E. Division St., was established in 1894 by Miss M. S. Vickery, Mass. State Normal School, of the Girls' Latin School, and Robert P. Bates, Trinity Coll., who is still head master. It is a day school and has the patronage of the best families of the North Side because of the high academic standards maintained and the efficient college preparation.

Lake Forest Academy, twenty-eight miles north of Chicago, is a college preparatory school founded and incorporated in 1857 by an association of prominent Chicago citizens. The academy has occupied its present site since 1893. John Wayne Richards, A.M., Ohio Northern, Yale, for seven years previous a master at the Hotchkiss School, was in 1913 appointed head master, succeeding Wm. Mather Lewis. He is a man of personality and enthusiasm, who has set for himself the task of bringing the school to the high standard of the best eastern schools. He has faith that preparation to meet the test of college examinations is the best form of education and to this end he has secured a capable corps of teachers. The alumni association includes old boys of the last fifty years.

Todd Seminary, Woodstock, one hour northwest of Chicago, is exclusively a boarding school for younger boys. It is not a preparatory school but provides a ten-year course of study. The boys, from seven years of age upward, come largely from near Chicago. It was established in 1848 by the Rev. R. K. Todd, a native of Vermont and a graduate of Princeton. Noble Hill, also of New England birth, principal since 1890, conducts the school in a broad, simple way. A wholesome atmosphere characterizes the school. Manual training and the school band are made interesting features.

Dakota-for-Boys, one hundred miles northwest of Chicago, is the old Dakota Academy revamped in 1913 by W. H. Wyler, who with a son and daughter is working out the open-air idea in the simplest possible way.

Northwestern College Academy, Naperville, established in 1906 by Northwestern College, was three years later organized as a separate institution, but still prepares mainly for that college. About sixteen annually enter college. There are over two hundred alumni. C. J. Attig was made principal in 1914.

St. Albans School, Knoxville, is an Episcopalian boarding school for boys founded by the rector, Rev. Charles W. Leflingwell, in 1890. The boys come from Illinois and the adjacent states. Lucien F. Sennett, A.M., is the present head master.

Bradley Polytechnic Institute, Peoria, annually enrolls eleven hundred students. The school was founded by Mrs. Tobias Bradley in 1897 and was richly endowed by her at her death in 1908. Theodore C. Burgess, A.B., Ph.D., Chicago Univ., has been connected with the school since its inception and director since 1904.

WISCONSIN

Keewatin Academy, Prairie du Chien, spends its midwinter term at St. Augustine, Fla. It emphasizes individual instruction and makes much of outdoor life. It was opened in 1913 by James H. Kendrigan, A.B., Brown, and was incorporated with the financial assistance of L. de V. Dousman and moved to its present summer location, the old home of the Dousman family.

The Galahad School, Hudson, twenty miles east of St. Paul, is a small school for boys established in 1905 by T. W. MacQuarrie, a graduate of the State Normal School and Columbia University, and J. P. Inglis, University of Wisconsin, both of whom had had previous experience in public schools in various parts of the country. There is a students' organization known as "The Knights of the Round Table," whose activities and ceremonies are secret and wholesome. Much is made of manual and industrial training. The boys come from Wisconsin and neighboring states.

MINNESOTA

St. Paul Academy, Dale St. & Portland Ave., St. Paul, established in 1900, is a boys' preparatory school which has recently been reorganized by the trustees, and will shortly open as a country day school. It sends its graduates largely to Yale, University of Minnesota, and Harvard. John De Q. Briggs, A.B., Harvard '06, recently appointed head master, is a son of Dean Briggs of Harvard.

The Blake School is a country day school patronized by the best families of Minneapolis. Founded in 1907 by William McK. Blake largely as a tutoring school, in 1911 it was taken over and incorporated by leading citizens who selected as head master Charles B. Newton, A.B., Princeton '93, for thirteen years a master at Lawrenceville. It has two departments, one in the city for young boys under the direction of Mrs. Anna Barbour, and one eight miles west of Minneapolis. The teaching force is of the best, representing the leading colleges of the East.

Saint James School, Faribault, for boys from seven to thirteen, will begin its sixteenth year in September under the direction of F. E. Jenkins, head master since its establishment, and the Rev. James Dobbin, D.D., rector, formerly rector of Shattuck.

MISSOURI

The Manual Training School of Washington University, St. Louis, was established by Prof. C. N. Woodward in 1879. There have been fifteen hundred graduates. The principal is Frank Hamsher.

The University School for Boys, 365 N. Boyle Ave., St. Louis, is a small day school preparatory to college maintained by Franklin Kean, A.B., Univ. of Kentucky, since 1900.

David Rankin, Jr., School of Mechanical Trades, Finney, Newstead, & Cook Aves., St. Louis, is a large endowed trade school enrolling eight hundred men and boys over fourteen years of age. The regular day course covers two years. The school has grown steadily since its opening in 1909. The superintendent in charge is Lewis Gustafson.

The Country Day School, Kansas City, was established in 1910 largely through the influence of Mrs. Hugh C. Ward. The school was fortunate in securing as its head Ralph Hoffmann, A.B., Harvard '90. Mr. Hoffmann has had a successful experience in the Browne & Nichols School, Cambridge, and is well known as a student of bird life. Under him the school has been successful and has won the support of leading citizens. The first class graduated in 1914. Graduates have entered the University of Missouri as well as Harvard, Princeton, and Williams.

COLORADO

St. Stephen's School, Colorado Springs, is a small Episcopal day and boarding school, established in 1910. In 1915 Ralph E. Boothby, A.B., Harvard '12, became head master.

ARIZONA

Evans School for Boys, Mesa, in the Salt River Valley of Arizona, seventeen miles from Phoenix, was established in 1902 by H. David Evans, an Englishman educated at Cambridge University. It offers to about twenty eastern boys an opportunity to experience something of western ranch life in a dry and equable climate, while continuing their preparation for college examinations. Mr. Evans has been fortunate from the first in enlisting the highest class of patronage. The boys generally attend this school for a year or two preceding college entrance. The life is simple, even rough, the boys living each in his own cabin, keeping horses, and making camping trips. A summer tutoring camp is maintained at Flagstaff.

PACIFIC COAST STATES

WASHINGTON

Houston School for Boys, Cannon Hill, Spokane, is a boarding and day school owned and controlled by a corporation of leading citizens of that city. E. F. Strong, the principal, is assisted by a staff of college graduates. Athletics are encouraged.

De Koven School, for day and resident pupils, on Steilacoom Lake, South Tacoma, was established in 1891 by De Los S. Pulford. In 1911 the school was incorporated. About forty boys from Tacoma, and the Northwest in general, are enrolled.

CALIFORNIA

The University School, 2129 California St., the oldest private school in San Francisco, was established in 1867 by George Bates, a graduate of Oxford. Walter C. Nolan, B.S., California, is head master.

Trinity School, 846 Stanyan St., opposite the Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, an Episcopal day school established in 1876, is conducted by Leon H. Roger. About one hundred and thirty have entered leading colleges and universities, including West Point and Annapolis. It is chiefly preparatory to the University of California.

The Potter School, 1827 Pacific Ave., San Francisco, was opened four years ago by George S. Potter, A.B., Harvard, formerly master and secretary of Noble and Greenough's School, Boston, Mass., and had immediate success. It is a day school especially for college preparation enrolling boys from the leading families of the city and surrounding towns.

Belmont School, twenty-one miles south of San Francisco, was founded in 1885 by William T. Reid, Harvard '68, not long after his retirement from the presidency of the University of California. With the financial assistance of W. H. Martin of San Francisco a portion of the Ralston Estate at Belmont was purchased and adapted to the uses of the school. Mr. Reid had previously had a long experience in secondary education as assistant head master of the Boston Latin School and principal of the San Francisco Boys' High School. He brought to his work the traditions of the best preparatory schools and from the first it has been his purpose to establish and maintain in the West a college preparatory school fully up to the standard of the best schools of the East. In 1893 Hopkins Academy, an old Congregational school at Oakland, planning to reorganize as a country boarding school, was merged with the Belmont School. From 1902 to 1910 Mr. Reid's son, William T. Reid, Jr., Harvard '01, the well-known football player and coach, was assistant head master. Belmont is primarily a college preparatory school. Three hundred and thirty of its graduates have entered the leading colleges and universities of the country. The school has an annual attendance of about one hundred, chiefly from the Pacific Coast, one third of whom are in the Lower School. Military drill three hours a week is required of all the boys unless excused by doctor's certificate. See p. 527.

Manzanita Hall, Palo Alto, was established in 1893 by Frank Cramer. W. A. Shedd, the present head master, formerly house master at Belmont School, took over the school in 1909 when it was somewhat run down. In six years he has built it up so that today it has a substantial reputation for college preparatory work. It is both a day and boarding school, attended by boys largely from California but representing the entire Pacific Coast.

The Hicks School, Santa Barbara, established in 1903, is a small day school limited to twenty-five boys who come from the leading families of Santa Barbara, with a few from the East. It offers both elementary and high school instruction. Rodney M. Heggie, A.M., Columbia Univ., is the principal.

The Deane School, in the Montecito Valley, five miles from Santa Barbara, was established in 1912 by John H. Deane, Jr., formerly of the Fessenden School. It is an open-air boarding school for young boys, preparing them for the best college preparatory schools.

Santa Barbara School, in the Carpinteria Valley, twelve miles from Santa Barbara, was opened in 1910 by Curtis W. Cate, Harvard '07. It is a small boarding school preparatory to college. The boys come from leading families throughout the country.

Thacher School for Boys, Nordhoff, is a novel and successful school maintained by Sherman D. Thacher, Yale '83, with the assistance of his brother, William L. Thacher, Yale '87, as associate head master. It was in 1889 that the first boy came to Casa de Piedra Ranch as a pupil, to take advantage of out-of-door life while tutoring for college, and from this very small beginning the whole idea of the school has gradually developed. The school accommodates fifty boys averaging in age from sixteen to seventeen, who come from the East as well as the West, and special care is taken to receive only boys of good character. Over three hundred boys have attended the school, of whom more than two hundred have entered colleges and universities, Yale and Harvard leading in numbers. Thacher boys are always proud of their school. The faculty are all college men, some of them recent graduates of leading colleges who remain with the school for a year or two.

The school life is intimate. There is no fixed curriculum, but the school is organized as Upper, Middle, and Lower Schools. Its purpose is to combine out-of-door life in the climate of southern California, a broad training, and a rich experience, with thorough preparation for college. The out-of-door life is interesting and varied. Every boy keeps a horse and is responsible for its care. Cavalry drill often takes place during the school recess.

Claremont School for Boys, Claremont, at the foot of the Sierra Madre range, is a home school for boys between the ages of twelve and eighteen, preparing them for college or technical school. Winfred Ernest Garrison, A.B., Yale, Ph.D., Chicago Univ., is the founder and head master.

MILITARY SCHOOLS

Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., was established in 1819 at Norwich by Captain Alden Partridge, who had previously been superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. Captain Partridge was the pioneer in the establishment of military schools throughout the country and Norwich University was the mother of them all. The instruction is largely along engineering lines. The discipline is military, modeled after that of West Point. The government of the student body is entrusted largely to the cadet officers. Though hampered by inadequate resources the institution has maintained a high standard of military instruction due to the zeal of Lieutenant Ralph M. Parker, U.S.A., and the president, Colonel Ira Louis Reeves, C.E. The summer camp supplements the work at Plattsburg.

Mt. Pleasant Academy, Ossining, N.Y., was established in 1814 by public-spirited men of the region. Its fortunes varied until 1845 when C. F. Maurice became the principal, who in the succeeding nineteen years gave the school much of its present character and introduced the military system. Charles F. Brusie, A.B., A.M., Williams, has been principal for the past twenty-one years and is lessee under the board of trustees. The patronage is largely local though there are boys in the school from widespread regions.

The Peekskill Military Academy, Peekskill, N.Y., was founded in 1833. Twenty-four years later military organization was introduced, under "the inspiration of Principal Wells, when the rumbling of impending strife led him to believe that military discipline would invest citizenship with something that might make it one of the valuable aspects of private education." The principals, John C. Bucher, A.M., and Charles Alexander Robinson, Ph.D., both Princeton graduates, have conscientiously administered the school for the past thirteen years.

Mohegan Lake School, now in its thirty-sixth year, is in the Highlands of the Hudson near Peekskill. The principals, Albert E. Linder and Charles Huntington Smith, are graduates of Princeton and Amherst respectively. The boys are prepared for business, technical schools, or college.

New York Military Academy, Cornwall-on-Hudson, N.Y., five miles above West Point, is primarily a technical and scientific preparatory school conducted on a strictly military basis modeled after the United States Military Academy at West Point. Established in 1889, Colonel Sebastian C. Jones, Cornell, the superintendent, has successfully directed the academy for the past twenty-three years. Thoroughly competent on the military side, of no mean business ability, and with a sense of responsibility toward his boys and patrons, under his vigorous administration the academy has prospered. A standard of academic work is maintained, approached by but few other military schools. The commandant, Major Milton F. Davis, a West Point man, is detailed by the War Department as professor of military science. The cadets in residence come from all over the United States and foreign countries, but largely from New York. Bard Hall, the pre-academic department of the school, is for boys under fourteen years of age.

The Manlius Schools, admirably located among the hills of central New York, eleven miles from Syracuse, consist of St. John's, the preparatory school, founded in 1869, and Verbeck Hall, a school for younger boys which has been successfully conducted during the twenty-six years of the present management. General William Verbeck, for twenty-six years the head of the school, has much interest in public affairs, and was formerly Adjutant-general of the State of New York. Manlius is one of three in New York State to which the Secretary of War regularly details a United States Army officer as instructor in military tactics. A special feature is the cavalry branch of military education. The patronage of the school is almost national. See p. 517.

The Silver Lake Military and Naval School, Perry, N.Y., on Silver Lake twenty miles south of Buffalo, in 1915 succeeded the Chamberlain Military Institute of Randolph, N.Y., founded in 1848. A United States naval officer is detailed for instruction in elementary seamanship for the first month or six weeks of each term. Colonel James E. Dunn is the superintendent. The patronage is chiefly from nearby states.

De Veaux School, Niagara Falls, N.Y., established in 1857, is an endowed Episcopal boarding college preparatory school. The West Point military system has prevailed from the beginning. The school's valuable site led to machinations which resulted in a court decision some years ago barring all pay pupils. The loyal alumni, rallying to the support of the school, secured the reversal of this decision with the result that the school is again coming to the fore. Twenty-two "foundationers" enjoy the privileges of the school free of all cost. The location is most attractive, fronting for more than half a mile on the Niagara Gorge. The Rev. William Stanley Barrows, M.A., S.T.B., is head master and chaplain.

Newton Academy, Newton, in northern New Jersey fifty miles from New York City, is a semi-military boarding school for boys. Begun in 1852 it is one of the oldest schools in the state. The principal, Philip S. Wilson, A.B., Lafayette '90, A.M., in 1899 succeeded his father, Captain Joel Wilson, who had been the principal since 1882.

Bordentown Military Institute, Bordentown, N.J., was re-established in 1885 by the Rev. Thompson H. Landon, A.M., D.D. It has remained continuously under the same management and the founder has now associated with him his son, Colonel Thomas D. Landon, as commandant, and his cousin, Sealand W. Landon, as head master. The Landons are genuinely earnest in their purpose of providing good instruction and have made efficient use of the military system without carrying it to extremes. Efficient preparation for college is given, which is unusual in a military school, and a large number of alumni are college graduates. The cadets come from homes fairly distributed over the northeastern United States. The school has the additional advantage of a strong alumni sentiment, and has sufficient background of tradition working in the right direction so that school spirit really carries a large part of the student discipline.

Wenonah Military Academy, Wenonah, N.J., twelve miles from Philadelphia, was established thirteen years ago by Stephen Greene. Since his death in 1908, the estate has been carried on by a board of trustees and developed by his son, Dr. Wm. H. Greene. Dr. Charles H. Lorence, D.D.S., Penn., is the president, and Clayton A. Snyder, Ph.D., Union Coll., is the superintendent.

Pennsylvania Military College, Chester, Pa., traces its origin back to 1821. The family of Colonel Charles E. Hyatt, its president, have owned and controlled the institution for over sixty years, Colonel Hyatt's father having secured title to it in 1853. The board of trustees, of which John Wanamaker is president, includes twenty other men prominent in professional, commercial, and educational work. Since 1858 it has been a military institution and in 1862 a charter was granted authorizing the conferring of degrees. All the military equipment is supplied by the state or the United States Government and a United States Army officer is detailed for military instruction. There are three courses, civil engineering, chemical, and academic, all leading to a degree. There is a preparatory department to fit younger boys for the college work.

Charlotte Hall School, Charlotte Hall, Md., thirty-eight miles from Washington, dates back to 1796 but became a military school about 1850. It is conducted by a board of trustees and the present principal, G. M. Thomas, A.M., Virginia Military Institute. The boys come largely from Maryland and Washington.

The Shenandoah Valley Academy, Winchester, Va., a military school for boys founded soon after the Civil War, was given its present site at Winchester in 1895. On the death of J. B. Lovett in 1908 the property reverted to trustees and has since then been managed by Branz Mayer Roszel, A.B., Johns Hopkins Univ. '89; Ph.D., '96. About half the boys are day pupils.

Augusta Military Academy, Fort Defiance, Va., nine miles from Staunton, was established about thirty years ago as the Augusta Male Academy, a day school, by Charles Roller who in 1906 was succeeded by his sons, Thomas A. Roller, Univ. of Virginia, and Charles S. Roller, Jr., Virginia Military Institute.

Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., in the Shenandoah Valley, was established in 1867 by Captain William H. Kable, A.M., Univ. of Virginia. It has long maintained its popularity and today enrolls cadets from forty-five states, territories, and foreign countries. Since the death of its founder in 1912 the school has been continued by Colonel William G. Kable, who was educated at the academy during the administration of his father, whose policies he continues. The business management of the school has made it successful and for more than twenty years a portrait of a soulful boy has identified its magazine advertising. Its military department came under the supervision of an officer of the United States Army for the first time in 1913.

Fishburne Military Academy, Waynesboro, Va., was established as a day school thirty-one years ago by James A. Fishburne, Washington and Lee Univ., in his native town. As it flourished a boarding department was added. The school is for the third year under the management of Morgan H. Hudgins, Virginia Military Institute 'or. Its administration has always been conscientious and the welfare of the boys safeguarded.

Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., was created by the act of the legislature in 1835 to provide for military education and to maintain a guard at the arsenal in Lexington. It is organized like West Point and instruction is technical. A United States Army officer is detailed as professor of military science. The military department has always been most efficient. The cadets come from all over the United States but largely from the South. Two hundred of its graduates are in the United States Army. It receives an annual appropriation of $40,000 from the state, but no other public support, and it is not endowed. The history of this school during the Civil War is one of the brightest pages in the story of the Southern cause.

Greenbrier Presbyterian Military School, Lewisburg, W. Va., is conducted by Col. H. B. Moore, A.B., Hampden-Sydney College. It is owned by the Presbytery of Greenbrier, who established and equipped it, and who make religious instruction and influence its purpose. Military drill and routine have been established as a permanent factor. Its patronage, formerly largely local, is becoming more widespread.

Linsly Institute, Wheeling, W. Va., established by the bequest of Noah Linsly in 1814, introduced military instruction in 1876. The school is now under the direction of Colonel Charles H. Patterson, A.B., A.M., for twelve years a professor in West Virginia University.

The Bingham School, Asheville, N.C., founded in 1793 by the Rev. William Bingham, who came from Ireland twelve years previously and whose grandson, Colonel Robert Bingham, the present owner, has been in charge since 1857, is the oldest school for boys in the southern states and for one hundred and twenty-two years has been continued by the same family. The school has been migratory, having had five locations before the present one. The United States War Department details an officer for military instruction. The cadets come from all over the southern and many of the northern states. The boys' clubhouse is an attractive feature.

Horner Military School, removed recently to Charlotte, N.C., midway between Richmond and Atlanta, was founded in 1851 by the father of the present principal, Jerome Channing Horner, who has had thirty-nine years' experience in teaching. The patronage is local with many day pupils.

The Citadel, Charleston, S.C., is a military college modeled on West Point. Previous to 1841 it was a state depository for arms and munitions of war, and from 1865 to 1881 it was used as a military post. Since 1882 it has been reopened as a military college. The corps of cadets is organized as a battalion of infantry of four companies and a band. Colonel Oliver J. Bond, B.S., The Citadel '86; Ph.D., Ill. Wesleyan Univ. '95, has been a professor in the school since 1886 and head since 1908.

Porter Military Academy, Charleston, S.C., was established in 1867 by the late Rev. A. Toomer Porter as an academy for sons of Confederate soldiers. The military features were added in 1890. It admits day pupils who need not wear the military uniform and prepares especially for the southern colleges, but its certificate is generally accepted by the universities. The rector, Rev. Walter Mitchell, D.D., is the active head of the school. There is a lower school in connection with the academy where boys from nine to fourteen are admitted. The enrollment represents twenty-two states.

Bailey Military Institute, Greenwood, S.C., has an army officer on duty as professor of military science and tactics. Its patronage is largely local. The superintendent is a prominent Baptist and a successful business man.

Riverside Military Academy, Gainesville, Ga., was established nine years ago. In 1913 it came under the business management of Sandy Beaver, the president, who shares the ownership with F. M. McCoy, the principal, and other stockholders. The hustling business administration has brought the numbers up. Since 1913 an army officer has been detailed for military instruction. There is a summer Naval School on Lake Warner, half a mile distant. Much is made of athletics.

Georgia Military Academy, College Park, Ga., has been run since 1900 by Col. J. C. Woodward, a keen competitor of the above. There is a United States Army officer detailed to the academy, and in 1913 and 1914 it was specially commended by the War Department for its military instruction. The cadets are organized in a battalion of three companies and instruction is given in the three arms of the service.

Gordon Institute, Barnesville, Ga., was incorporated in 1852 as "The Barnesville Male and Female High School," and was renamed in 1872. In 1890 the military system was adopted. The school has been coeducational from the beginning and accommodates two hundred and sixty students all of whom come from Georgia. From twenty-five to fifty are graduated each year. Edward T. Holmes, A.M., Mercer Univ., has been the president since 1912.

Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, Ga., was organized in 1879 in the Old State Capitol as a department of the University of Georgia under the name of the "Middle Georgia Military and Agricultural College." In 1893 the trustees of the University withdrew support, and the school has since been assisted by the town. In 1900 the name was changed to Georgia Military College. An active United States Army officer is detailed to the college. The school is coeducational with five hundred and forty in attendance coming from Georgia. Col. O. R. Horton, A.B., Furman, has been president since 1912.

Florida Military Academy, Jacksonville, Fla., incorporates such features of the military system as seem especially suited to the development of the growing boy. The superintendent and owner, Col. Geo. W. Hulvey, A.B., Sweetwater College, Univ. of Virginia, Univ. of Chicago, has been connected with a number of southern educational institutions.

Kentucky Military Institute, Lyndon, Ky., has since 1906 followed the interesting plan of spending the winter months at Military Park, Fla. The school was established in 1845. In 1896 Col. C. W. Fowler, himself a graduate of the institute, became superintendent, and in the same year removed the school to its present site. In January every year the school migrates by special train to its winter quarters, returning in April. Colonel Fowler, a gentleman and a scholar, has shown himself thoroughly open-minded and progressive, specializing in preparation for technical universities. He is a capable organizer and business manager and successful in choosing his assistants from the best eastern colleges. See p. 523.

The Columbia Military Academy, Columbia, Tenn., forty miles south of Nashville, was opened in 1905 in the old government arsenal which has been transferred to a corporation, and was somewhat altered for school purposes. There are about one hundred cadets who are organized in a battalion of infantry of two companies. H. C. Weber is the lessee of the property and owner of the school. The Rev. Joseph H. Spearing, formerly head master of Sewanee Military Academy, has been superintendent since 1913.

Sewanee Military Academy, Sewanee, Tenn., midway between Chattanooga and Nashville on the Cumberland Plateau, is a department of the University of the South, which was founded in 1857 by the bishops of the ten southern Episcopal dioceses. The academy began as the Sewanee Grammar School but in 1908 it received its present name. It occupies as barracks Quintard Memorial Hall, which is about half a mile from the buildings of the University. Since 1912 the strictest system of military discipline has been introduced under Colonel DuVal G. Cravens, the head master, and the standard has been raised.

Tennessee Military Institute, established in 1902 at Sweetwater, has had a steady and consistent growth and now graduates yearly a class of twenty or more. Colonel Otey C. Hulvey, the competent principal, and all the members of the faculty are regularly commissioned by the governor of the state as officers in the National Guard of Tennessee. The military training is patterned after West Point, and the instruction is under the supervision of the War Department.

The University Military School, Mobile, Ala., is a day school which does substantial preparatory work and is accredited to the universities. The school always has its full quota and application must be made in advance. Julius T. Wright, the principal, is able and thoroughly up-to-date.

Gulf Coast Military Academy, Gulfport, Miss., was opened in 1912 by Col. R. B. McGehee, formerly associate principal of Columbia Military Academy. Col. J. C. Hardy came to the school in 1913.

Jefferson Military College, Washington, Miss., chartered in 1802, is one of the oldest institutions of its kind in the South. Many of the able men of the South, including Jefferson Davis, twelve governors, eight United States senators, and twenty congressmen, were educated at this college. Col. R. A. Burton, Univ. of Ky., is the superintendent.

Ohio Military Institute, College Hill, Ohio, near Cincinnati, was established in 1890 on the foundation then known as Belmont College, and in earlier days as Farmers' College, the Alma Mater of President Benjamin Harrison. The beginning, however, may even be dated back to 1833 to Cary's Academy, established on College Hill by Freeman Cary, uncle of Alice and Phœbe Cary, the poets, who conducted a small training school for boys. It remains a small school directed by Col. A. M. Henshaw. The cadets are divided into an upper and a lower school.

Culver Military Academy, Lake Maxinkuckee, Ind., eighty-four miles from Chicago, is one of the most prosperous of the thorough-going military schools. Established in 1894 by the late Henry Harrison Culver, it is still owned by the Culver Estate. On the destruction of the buildings by fire the following year a new building of brick, designed for the school, was erected. Under Colonel Fleet as superintendent, who before had been the head of the Missouri Military Academy, the school grew rapidly. Col. L. R. Gignilliat, who for fourteen years previously had been commandant, has been superintendent since 1910. Colonel Gignilliat is a tactful and capable administrator. He has an admirable system of supervision of student activities outside the class-room and the drill-hall and holds advanced ideas upon vocational selection, debating, and literary organizations. Under him the academy has continued to prosper so that it now enrolls over five hundred cadets. Cavalry, artillery, and military engineering are featured. For nine consecutive years the United States War Department has given the military work of the school the highest rating. The patronage is national.

Western Military Academy, Alton, Ill., twenty-five miles north of St. Louis, was begun by the late Edward Wyman in 1879 and conducted by him as Wyman Institute until his death in 1888. In 1892 the school was incorporated and the military system introduced. The present superintendent, Colonel Albert M. Jackson, A.B., Princeton '84, A.M., '87, who has been connected with the school for twenty-eight years, shares the ownership and management with Major George D. Eaton, the principal. The school is one of the best of its class. The academy is a post of the state National Guard and receives from the United States War Department military equipment for two hundred cadets. There are strong departments in athletics and music and college preparatory work is adequately carried on. The cadets come from the Middle West.

Morgan Park Academy, Morgan Park, Ill., fourteen miles from the center of Chicago, was organized in 1892 with the cooperation of President Harper of the University of Chicago. It has recently been reorganized with E. J. Price as president of the board of trustees and Harry D. Abells, B.S., Univ. of Chicago '97, principal. Mr. Abells has been connected with the academy since 1898. The patronage is largely from the north central states.

St. John's Military Academy is at Delafield in the beautiful lake region of southern Wisconsin, three hours from Chicago. The school was established by the Rev. Sidney T. Smythe in 1884, became military two years later, and was incorporated in 1889, and is still under the direction of its founder. The school emphasizes its Episcopalian influence and all students must attend evensong five times in the week and chapel on Sundays. General Charles King, the soldier novelist, whose home is nearby, was early interested in the school and still retains his connection, nominally, as superintendent of military instruction. The commandant, Major Roy F. Farrand, W.N.G., is a man of force and is a definite influence. The cadets are organized as a battalion of infantry of four companies with a cadet band. The patronage, though largely from Illinois and Wisconsin, represents thirty-six states and foreign countries. There are eight hundred alumni. See p. 522.

Racine College, Racine, Wis., is a preparatory school with a modified military system which is kept subordinate to the general work of the school. Founded in 1852 by the Rev. Dr. Park as a Protestant Episcopal college, it has during its sixty-four years of existence been an important educational factor not only in Wisconsin but in a great section of the Middle West. The Rev. Francis Shero is the present warden and head master and is greatly beloved by all.

Northwestern Military and Naval Academy, Lake Geneva, Wis., was established at Highland Park, Ill., in 1888 by Col. H. P. Davidson. In 1911 he was succeeded by his son, R. P. Davidson, as superintendent. Colonel Davidson, who is also president of the North Central Academic Association, gives the academy a capable business administration. He has recently removed the school to Lake Geneva in southern Wisconsin, eighty-five miles from Chicago. The school now affords opportunity for naval as well as military training. The Secretary of the Navy authorized the issue of six completely equipped naval cutters for the naval branch of the school. The military instruction is under the supervision of a United States Army officer assigned by the War Department.

Shattuck, Faribault, Minn., fifty miles south of Minneapolis, is perhaps the most notable school in the West. It was the conception of the Rev. Henry W. Whipple, the first Bishop of Minnesota, who was familiar with the great usefulness of such schools in England as Winchester and Rugby, and saw the need of a permanent educational institution in this region. As early as 1858 the Rev. James L. Breck had established in Faribault a small school which later incorporated as the Bishop Seabury Mission. Out of this have grown the three renowned schools, Seabury Divinity School, St. Mary's Hall for Girls, and Shattuck. The boys' school was named for an early benefactor, Dr. George Cheyne Shattuck, of Boston. The Rev. James Dobbin has been rector from its first organization and is now rector emeritus. In 1914 Colonel Vasa E. Stolbrand became superintendent. There is a strong faculty of university graduates. During its long career more than three thousand boys have been trained in its halls. The students are drawn largely from well-to-do families of the great Northwest. Shattuck is a church school and its students live in companies in "barracks," two to a room in the care of a master and an assistant. Military training is required of all and the students are organized into a battalion of infantry. During the Spanish-American War more men were in the service who had been trained at Shattuck than at any other military school.

College of St. Thomas, St. Paul, Minn., was opened in 1885 as a diocesan institution conducted by priests. It is a Roman Catholic college preparatory school having an attendance of nearly seven hundred, largely from Minnesota, though many other states are represented. The military work is of high class and the War Department has several times designated it as a distinguished school. The corps of cadets is organized into a regiment of three battalions, comprising nine companies, with a band.

St. Charles Military Academy, twenty miles from St. Louis, Mo., dates from 1831 and claims to be the oldest boys' school west of the Mississippi. The boys are largely from Missouri and surrounding states. Col. Herbert F. Walter is president and proprietor.

Kemper Military School, Boonville, Mo., was founded in 1844 by Frederick T. Kemper, who continued in active control until his death in 1881. Col. T. A. Johnston, the present head, who introduced the military system, has been connected with the school since 1868 and has been superintendent since 1881. Most of the cadets come from the immediately surrounding states. The school is organized as a military post and has official recognition by the state.

Wentworth Military Academy, Lexington, Mo., established in 1880, adopted the military system a year later, and is the pioneer military school in the Middle West. Its graduates receive commissions as second lieutenants from the State Militia. Its patronage is largely from Missouri and the adjacent states. Colonel Sandford Sellers is the superintendent.

University Military Academy, Columbia, Mo., is a home school with simple military discipline. It is maintained by John B. Welch, for twenty years a high school principal in New England.

St. John's Military School, Salina, Kan., was founded by Elisha Thomas, the second Bishop of Kansas, with the cooperation of the public-spirited citizens of that town. The school's patronage was largely local, but has now become widespread. The Rev. M. B. Stewart is the principal.

The Texas Military College, Terrell, Tex., established in 1915, is a small Junior College offering a four-year preparatory course and two years of college work. Dr. Louis C. Perry, B.S., A.M., Ph.D., the founder and president, has had wide experience in the West.

West Texas Military Academy, Alamo Heights, Tex., a suburb of San Antonio, is a young institution, but already the largest in the Southwest. Though an Episcopal Church school it is essentially military in spirit and since 1909 has had an army officer detailed by the War Department. The school is affiliated with the University of Texas, and forty colleges and universities accept its students without examinations.

The Peacock Military College, San Antonio, Tex., has been maintained by Wesley Peacock since 1894 and since 1900 has been a military school. It was the first military school in any Gulf state to be recognized by the War Department, which details an army officer for military instruction. The students are organized into a battalion of infantry of three companies.

New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, N.M., in the Pecos Valley, was established by an act of the legislature and opened in September, 1898, but enjoys all the privileges of the older established state military institutions of the East. In 1898 Congress granted it fifty thousand acres of public land which has since been increased, the income from which is used for general maintenance.

Since 1905 a United States Army officer has been detailed for military instruction. Since its inception Col. Jas. W. Wilson has been superintendent. Its cadets are drawn largely from the southwestern states.

Hill Military Academy, Portland, Ore., has been prominent in that section of the Northwest since its establishment fourteen years ago by Dr. J. W. Hill, A.B., Yale '78; M.D., Willamette Univ. '81, who has been identified with the educational interests of Portland for nearly forty years. He is now assisted by his son, Joseph A. Hill, Ph.B., Yale '02. It is a boarding and day school and draws its pupils largely from the Pacific Coast and the Rocky Mountain states. A summer camp is maintained at Newport, a beautiful and picturesque spot on the rugged Oregon coast.

Hitchcock Military Academy, San Rafael, Cal., near San Francisco, was opened in 1878 by Rev. William Dixon, under the name of "Selborne School." In 1899 the school was destroyed by fire, was rebuilt on its new site, and the name changed to Hitchcock Military Academy. Since that time Rex W. Sherer, Ph.B., Univ. of Cal. '08, has been connected with the school, first as commandant and since 1911 as president, and has given the school a conscientious business administration. The patronage is from the western states and Central American countries. The school maintains a summer camp on Eel River in Mendocino County.

Mt. Tamalpais Military Academy, San Rafael, Cal., has had a steady growth since its establishment in 1890. Major Newell F. Vanderbilt, B.S., Cal. Mil. Acad. '94, an instructor for twenty-one years, became the commandant in 1915. It features cavalry and artillery and has an annual military encampment. In the upper and the lower school over a hundred boys are enrolled who come from the Pacific Coast and a dozen other states and countries. The alumni number about one hundred and eighty.

The Harvard School, Los Angeles, Cal., otherwise known as the "Bishop's School for Boys," is a boarding and day school established in 1900 by Grenville Emery, who had for years been a master in the Boston Latin School. Rev. Robert B. Gooden, A.M., Trinity, is the present head master. The trustees of the school include a number of the most prominent business and professional men of Los Angeles. A United States Army officer is detailed by the War Department for military instruction. One hundred and eighty have graduated from the school, some of whom have entered the leading colleges. An attractive feature of the school is its summer camp at Catalina Island, off the coast.

Page Military Academy, Los Angeles, Cal., established in 1908 by Robert A. Gibbs, A.B., Univ. of S. Cal., is a school for young boys through grammar grades. It is an interesting experiment in education, subordinating everything to the needs of the young boy. The school has had a remarkable growth and in 1915 moved into new buildings. At present there are one hundred and sixty boys enrolled.

San Diego Army and Navy Academy, located at Pacific Beach, Cal., a suburb of San Diego, was established in 1910 by Captain Thomas A. Davis, late Sixth U. S. Vol. Infantry. It has had a rapid growth. The climatic and other attractions have drawn students from fifteen states and four foreign countries.

GIRLS' SCHOOLS

MAINE

The Waynflete School, Portland, is a day school having a faculty of twelve and offers general and college preparatory courses. The principals are Miss Crisfield and Miss Lowell. A few resident pupils are accommodated.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Robinson Seminary, Exeter, founded in 1867, is a large and prosperous endowed day school with an attendance of over three hundred, largely local, though half the graduates live outside the state. About fifteen graduates annually enter leading women's colleges of New England. Harlan M. Bisbee, A.B., Bowdoin; A.M., Harvard, has been the principal since 1905.

Mount Saint Mary Seminary, a convent boarding school under the direction of the Sisters of Mercy, was founded at Manchester, half a century ago, but has lately moved to Hookset, eight miles distant. There is a children's department and an academic department, the latter offering finishing and general courses. About one hundred girls are in attendance largely from New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

St. Mary's School for Girls, Concord, is a diocesan Episcopal school established in 1886 by the Rt. Rev. W. W. Niles. It is a boarding and day school offering intermediate, college preparatory, and general courses. The principal is Miss Isabel M. Parks, an excellent teacher, a wise disciplinarian, and a woman of high ideals.

VERMONT

Bishop Hopkins Hall, Burlington, a diocesan boarding and day school named for the first Bishop of Vermont, was founded in 1888. For some years the Hall was closed pending the raising of an endowment fund, which was thought necessary to fulfill the purpose of the founder. In 1913, the fund having been secured, the Hall reopened, and is able to offer special advantages at a comparatively low cost. The principal, Miss Ellen Seton Ogden, Ph.D., Bryn Mawr, was for several years a teacher at Miss Porter's School at Farmington, Conn.

BOSTON

The Winsor School, Pilgrim Road and Riverway Drive, is perhaps the most successful girls' day school in Boston as well as the largest. This is evidence of the able administration and notable executive capacity of Miss Mary Pickard Winsor, a member of the Boston family prominent in education and finance. It has grown in the last thirty years from modest beginnings on Boylston Street to a school of two hundred and fifty pupils. In 1908 it was incorporated with the assistance and financial backing of some of Boston's ablest and most representative men and women, and the present buildings on Riverway Drive were erected to afford the best educational facilities. Miss Winsor's school has long enjoyed the highest social prestige so that it is patronized by the most exclusive Boston families and those who appreciate the social advantages of membership in the school. The administrative and teaching staff of forty provide, in addition to the general finishing course, a college preparatory and a post-graduate course.

The May School, 339 Marlborough St., is a continuation of Miss Folsom's School, which for many years enjoyed the highest social standing. Miss Mary C. S. May, the principal, has established a régime which appeals to a characteristic Boston clientele by whom she is regarded with trust and confidence. With the assistance of her associate, Miss Jessie Degen, she is at the head of a strong college-trained faculty. In addition to the regular college and post-graduate courses, the school offers special advantages for the study and speaking of French.

Miss Guild and Miss Evans's School, 29 Fairfield St. and 200 Commonwealth Ave., succeeded in 1911 the Commonwealth Avenue School which, originally founded in 1883 by the Misses Gilman, had a long and honorable record. Miss Fannie C. Guild was for ten years joint principal with Miss Julia R. Gilman of the Commonwealth Avenue School, and before that for many years a teacher at Dana Hall, Wellesley. Miss Jeannie Evans was for eleven years previous to 1911 associate principal of Dana Hall. She has charge of the academic departments while Miss Guild keeps in immediate touch with the general life of the school.

Miss Lee's School, 344 Marlborough St., a day school, was opened in 1912 by Miss Frances Lee, A.B., Radcliffe '01, for nine years associated with Miss Bertha Carroll's School. The school offers college preparatory and general courses to girls and prepares little boys for secondary schools.

Miss Haskell's School for Girls, 314 Marlborough St., has for the past thirteen years been maintained as a day school by Miss Mary E. Haskell, A.B., Wellesley, a southern woman of personal charm, who has made a place for herself. The school prepares for the leading colleges, and gives also a general course.

Miss McClintock's School, 4 Arlington St., one of the younger schools in Boston, is a small boarding school accepting thirty day pupils. Miss Mary Law McClintock's purpose is to train a small number of girls according to her broad educational and social ideals, and also to afford all the advantages of Boston to girls from outside New England. As the boarding department is limited to a dozen or fifteen girls Miss McClintock is able to give each pupil close personal supervision in an intimate, cultured home life. Born in the South, educated in the West, A.B., Goucher Coll.; Ph.M., Univ. of Chicago, and having taught many years in the East, Miss McClintock has brought wide experience and sympathetic understanding as well as originality to the special needs of the girls committed to her care, and has won the affection of her pupils and the confidence of their parents.

Miss Church's School, 6 Gloucester St. & 401 Beacon St., is a day school with a resident department attracting its pupils from families of position and wealth throughout New England. The school was established sixteen years ago by Miss Mary E. Church, previously of the Gilman School. It prepares girls for the demands and activities of social life. Miss Church is an Episcopalian and all resident pupils are expected to attend Trinity Church.

Miss Chamberlayne's School for Girls, The Fenway, is both a day and boarding school maintained for twenty-four years by Miss Catharine J. Chamberlayne, A.M., who had previously had a long and successful experience in New England schools. Miss Chamberlayne brought to her project mature experience and tried ability, so that the school has made a substantial name for itself and draws not only from Boston but from the East, South, and West. Eleven years ago the school moved from Commonwealth Avenue to its new building in the Fenway. It is a finishing school with an enrollment of thirty-five girls offering varied and attractive electives and also affording opportunity for college preparation.

The Brimmer School, 67-69 Brimmer St., is a large day school for girls with a lower school to which boys are admitted in the primary grades and there is also a Montessori class for little children. The Upper School prepares efficiently for college. The school is a continuation of Miss Cummings' School, which was formed in 1912 through the union of Miss Browne's Classical School for Girls, established in 1887, and Miss Creech's School, which dated from 1909. Increasing numbers required a new fireproof building better adapted to the school purposes, in which the school opened in 1914. The school is now controlled by a corporation of which Richard G. Maclaurin, President of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is the head. Miss Mabel Homer Cummings, the principal, A.B., Smith '95, taught in the Chestnut Hill School, Brookline, and was principal of the preparatory department of the Volkman School before she bought the Classical School for Girls in 1911. The assistant principal is Miss M. M. Pickering and there is a faculty of twenty-five.

The Curtis-Peabody School, 507 Beacon St., provides for older girls in college preparatory and general courses. There is also an open-air school for children as young as six. Miss Elizabeth Curtis and Miss Lucy G. Peabody are the principals.

The Cambridge School for Girls, formerly the Gilman School, has through its founder been closely connected with the development of Radcliffe College. Mr. Arthur Gilman conceived the plan of affording women a systematic course of studies under Harvard instructors which resulted in the "Annex" that later became Radcliffe. The success of the "Annex" led Mr. Gilman in 1886 to establish a school for younger girls. It soon became the foremost girls' school for the families of old Cambridge. Miss Ruth Coit, a niece of the great head master of St. Paul's, received her early training under him. She was associated with Mr. Gilman during the last years of his administration and since his death in 1907 has been head mistress. A woman of unusual intellectual vigor she ably maintains the prestige of the school. There is a day department providing for girls of all ages and offering both college preparatory and general courses. The residence nearby on Concord Avenue affords accommodation for a small number of boarding pupils. In 1909 the school was incorporated under its present name. The board of directors includes members of the faculties of Harvard and Radcliffe.

Lasell Seminary, Auburndale, is a school of national rather than local repute. Founded in 1851 by Professor Edward Lasell of Williams College, it was from 1874 until 1908 under the control of Charles C. Bragdon, who introduced many practical features, including the study of domestic science on a scientific basis. In 1908 Dr. Guy M. Winslow, A.B., Tufts '95, Ph.D. '98, who had for ten years previously been an instructor in the school, bought a controlling interest in the property. He is a man with practical business ideals of the education of the modern woman. The students average nineteen years of age and the faculty of forty offer many courses of college grade.

Dana Hall, Wellesley, was founded in 1881 by the Misses Julia A. and Sarah P. Eastman with the cooperation of Wellesley College, as a preparatory school for that institution. Since 1899 it has been under the exceptionally strong management of Miss Helen Temple Cooke. To her administrative ability it is due that Dana Hall has become one of the leading secondary schools for girls in the United States, with a total attendance of about three hundred. Miss Cooke is a woman of remarkable personality, clear-sightedness, and executive capacity, with the highest ideals of womanhood. She makes a strong appeal to girls and her influence upon them is inspiring and lasting.

To broaden the scope of Dana Hall work, Miss Cooke has established two coordinated schools: Tenacre, opened in 1910 for younger girls, fits them for the secondary schools; Pine Manor, opened in 1911, is a post-graduate department intended for the graduates of Dana Hall and of other secondary schools who desire advanced academic work, music, or art. The department heads, women of unusual capacity, all have been with the school sixteen years or more. Mrs. Margaret Stannard is in charge of a comprehensive course in homemaking. Of eighty graduates yearly about thirty enter college. The body of alumnae numbers nearly two thousand. See p. 533.

Walnut Hill School, Natick, within two miles of Wellesley, is a college preparatory school. It was established in 1893 at the suggestion of President Shafer of Wellesley College by the present principals, Miss Charlotte H. Conant and Miss Florence Bigelow. Both are Wellesley graduates, and Miss Bigelow was for four years an instructor in the college. Its proximity to Wellesley enables students and instructors to keep in close touch with Wellesley activities, and the college recommends to it many girls found unprepared to meet its exacting requirements. The high standard of instruction maintained makes Walnut Hill today one of the best college preparatory schools in New England. See p. 532.

The Misses Allen School for Girls was established by the daughters of the late Nathaniel T. Allen, abolitionist, educator, reformer, philanthropist. In 1904 they opened the old Colonial Allen homestead at West Newton for young ladies. The forty pupils are drawn from all sections. The school prepares for college, and graduates are now in all leading colleges. Miss Lucy E. Allen, A.B., Smith, conducts the school. It is distinctly a family and home school where girls receive much individual attention. See p. 532.

Mount Ida School for Girls, Newton, established and owned by Mr. and Mrs. George Franklin Jewett, is now in its seventeenth year. It is a finishing school, attracting, partly through extensive advertising, about one hundred girls from all parts of the country.

Miss Faulkner's House of Education for Girls, Dedham, is a small boarding school with a larger day department patronized largely by the representative families of Dedham. Miss Faulkner is English both by birth and training, and the school is modeled largely after the English girls' schools. She gives much attention to personal development of pupils who do not go to college.

Quincy Mansion School, Wollaston, was founded twenty-one years ago by the well-known New England educator, Horace Mann Willard, whose widow is the principal. The school offers both preparatory and special courses.

Hathaway House, Milton, offers resident accommodation for eighteen girls in attendance at Milton Academy. It is under the supervision of the academy though not a part of it. Since 1901 the academy has maintained a separate department attended by over forty girls above the primary grades.

Howard Seminary, West Bridgewater, established in 1867, was long under the management of Miss Sarah E. Laughton and closed in 1914. In 1915 it was reorganized and reopened under the management of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Kendall as a country boarding school for girls.

Standish Manor School, Halifax, twenty miles from Boston and twelve miles from Plymouth, is a home school for backward girls where they may receive special attention. Opened as the Ivy Lodge School at East Orleans a few years ago by Mrs. Ellen C. Dresser, its growth necessitated its removal to its present home.

Resthaven, conducted by Miss Catharine Regina Seabury since 1912 on her farm at Mendon, one hour from Boston, is limited to fifteen girls. Miss Seabury, the daughter of the Rev. Samuel Seabury, editor of The Churchman, studied at Bryn Mawr College and Radcliffe, and was twelve years head of St. Agnes, an Episcopal school at Albany. See p. 531.

House in the Pines was established five years ago by Miss Gertrude E. Cornish, at Norton, where proximity to Wheaton College offers opportunities for lectures and concerts. Miss Cornish, who was previously a teacher at Farmington, is a young woman especially fitted to win the admiration and comradeship of her pupils. The forty resident pupils come from widespread regions. The elementary department under the direction of Miss Harriet Huson has applied new and original ideas.

Marycliff Academy, Arlington Heights, is a Catholic boarding school for girls but students of all denominations are welcomed. It was first opened in 1913 in the old "Robbins Spring Hotel." It is conducted by the Sisters of Christian Education, a teaching order founded in 1817.

Bradford Academy, the oldest institution in New England for the higher education of women, was established in 1803 by the parishioners of the Congregational church of the town of Bradford and until 1836 was coeducational. The school has been fortunate throughout its history in having on its board of trustees men and women of unusual capacity and devotion to the interests of Bradford. Alice Freeman Palmer long took an active interest which is continued today by her husband, Professor George Herbert Palmer, and by the present treasurer, Lewis Kennedy Morse. The strong personality of Miss Laura A. Knott, A.M., the principal since 1901, is stamped on the life and work of the school. Preparation for the leading colleges is especially accented though the other phases of school life are not neglected. The unusual advantages of Bradford early drew students from all over New England, but for many decades the patronage has been national. During the century and more of its existence over seven thousand students have attended the school. At present there are one hundred and forty-five students guided by a large and efficient faculty. Superior advantages are made possible at a moderate price through an endowment generously contributed by friends since the beginning and by its exceptionally strong management. See p. 529.

Whittier School, Merrimack, named for the Quaker poet, whose home is two miles distant, has been maintained since 1893 by Mr. and Mrs. Wm. M. Russell. Mrs. Annie Brackett Russell is a graduate of Boston University and for sixteen years has been assisted by her sister, Miss Brackett. The school makes no pretenses, but offers a quiet, pleasant home life, with college preparation for those who desire.

Abbot Academy was founded in 1820, the first incorporated school in New England solely for the education of young women. It is at Andover, which has long been an educational center, twenty-three miles north of Boston. Abbot has been fortunate in having a succession of strong and able women as its principals, who have always maintained high educational ideals, inspiring the students and helping them to do most efficient work. The strong influence of Miss Emily Means, principal for many years until her retirement in 1912, still remains with the school. The present principal, Miss Bertha Bailey, formerly of the Taconic School, has in her four years of office ably maintained its standards. The school is rich in traditions and endowments, and has a large body of loyal alumnae. A democratic spirit prevails among the one hundred and forty girls, who are drawn largely from New England.

Rogers Hall, Lowell, occupies the old Colonial mansion and estate of Miss Elizabeth Rogers who gave it, together with a generous endowment, for that purpose. The school was created by Mrs. Underhill and since her retirement in 1910 her sister, Miss Olive S. Parsons, A.B., Univ. of Chicago, long associated with her, has been the principal. It offers college preparatory and academic work and specializes in music and the household arts.

The Concord School for Girls, Concord, formerly Miss White's, was taken over in 1914 by Miss Marianna Woodhull, A.B., Smith; A.M., Columbia. Her broad training and social experience enable her to maintain high scholastic standards and a home of quiet dignity, simplicity, and charm.

The Sea Pines Home School for Girls, Brewster, Cape Cod, has been conducted by the Bickfords since 1907. The Rev. Thomas Bickford, formerly a Congregational minister in Cambridge, and Mrs. Bickford, together with their two daughters, all play a part in the school life. Miss Faith Bickford is the potent force in the school and heads the "department of applied personality." There is an atmosphere of service, enthusiasm, and affection, so that it seems quite natural to hear the girls address the principal and his wife as "father" and "mother." Girls may follow any line of study, music, domestic science, physical culture, or college preparation.

The Bancroft School, 111 Elm St., Worcester, was organized in 1900, and two years later was incorporated with the assistance of prominent residents of Worcester. The academic department is limited to girls. Miriam Titcomb, B.L., Smith, became the principal of the school in 1915.

The Brookfield School is an open-air school at North Brookfield recently opened by Miss Helen and Miss Marion Cooke, both graduates of Wellesley, who for years had been teachers in the Worcester High Schools.

The MacDuffie School, Springfield, which has been conducted by Dr. and Mrs. MacDuffie for about twenty-five years, has justly won a reputation for the soundness of its academic work. As a result it is frequently recommended by the authorities of Smith College, for which it especially prepares. It continues the traditions, in a way, of the school long conducted by Mrs. MacDuffie's father at Greenfield. The strength of the school lies in the combination of Mrs. MacDuffie's love of teaching and Dr. MacDuffie's discernment in administration. The day school of forty and the thirty resident pupils, who come from all parts of the country, receive a sound training in the friendly atmosphere of a home. About one fourth of the girls enter college, chiefly Smith.

The Mary A. Burnham School, Northampton, was established in 1877 at the suggestion of President Seelye of Smith College, as a preparatory school for Smith. From the first Miss Bessie T. Capen was financially interested with Miss Burnham and in 1880 became associate principal. On Miss Burnham's death in 1885 Miss Capen continued the school until 1904 as The Burnham School. It was known as the Northampton School for Girls until 1909 when the Burnham heirs, represented by Miss Martha C. Burnham, sister of the founder, resumed the former name, establishing a separate school in the Burnham House. Miss Helen E. Thompson, head mistress since that time, has been connected with the school since 1879. Miss Thompson's conscientious interest and devotion to the school has been recognized in giving her complete control and responsibility. There is an alumnae association of three hundred. Over seven hundred girls have lived in Burnham House. See p. 528.

Miss Capen's School, Northampton, in proximity to Smith College, is one of the best known preparatory schools for it. About half the girls take the college preparatory course, the others general studies. Miss Capen, though associated with Miss Burnham from the foundation of this school in 1877, was for a time an instructor in chemistry at Wellesley and Smith Colleges. In 1909 at the time of the division of what was then known as the Northampton School for Girls many of the faculty remained with Miss Capen and she retained some of the more modern buildings. Miss Bessie F. Gill and Miss Louise Capen, both graduates of Smith College, assist in the management. The Alumnae of the school are loyal and return to their reunions with enthusiasm.

Northfield Seminary in the village of East Northfield, just across the Connecticut river from the Mount Hermon School, is under the control of the same board of trustees. Both institutions owe their origin to the great revivalist, Dwight L. Moody. The seminary was founded in 1879 and incorporated in 1881. It has an endowment of nearly a million, and as the girls perform a large part of the domestic work, cost of board and instruction is kept very low. The school successfully meets a special need in offering educational opportunities to earnest, eager girls of limited means to secure an excellent education. Charles E. Dickerson, M.S., is the principal. The student body of six hundred and thirty-five is national and international, many pupils being sent from abroad by missionaries.

Miss Hall's School is pleasantly located on the outskirts of the city of Pittsfield. In the last fifteen years the school has grown from modest beginnings through Miss Hall's administrative genius, until it has won national reputation and patronage. The school centers about her personality and embodies her educational and social ideals. Miss Hall has been successful in impressing her ideals of American womanhood upon the girls who come under her influence. A discriminating standard of admission has always been maintained, and the endorsement of friends or patrons is required before a girl will be considered as a candidate.

RHODE ISLAND

Lincoln School for Girls, established in 1884 and incorporated in 1912, is a resident and day school on the outskirts of Providence combining the advantages of the city and country. Miss Frances Lucas, A.B., Wellesley, is the principal. In addition to the lower school there is a college preparatory course and a general course with a large number of electives.

The Mary C. Wheeler Town and Country School, established in Providence in 1889, is a resident school with a large farm half an hour by auto omnibus from the city school. Here week-ends are spent and facilities afforded for experimental work in horticulture and domestic science. Miss Wheeler spent six years studying art in Paris. Thus she is able to offer special opportunities for art study in addition to the usual courses. The college preparatory course is maintained at high efficiency. Courses in horticulture, agriculture, and domestic science are especially emphasized for girls not going to college. See p. 534.

The Berkeley School for Girls, Newport, was organized by Mrs. Stephen Elliot Balch at the suggestion and with the support of Newport's summer and naval colony, from whom she draws her patronage. It opened in 1914 with ten girls. A Montessori class is conducted for children.

Tolethorpe, a boarding and day school, was opened in Newport in 1914 by Miss S. Alice Browne, founder and former principal of the Classical School for Girls, Boston, and Miss Ethel K. Simes-Nowell. It offers college preparatory and general courses.

CONNECTICUT

Miss Porter's School, Farmington, near Hartford, began in a small way in 1844, centering around the personality of Miss Sarah Porter, a sister of President Porter of Yale. This remarkable woman gave her whole life to the school up to the time of her death in 1900 at the age of eighty-seven. Her fame as a teacher as it became more widely appreciated drew to her increasing numbers from which she selected the best material. "Her impress upon her long line of pupils was the result of her own unusual character. She gave to hundreds of the best-born women of the land that poise and stability of character, that combination of learning and good manners, which is a mark of the noblest American womanhood." In its long history Miss Porter's School has probably exerted a greater influence on American womanhood than any other educational institution except perhaps Mt. Holyoke under Miss Lyon. On Miss Porter's death her nephew, Robert Porter Keep, became trustee of the school, which since his death has been under the able administration of Mrs. Keep, who had herself been a pupil of Miss Porter.

The Oxford School is a day school established in 1908 for the well-to-do residents of Hartford. Miss Mary E. Martin, the principal, holds to conservative views of education for girls. There are about fifty day pupils in the primary, lower, and upper schools. A small number of boarding pupils are accommodated.

The Campbell School, Windsor, succeeded in 1903 the Hayden Hall School established in 1867. It is conducted by Dr. A. H. Campbell, A.B., Dartmouth '77, A.M., '80, and Mrs. Campbell, who offer complete courses at a moderate price. For forty years Dr. Campbell has been engaged in New England education. There is an elementary department open to girls as young as eight years.

"Wykeham Rise," Washington, was established in 1902 by Miss Fanny E. Davies, an Englishwoman, who received her degree at St. Andrews. The school has been successful, enlisting a widespread and exclusive patronage. There are about fifty resident pupils, and college preparation is accented chiefly for Bryn Mawr, though many other colleges are represented among its alumnæ.

St. Margaret's School, Waterbury, established in 1875, is an Episcopal boarding and day school under a board of trustees of which the Bishop of Connecticut is the president. Miss Emily Gardner Monro, A.B., Brown, who became principal in 1909 when its fortunes were ebbing, has been most successful in building up the school both in numbers and prestige. Today there is a day school of seventy-five and about fifty boarding pupils who come from the eastern and middle western states. Miss Monro has made intimate friends of the girls and makes the school in every way a home center. About one fifth of each graduating class now enter college. The five hundred alumnae are organized into an active association.

Westover, a country boarding school for girls near Middlebury, has attained a reputation of social prestige and exclusiveness. It was established and incorporated in 1909 by Miss Mary Robbins Hillard with the assistance of wealthy friends of social prominence. Miss Hillard was for six years a teacher at Miss Porter's School, Farmington, and from 1891 for eighteen years principal of St. Margaret's School in the adjoining town. The school offers a well-rounded training for social requirements and college preparation for those who wish. There is a yearly graduating class of about forty, of whom six or eight enter college. The patronage, though strongest from the eastern states, represents all parts of the United States.

The Phelps School, established eleven years ago at Wallingford by Mrs. Phelps, is a small boarding school emphasizing college preparation now owned by Miss Florence M. and Miss Alice E. Peck. It will be moved to Mt. Carmel in the fall of 1916.

The Gateway is a day school for the cultured and wealthy families in New Haven, and provides for education from kindergarten to college. Little boys are admitted to the kindergarten and elementary departments. Miss Alice E. Reynolds, the principal who established the school, was formerly a teacher in Miss Porter's School at Farmington, and is a strong supervisor with administrative and executive ability. There is provision in the residence for about twenty boarding pupils.

Hillside, Norwalk, is a day and boarding school established in 1883 by Mrs. Elizabeth Hyde Mead. The school today, however, is the result of the capable and able teaching of Miss Margaret Brendlinger, A.B., Vassar '95, the principal since 1908, who had also previously been an instructor in this and other schools. In 1910 Miss Vida Hunt Francis, of Smith, became associate principal and they purchased the property. The school is characterized by simplicity and sincerity, and recognition of its worth has resulted in the increase of the number from only a few girls to over seventy. Complete graded courses from primary to college are offered, but college preparation is emphasized, and Vassar, recognizing the thoroughness of Miss Brendlinger's work, sends to Hillside many who register for college but are incompletely prepared. See p. 535.

Miss Low and Miss Heywood's School, Stamford, was established in 1865 by Mrs. C. E. Richardson, an Englishwoman of wide educational experience, and was modeled after the best of the English private schools for girls. In 1883 the school came under the management of the present principals, Miss Low and Miss Heywood, who have continued, so far as practicable, the policies and ideals of the founder. The school has recently been moved to Shippan Point, Stamford, on the Sound, where there is room for more outdoor life. The resident pupils come from leading families throughout the country, while the day department is well supported by the families of Stamford.

Rosemary Hall, a college preparatory school for girls at Greenwich, prepares for all colleges and especially for Bryn Mawr. It was founded by Miss Caroline Ruutz-Rees at Wallingford in 1890 and moved to Greenwich in 1900. Dr. Ruutz-Rees is an English-woman much interested in intellectual activities, who has taken degrees at St. Andrews and Columbia and has lived in the United States since 1883. Since 1909 Dr. Mary E. Lowndes, graduate of Girton College, England, and Litt.D., University of Dublin, has been associated with the school, becoming joint head mistress in 1911. Several of the teachers are English and the school conforms in many ways to English ideals. In 1914 Miss Anna Ryan, A.B., Smith, formerly head of the Villa Dupont School of Paris, joined the school as associate head. The patronage is largely from the wealthy families of New York and all over the country.

The Ely School for Girls, Ely Court, Greenwich, was formerly The Misses Ely's School on Riverside Drive, one of the prominent and fashionable schools of New York City. Founded by the three Ely sisters, it is continued by two of them, Miss Elizabeth Ely and Mrs. Sarah Ely Parsons, and their brother, Mr. Arthur H. Ely, A.B., Yale. The school has a strong faculty and the new buildings and site are unusually attractive.

Miss Howe and Miss Marot's School, Thompson, in northwestern Connecticut, was established in Dayton, Ohio, in 1905, and moved to its present home in 1913. Miss Howe was trained at Mt. Holyoke and in France, Miss Marot was educated at Wellesley and at Chicago University. Both were instructors in Miss Porter's School at Farmington. The school offers an unusually broad curriculum.

Wheeler School, North Stonington, is a small boarding and day school of local patronage for boys and girls. Founded by Miss Jennie Wheeler and endowed by her brother, it is now under a board of directors. In addition to college preparation, courses are offered in agriculture and domestic science. The principal, Royal A. Moore, is a graduate of Harvard '05.

MIDDLE STATES AND MARYLAND

NEW YORK NEW YORK CITY

The Spence School for Girls, 30 W. 55th St., has enjoyed high social prestige since its establishment in 1892. Miss Clara B. Spence graduated from Boston University in 1879 and afterwards studied in London. Miss Spence is an educator of strong and gracious personality, and, with the implicit confidence of her patrons, has been able to live uncompromisingly up to her ideals. A high standard of scholarship is maintained in intermediate, college preparatory, and finishing courses. There are about three hundred girls in attendance, largely day pupils from the exclusive families of New York City. Admission to the school is so eagerly sought that there is a waiting list. The resident pupils come from wealthy families of all sections, who appreciate the social and academic advantages of the associations the school offers. The alumnae are loyal and universally proud of their school.

Miss Chapin's School, 32 E. 57th St., was established many years ago by Miss Maria Bowen Chapin as a primary school. It has met with merited success and won the highest reputation through the character of its work and has developed into a large day school. There are little girls and boys in the kindergarten and primary grades and the upper school provides finishing and college preparatory courses. Miss Chapin is a woman of very high ideals, gentleness and modesty, who has won and holds a clientele among the best families of the city so that her lists are always filled. Afternoon play and work are provided.

Mrs. Randall-MacIver's School, 37 E. 60th St., is for all ages. Until her marriage it was conducted as Miss Davidge's Classes. College preparation is undertaken, but the special feature of the school is the informal classes in history, literature, art, and current events. Weekly visits are made to the Metropolitan Museum for the study of art. Mrs. Randall-MacIver's personality with her rare gift of expressing the rich fruitage of her unusual mind have brought her a well-established and desirable clientele.

Miss Louise F. Wickham, 338 Lexington Ave., has for twenty-two years maintained her school in the old Wickham homestead, affording an intimate home life and chaperonage for ten to fifteen girls who wish the advantages of residence in New York and opportunity for special study along varied lines. Some of these girls attend such day schools as Brearley.

The Leete School, 17 E. 60th St., is the direct successor of the School for Girls established by Dr. Sachs in 1891. Dr. Sachs, now of Teachers College, gave up secondary school work in 1907, and since that time Charles H. Leete has been the principal. Dr. Leete, A.B., Yale '79, Ph.D., has been associated with the Sachs Schools continuously since 1881, except for a period of study in Germany. Miss Mary Calhoun, A.B., Columbia, a teacher in the Horace Mann School for thirteen years, is the assistant principal. The school is for day pupils only. Its graduates have entered Barnard, Vassar, Smith, Bryn Mawr, and Teachers College. Little boys are admitted to the elementary and the Montessori classes.

The Brearley School, 60 E. 61st St., was established in 1884 by Samuel Brearley, a Harvard man who had studied in England, for the purpose of providing a more substantial school for girls and more thorough preparation for college than the schools of the time offered. At his death in 1886 the school was continued by its patrons and has since 1912 been administered by a board of trustees, the members of which are men and women prominent in New York educational and financial circles. It is exclusively a day school, perhaps foremost among the college preparatory schools of New York, both in thoroughness and in the number of girls prepared for college. About two hundred girls from New York upper class families are in attendance. From 1887 until his death in 1915 James G. Croswell, Harvard '73, was head master. Mr. Croswell was an educator of the first rank and maintained the highest educational standards. Henry Dwight Sedgwick, a writer of literary antecedents, was elected head master in 1915.

Miss Fawcett's School for Girls, 127 E. 61st St., is a finishing and college preparatory school with facilities for day and boarding pupils. Miss Fawcett studied at the University of Lausanne, the Sorbonne, and Oxford University.

Miss Hopkins' School for Girls, 112 E. 64th St., is a small day school of high ideals maintained by Miss Emma B. Hopkins, B.S., Columbia, which appeals in a lesser degree to the same clientele as Miss Chapin's.

The Comstock School for Girls, 52 E. 72d St., was established in 1862 by Miss M. Louise Comstock, who retired in 1885. Miss Lydia Dwight Day, who for some years had been associated with Miss Comstock, has since her death thirty-one years ago continued the school, keeping it abreast of modern progress. Mrs. E. Russell Houghton of the Knox School was associated with Miss Day from 1906 to 1911. In 1912 on its fiftieth anniversary the school moved to its attractive new home. It is a day school with a limited number of boarding pupils. The school numbers among its alumnae Mrs. Shepard (Helen Gould) and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

The Deverell School for Girls, of Paris, is during the War located at 57 E. 74th St. Music is a feature and French is the language of the school, spoken at all times. Miss Frances E. Deverell has had both broad training as a pianist and experience as a teacher.

The Finch School, 61 E. 77th St., was established in 1900 by Miss Jessica G. Finch, Barnard '03; N.Y. Univ. '08, now Mrs. John O'Hara Cosgrave. It is a successful finishing school in the fashionable part of the city near Central Park "intended for older girls who have completed the more disciplinary work of their earlier school years and are ready for a broader intellectual atmosphere and for the advantages, musical, artistic, and dramatic, of a large city." In 1913 a new technical school department was added offering courses in secretarial training, domestic science, book-binding, sewing, marketing, and shopping. It draws from upper-class families all over the country, providing accommodation for sixty-five resident pupils and an equal number of New York day pupils.

The French School for Girls, Miss McClellan and Miss Williams' School, 24 E. 94th St., was opened two years ago as a finishing school to take the place of a foreign school. French is the spoken language. Miss Louise McClellan has had a broad experience in teaching at Farmington and other girls' schools. Both she and Miss Margaret F. J. Williams were for a time at Miss Head's School, California, and later at Briarcliff Manor.

The Charlton School, 646 Park Ave., incorporated in 1905, and controlled by a board of trustees, is a large day school for girls admitting boys to the kindergarten and primary classes. Miss Emily H. Welch, the principal since 1914, is a Vassar graduate of the class of 1904. The school maintains a strong faculty of college-trained women and lays special emphasis on college preparatory work.

The Gardner School, 607 Fifth Ave., was established in 1857 by Mrs. Charles H. Gardner, still principal emerita. Miss Louise Eltinge, a graduate of Teachers College '05, and Miss M. E. Masland, Bryn Mawr '01, both of whom had been connected with the school for several years previously, became the principals in 1910. There are a limited number of resident pupils from all sections of the country.

Miss McFee's School for Girls, 152 W. 72d St., has been conducted since 1895 by Miss McFee, who has since been principal. Associated with her are Miss A. McFee, M.D., C.M., Trinity, and Miss Donalda McFee, A.B., McGill; Ph.D., Zurich. The school offers work from kindergarten through college preparation to both boarding and day pupils.

Mrs. Isabel D. Coates receives in her home, 228 W. 72d St., a small number of girls who wish to study art, music, and the languages. Miss Weaver, formerly of a girls' school in Munich, has recently become associated with the school.

The Veltin School, 160 W. 74th St., for day pupils only, was established in 1886 by Mlle. Louise Veltin, who now has associated with her as assistant principal, Mrs. Sprague-Smith, and is a school of high academic standing. It has an established reputation for thoroughness in preparing for Vassar, Bryn Mawr, and Barnard, which girls have entered in about equal numbers. The teaching of French and art in this school is especially noteworthy.

The Rayson School for Girls, 164-168 W. 75th St., was established twenty-one years ago by the Rayson sisters, who were English. In 1914 on inheriting wealth they retired and the school was taken over by Miss Clara I. Colburne, A.B., Univ. of Vermont, and Miss Martha K. Humphrey, A.B., Smith, formerly principals of Rowland Hall, Utah. It is a day school, but the principals receive in their home twelve resident girls. It offers the usual general courses including post-graduate work and college preparation. About one half of each graduating class enter the leading colleges, particularly Vassar and Bryn Mawr.

The Graham School, 42 Riverside Drive, at 76th St., established in 1816, is the oldest existing private school for girls in New York. It owes its name to the Misses Graham, conservative Presbyterians, who long controlled it. Mrs. Howard Dwight Miner, a Wellesley graduate, a teacher under them, was co-principal for two years. Since her death the school has been efficiently conducted by Mr. Miner, a graduate of Williams '01, assisted by Miss Anne C. Gates, Wellesley '97. The curriculum covers the whole school course, and there is accommodation for a small number of resident pupils. The school has an established patronage, daughters and grand-daughters of former alumnae. Elihu Root and John Bigelow were once instructors. Julia Ward Howe and Mabel Osgood Wright are alumnae. This centennial year has witnessed renewed activity in the alumnae association of two hundred.

New York Collegiate Institute, Miss Mary Schoonmaker's School for Girls, 345 West End Ave., has for twenty-seven years provided courses from kindergarten through college preparatory and finishing work. The teachers are mostly college graduates and five have been with the school for over fifteen years.

The Semple School, 241 Central Park West, has been maintained as a day and boarding school since 1898 by Mrs. T. Darrington Semple. It is a well-known and high-class finishing school, having a fashionable patronage largely from out of town, its girls coming from both South and West.

The Benjamin School for Girls, Riverside Drive near 86th St., a home and day school, was established by Mrs. Maurice C. Benjamin, A.B., A.M., Syracuse, in 1905. The school is patronized by girls from the leading Jewish families of the United States. A specialty is made of preparation for college. The school maintains a high academic standing and offers excellent advantages in music.

Alcuin Preparatory School, 15 W. 86th St., is a large day school with a competent faculty of twenty, offering courses to meet the needs of all classes of girls. The principals are Miss Blanche Hirsch, B.S., and Miss Grace H. Kupfer, A.M.

Institut Tisé, 310 W. 88th St., founded in 1893 by the present principal, Madame Henriette Tisé, a graduate of the University of France, is a day school offering courses from kindergarten through college preparatory.

St. Agatha, 553 West End Ave., was established as a separate Church school for girls in 1898 by the corporation which has existed since 1827 under the name of the New York Protestant Episcopal Public School and which administers Trinity School. St. Agatha is a day school. Miss Emma C. Sebring, A.B., Smith '89, for three years a member of the faculty of Teachers College, has since 1898 been the principal and maintains a high standard of excellence.

De Lancey School for Girls, West End Ave. & 98th St., was established by Miss Amelia De Lancey, its present principal, in 1876 and has been in its present location for the last eight years. Miss Mary McNear Wolt is the associate principal. The school has been long under one management and as one might expect is conservative in spirit, retaining the best of the earlier methods and adopting the valuable and practical in the modern. Young girls here receive sympathetic and motherly attention. The departments range from kindergarten and primary grades to college preparation. There are also classes in which boys are prepared for the grammar departments of all boys' schools.

Hamilton Institute for Girls, 326 W. 90th St., of which Mrs. N. Archibald Shaw, Jr., a teacher of thirty years' experience, is the principal, was established in 1903 as a result of the success of the Hamilton Institute for Boys established by her husband ten years previously. It occupies a separate but adjoining building. Girls have been successfully prepared for the leading colleges.

The Scudder School for Girls, 59 W. 96th St., became so known in 1912, an older school established in 1895 having been taken over by Myron T. Scudder the previous year. Mr. Scudder brought to the school a varied educational experience, having been successively a teacher, a Regents' Inspector, a State Normal School principal, and professor of education at Rutgers. The school wishes to be known as an efficiency center. There are a great variety of courses, —Montessori kindergarten, elementary, high school, and secretarial. The residence for boarding pupils is under the charge of Mrs. Scudder.

Home School for Girls, 320 W. 107th St., conducted by Miss Helen C. Macintyre and Mlle. J. Talguen, offers courses in French and special studies for girls desirous of the advantages of New York City.

The Horace Mann School, Broadway at 120th St., under the auspices of Teachers College, comprises a high school for girls preparing for college and an elementary school and kindergarten for both boys and girls. It was established in 1887 as a coeducational practice school in connection with Teachers College. In 1914 the boys' school was separated, except the kindergarten and elementary departments, and the school now has its own staff of experienced teachers. Sixty per cent of the girls prepare for college. Henry Carr Pearson is principal.

The Barnard School for Girls, 421 & 423 W. 148th St., is one of the group of four schools established by William L. Hazen and Theo. E. Lyon in 1896. It is a large local day school at a low price, having an attendance of one hundred and fifty girls and about forty little boys in the elementary department. Miss Katharine H. Davis is the principal. Physical education is emphasized.

Riverside School, 879 West End Ave., now in its ninth year, was formed by the union of two separate schools conducted by the present co-principals, Miss Marion Lighthipe and Mrs. Pauline W. Sharpe. It is a day school for pupils from kindergarten through the high school grades. Little boys are taken through the fourth year of the elementary school.

Ursuline Academy, 1032 Grand Concourse Ave., cor. 165th St., is a small boarding and day school chartered by the Regents of the State of New York. About eighty-five girls attend the school at moderate cost.

Scoville School, 2042 Fifth Ave., has for seventeen years been maintained by Mrs. Helen M. Scoville, Mills College, at its present location above Mt. Morris Park. The school originated as early as 1882 under Miss North, who was succeeded by Miss Edith Gregory. The school was then purchased by Mrs. Scoville and until eleven years ago was known as the Classical School for Girls. Previous to 1893 Mrs. Scoville was for eight years engaged in teaching in California.

Miss Bangs and Miss Whiton's School for Girls, Riverdale Ave. near 252d St., was first opened in 1890 and continued until 1900, when they accepted the principalship of the National Cathedral School in Washington. In 1906 they resigned and reopened their school in New York on Madison Ave., removing three years later to their present site in the country between the Hudson river and Van Cortlandt Park. The girls come from all over the country as well as day pupils from New York. See p. 536.

Academy Mount Saint Vincent, on the Hudson in the suburbs of New York City, is a convent boarding school maintained since 1847 by the Sisters of Charity. Miss Alice Granahan is the principal.

The Brooklyn Heights Seminary, 18 Pierrepont St., is a day school for girls and small boys which provides instruction from Montessori through the high school grades. Established in 1851 by Alonzo Gray, the school was incorporated by its patrons in 1903, and Miss Ellen Y. Stevens, Ph.B., Univ. of Chicago '00, for ten years in the Horace Mann School, has since been principal. Miss Stevens is now assisted by Miss Flora Greer, A.B., Vassar. The Montessori and primary classes recite in the open air.

The Packer Collegiate Institute, 170 Joralemon St., on Brooklyn Heights, offers elementary and secondary instruction as well as a two-year college course. The academic department with four hundred and seventy day scholars is the largest. There are over one hundred and fifty in the elementary department and about one hundred in the collegiate. In its long history the school has played an important part in the education of Brooklyn families. It opened in 1854 and was named in honor of Mrs. H. L. Packer who gave money for the new building, but it occupies the site of the Brooklyn Female Academy organized by public-spirited citizens in 1845. It is administered by a board of trustees. Edward J. Goodwin, A.B., Bates '72; L.H.D., Amherst '05, who had had a long previous experience in varied educational capacities, has been principal since 1908.

The Berkeley Institute, 181-191 Lincoln Pl., Brooklyn, a day school, was incorporated in 1886, and is under a board of trustees. Since 1909 Henry White Callahan, A.B., A.M., Hamilton; Ph.D., Rutgers, who has had a wide educational experience, has been the principal.

Cathedral School of St. Mary, Garden City, is maintained by the Chapter of the Cathedral of the Incarnation. It was opened by the Bishop of the diocese in 1877, and the present main building was erected in 1892 as the gift of Mrs. A. T. Stewart. It is both a boarding and day school, with religious instruction in all grades. Since 1910 Miss Miriam A. Bytel, A.B., Radcliffe '05, has been the principal. For nine years previously she had been connected with the Cambridge School for Girls. Under her administration standards have been raised and a larger proportion of the girls prepare for college. The school also offers general and advanced courses for those who do not wish to go to college. See p. 536.

Hewlett School for Girls, Hewlett, on the south shore of Long Island, is a country day and boarding school opened in 1915. Mrs. Charles A. Noble, Miss Eugenia G. Coope, and Miss Marian Noble are the principals.

Pelham Manor School, Pelham Manor, was maintained from 1899 until 1915 by Mrs. John C. Hazen, who within the year has given up the management.

The Manor School, at Larchmont Manor, maintained by the Misses Mary E. Hull and Grace Huntington, is a day school with a small boarding department. Boys are admitted to the primary department of the day school. The school cooperates with Cours Dwight in affording a final year of five months in Paris and three months in European travel.

Oaksmere, Mrs. Merrill's School for Girls, was opened in 1906 at New Rochelle and in 1914 moved to its new site at Mamaroneck where it occupies a former residential estate on the shore of the Sound. Mrs. Winifred E. Merrill, A.B., Wellesley; Ph.D., Columbia, is a woman of great personal charm and an unusually capable business executive. Miss Isabella Starr, A.B., Vassar, is dean of the school and is assisted by an excellent staff of teachers. Though the school indulges in such extravagant magazine advertising it is much better than one might thereby conclude.

Rye Seminary, an old established school, one hour from New York, is a boarding school for about fifty girls, with a large day school, emphasizing college preparatory work. The school was begun by Mrs. Susan J. Life in 1856 and she still remains an inspiring factor in the life of the school. More than a thousand loyal alumnae have come under her influence. Since 1870 the school has been located at Rye under its present name. Of recent years the conduct and management of the school have largely fallen to the Misses Stowe, Miss Mary G. and Miss Harriet T., who with Mrs. Life act as principals. About twenty-five per cent of the girls enter the leading colleges each year.

The Halstead School, a day school of local patronage maintained by an association of citizens of Yonkers, includes a senior school for forty girls and a junior school for about fifty little girls and boys. It was established as early as 1874 and was incorporated in 1896. The principal is Miss Mary S. Jenkins.

Brantwood Hall occupies an attractive site at Lawrence Park, Bronxville, twenty-eight minutes from the Grand Central Station. It was established by Miss Mary Talulah Maine, A.B., Wellesley, in 1905, who in admiration of Ruskin named the school for his old home. It is both a boarding and day school, many of the resident pupils coming from the West.

Heathcote Hall, the Misses Lockwood's Collegiate School for Girls at Scarsdale, established by them in 1886, is a country boarding and day school.

Chappaqua Mountain Institute, Valhalla, twenty-five miles from New York City, is now in its forty-fifth year. In its long and varied history it has been coeducational until recently. Charles R. Blenis is the director.

The Misses Tewksbury's School, Scarsdale, was established by Mrs. William D. Black as the Ingleside School at New Milford, Conn., in 1892. It has recently been taken over by the Misses Tewksbury with the financial support of friends of the school. Miss Edith Tewksbury is a Wellesley graduate but the academic work is under the direction of Arthur Eneboe. In 1915 the school was removed to its present site.

The Misses Masters School, commonly referred to as "Dobbs Ferry," is a boarding school founded in 1877 and since maintained by Miss Masters and Miss Sarah W. Masters. It is a school of the highest social prestige which zealously maintains an exclusive atmosphere, so that admission is eagerly sought. Nearly two hundred girls, however, are annually admitted, one hundred and sixty of whom are in the boarding department, housed in separate cottages. To the small lower school a few little boys are admitted. While not a college preparatory school a high standard of scholarship is maintained and great stress is laid on religious training. The discipline of the school is strict though the honor system of government is emphasized.

Mrs. Dow's School, Briarcliff Manor, is exclusively a boarding school with a lower school for younger girls. Mrs. Dow was long associated with Miss Porter at Farmington and after Miss Porter's death was in charge of the school for two years. In 1902, associated with Miss Mary Alice Knox, former pupils, and members of the faculty of Farmington, she established this school. Mrs. Dow's management insures a happy school life for her girls with many social advantages and diversions. The popularity of the school attracts girls from widespread regions.

Mrs. Marshall's School for Little Girls, Briarcliff Manor, has since 1908 been maintained by Mrs. Frances Scharff Marshall. It offers a pleasant home and outdoor life in the first eight years of school preparing for the leading girls' schools. Through enterprising management, excellent in every particular, the school has succeeded in obtaining wide publicity through articles in many magazines.

The Knox School for Girls, now at Tarrytown, was established in 1904 at Briarcliff Manor by the late Miss Mary Alice Knox, a woman of scholarly attainments, previously associated with Mrs. Dow in the establishment of the school at Briarcliff. On Miss Knox's death in 1911 Mrs. E. Russell Houghton, A.B., Smith, for six years of the Comstock School, New York City, took over the school. After the destruction of this plant by fire in 1912 Mrs. Houghton incorporated the school under its present name and moved it to its present site, Brookside Park, Tarrytown. It is a home school for girls from all parts of the United States, and there is a lower school for day pupils. The school offers college preparatory and finishing courses.

Miss Mason's School, popularly known as "The Castle," has been conducted by Miss C. E. Mason since 1895 in a castellated mansion overlooking the Hudson at Tarrytown. It succeeded the school of Dr. and Mrs. Irving previously in New York City. Miss Mason was born and educated in the South and has had a long educational experience, having been for a time in charge of Brook Hall, near Philadelphia. "The Castle" is a typical finishing school attended by about one hundred and thirty boarding pupils ranging in age from seven to twenty-five who come from all over the country.

The Misses Metcalf's School for Girls, also at Tarrytown, is a home and day school of good standing, offering instruction from primary to college.

Marymount, Tarrytown, is a select school of seventy-five girls conducted by the "Religious of the Sacred Heart of Mary," but admits non-Catholics and a few day pupils. Both grammar school and academic courses are given.

Bremestead, Philipse-Manor-on-Hudson, two miles north of Tarrytown, is a home and day school opened in 1915 by Miss Clara C. Dulon. Instruction is individual with no regular classes, a program being arranged for each pupil. The school features dramatic and interpretive dancing, household administration, and endeavors to cultivate self-reliance and self-expression. Little boys are accepted in the lower school.

The Ossining School, a boarding and day school for about seventy girls, offers instruction for all grades, including vocational courses. The school was established in 1876 by Sarah Van Vleck (Mrs. Wilson Phraner), and for a number of years Miss Clara C. Fuller and Miss Martha J. Naramore have been the principals. The girls come from homes of refinement from widely distributed sections of the United States. A loyal alumnae association meets twice annually.

Drew Seminary, Carmel, was founded in 1849 as the Raymond Collegiate Institute under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Professor George Crosby Smith was for twenty-six years the head of the school. About one half the girls enter college each year. Since 1913 the Rev. Robert Johns Trevorrow, A.M., D.D., has been the President.

St. Mary's School, Peekskill, now in its forty-sixth year, is a High Church Episcopalian school under the care of Sisters of St. Mary. The Mother Superior is a Wellesley graduate. The boarding pupils enjoy a happy home life.

Ladycliff Academy, Highland Falls, is a Catholic institution for girls from kindergarten to academic grades, but little boys are accepted in the lower grades.

Putnam Hall, Poughkeepsie, is a preparatory school for Vassar, the proximity of which enables it to keep in close touch with the college. The school is under a board of directors and Miss Ellen Clizbe Bartlett, A.B., Elmira, has been the principal since 1905 and connected with the school since 1901. It has a strong faculty almost exclusively of graduates of the leading women's colleges.

Glen Eden, an academic and collegiate seminary for girls, is a moderate-priced school for boarding pupils exclusively, receiving pupils from all over the country. Opened in 1910 by Dr. and Mrs. Frederic M. Townsend, it occupies an old estate on the highlands in Poughkeepsie. Dr. Townsend had previously had a varied experience in private schools, for a time as director of the National Park Seminary, Washington.

The Bennett School for Girls, familiarly known as "Millbrook" from its location in Dutchess County, is a fashionable school patronized by wealthy families, particularly of the eastern states. It is a large boarding school deservedly popular because of the wholesome ideals of girl-life that there prevail. Though not primarily a preparatory school, sound work is done in their six-year course and the faculty includes a considerable number of college-bred women. Miss May F. Bennett, the principal, is a woman of sensitive and penetrating personality and of real spiritual power. Her early educational inspiration came from Colonel Francis Parker, under whom she worked in the Framingham Normal School, and the school is the result of a rich educational experience. Her actuating ideal at present seems to be social service. The school is democratic and the life well-balanced. The outdoors is not forgotten.

St. Agnes School, Albany, is both a day and boarding Episcopal church school, founded in 1870 by the Bishop of the Diocese, the Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doane. The school today is under a board of trustees and board of managers of prominent church people. Miss Ellen W. Boyd, the principal since 1903, is still principal emerita, and Miss Matilda Gray succeeded Miss Seabury as head of the school in 1912. It is a school of high standards maintained at moderate cost. The girls come from leading Episcopal families of the state.

Albany Academy for Girls was founded in 1814 as the Albany Female Academy. In its century of existence the school has several times outgrown its quarters and been forced to move. It has occupied its present site since 1893. It is a day school with accommodation for a limited number of boarding pupils. A high standard of scholarship is maintained in college preparatory work. Miss Esther Louise Camp is the principal.

Emma Willard School, Troy, has just passed the century mark, having been opened in 1814 by the co-pioneer with Mary Lyon in woman's education, at Middlebury, Vt. In 1819 an offer of financial assistance drew the school to New York and in 1821 on invitation to Troy, where it became known as The Troy Female Seminary. In the next fifty years of its existence more than fifteen thousand young women were enrolled, many of them becoming school mistresses and directors who carried the influence of the school far and wide. In 1892 the school was reorganized under its present name. The gift of $1,000,000 of Mrs. Russell Sage made possible a new and architecturally beautiful home for the school to which it moved in 1913. There are about two hundred and fifty in attendance, about half of whom come from the region round about, and the remainder from all over the nation. Miss Eliza Kellas, Ph.B., is the principal.

St. Faith's School, Saratoga Springs, is a Church school founded by Miss Eleanor Shackelford in 1890, who from that date until 1909 shared the management with Miss Beatrice Sands. In 1912 Miss Shackelford became principal emerita, since which time the Rev. H. C. Plum, A.B., Harvard, has been rector and principal. The school was established to provide for the girl of small means, and the entire cost of board and tuition is kept extremely low because of the endowment. Emphasis is placed upon intelligent work and thorough scholarship. About one fourth of the entire number enrolled prepare for college. See p. 535.

The Lady Jane Grey School was founded on the outskirts of Binghamton in 1883 by Mrs. Jane Grey Hyde. It is a boarding school attracting over sixty pupils, largely from the small cities of the state and the West. Mrs. Hyde is assisted by three co-principals, the Misses Mary and Jane Hyde, and Miss Ella Virginia Jones.

Wallcourt, Miss Goldsmith's School for Girls, Aurora on Cayuga, was established by Miss Sarah L. Yawger as the Wells Preparatory School and is adjacent to Wells College. Since her death in 1901 it has been conducted by Mrs. Anna Goldsmith Taylor, A.B., Wells, who had previously been associated with Miss Yawger and before that at All Saints' School, Sioux Falls, S.D. Fifty of the one hundred graduates have attended college.

The Buffalo Seminary, Bidwell Parkway and Potomac Ave., established in 1851, is a day school for girls having the patronage of the leading families of Buffalo. Miss L. Gertrude Angell, A.B., Wellesley '94, has been the principal of the seminary since 1904. The standards of scholarship are high and two thirds of the girls take the college preparatory course and enter the leading colleges. The Elmwood School on Bryant Street is the elementary department for little boys and girls and for girls alone through the ninth grade. Miss Charlotte K. Holbrook is the principal of this school.

The Franklin School, 126 Park St., Buffalo, is a girls' school, coeducational through the fifth grade. Its strength in numbers is in the lower rather than the upper school. The work is of high standard with emphasis on the classics. Miss Bertha A. Keyes, Smith, is the principal.

The Park School, 1224 Main St., is an open-air school for young boys and girls. Miss Mary H. Lewis is the principal.

NEW JERSEY

Dwight School for Girls, Englewood, was established in 1859. It combines the features of a college preparatory and a finishing school. The school accommodates fifty resident pupils and twice as many day pupils. It aims to give them a happy homelike life, to cultivate self-respect and self-control with only the most necessary restrictions. The surroundings offer every incentive to outdoor sports and pleasures. There is a primary department for girls from six to ten. The graduates are organized into an alumnae association of three hundred members. Miss Euphemia Creighton and Miss Ellen W. Farrar are the principals. See p. 539.

Dearborn Morgan School, Orange, now in its forty-eighth year, is a large day school for girls admitting boys through the fifth year of the elementary department. The academic course offers college preparation and about one fourth of the graduates have entered the leading colleges. The school holds a place of importance in the community. The principals are Miss Caroline R. Clark and George L. Shelley.

Miss Beard's School for Girls, Orange, was established by Miss Lucie C. Beard, the principal, in 1892. It is a large finishing and preparatory school, well organized, with all the usual departments under a strong faculty of college women. The course of instruction covers all grades from Montessori upward.

Monteith School, South Orange, is a day school maintained by Miss Caroline and Miss Ethel R. Monteith since 1903. It is especially designed for young girls. Boarding accommodation is offered to ten pupils.

Kent Place, Summit, is a working school, providing sound academic training from primary to college preparatory work. It was established as a day school for the residents of Summit in 1894, and two years later Mrs. Sarah Woodman Paul and her sister, Miss Anna S. Woodman, both graduates of Wellesley, took charge of it. The school has had a continuous and wholesome growth, and its boarding department attracts students from all over the country. Resident accommodation is limited to forty girls who live in a home removed from the school rooms. The school is now maintained by the Summit School Company of which Hamilton W. Mabie is president.

Vail-Deane School, Elizabeth, is a growing school now in its forty-seventh year. It is a day school and accommodates one hundred and fifty in departments from primary to college preparation. Miss Laura A. Vail is the principal.

The Hartridge School, Plainfield, is a boarding and day school established in 1903 by Miss Emelyn B. Hartridge. The courses extend from the Montessori class to college preparation and finishing. Only a limited number of resident pupils is received. The recitation hall is distinct from the residence.

Centenary Collegiate Institute, founded at Hackettstown in 1866 by the Newark Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is a boarding school accommodating one hundred and seventy-five girls, many of whom are from New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, but there are some from all over the country. Co-educational until 1910, it is now for girls only. Rev. Jonathan Magie Meeker, Ph.D., of New York and Wesleyan Universities, has been president since 1908.

Miss Ethel Walker's School for Girls, Lakewood, was opened in 1911. It is a small residential and day school with an enrollment of thirty-five girls. Boarding pupils come from all portions of the eastern states. The course of study includes college preparation. Miss Walker, A.B., Bryn Mawr '94, is an experienced teacher, and previous to the establishment of her school she taught history at the Baldwin School, Miss Irwin's, Miss Wright's, and the Brearley.

The Lakewood School for Girls opened in 1910 at Lakewood under the direction of Miss Edith Samson. It is a small boarding and day school with pupils largely from the East. There is one teacher for each three girls. Classes are frequently held in the open air.

St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, midway between Trenton and Philadelphia, was founded in 1837 by the Rt. Rev. George Washington Doane, Bishop of New Jersey. The school is administered by a board of trustees. The Rev. John Fearnley is the rector, and Mrs. Fearnley the principal. It is a boarding and day school offering general and college preparatory courses. There is a children's department for girls under twelve. There are over seven hundred living graduates representing nearly every state, over six hundred of whom are members of the alumnae association. Last year there were seventy in attendance coming from nineteen different states.

Ivy Hall School, Bridgeton, was founded in 1861 and is now under the direction of Miss Macdonald and Miss Finn. College preparatory and general courses are offered to both boarding and day students.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Agnes Irwin School, 2011 De Lancey Pl., Philadelphia, is foremost among the girls' schools of Philadelphia not only in college preparatory work but in social standing. Established in 1870 by Miss Irwin, her work in this school won her so great a reputation as an educator that in 1894 she was called to be the first Dean of Radcliffe College, and in her fifteen years of service largely determined the future character of Radcliffe. Miss Sophy D. Irwin continued the school until her death in 1915. It is exclusively a day school attended by upward of two hundred pupils. There is an elementary department. Miss Josephine A. Natt, A.B., Smith, who has had long experience in secondary teaching, is now the principal.

Miss Hills' School, 1808 Spruce St., was established in 1893 at the suggestion of patrons of the William Penn Charter School. It is a day school fulfilling the same function as the Penn Charter, providing instruction from primary to college. The senior four-year course accents college preparatory work. In 1914 the school opened a branch at Ardmore providing Montessori kindergarten and primary instruction for young children, both boys and girls. Mrs. Elizabeth Hills Lyman, one of the founders whose name the school bears, is still the principal.

The Holman School for Girls, 2204 Walnut St., is a day school established in 1900 by Miss Louise Holman Haines, who continued it until her death in 1908. In 1913 it was taken over by the present principals, the Misses Elizabeth W. and Jessie N. Braley, both Wellesley graduates. The primary and intermediate grades are conducted in the open-air department.

Academy of Notre Dame, West Rittenhouse Square, is a Catholic school attended by over a hundred pupils, one half in the high school grades. Little boys are admitted to the elementary department.

The Lankenau School, 22d St. & S. College Ave., received its present name in 1910 when it was endowed by John D. Lankenau in memory of his wife, Mary J. Drexel. The school had been established in 1891 as the "School for Girls" by the Mary J. Drexel Home and the Philadelphia Motherhouse of Deaconesses as a branch of Lutheran Deaconess work. The school has had constant growth in both boarding and day departments. The Rev. E. F. Bachmann, the principal, is assisted by a faculty of eighteen.

Mount Saint Joseph, Chestnut Hill, on the Wissahickon, announces itself as both an academy and a collegiate institution. Since 1858 it has occupied its present site and has had a most prosperous development.

The Mary Lyon School was opened in 1913 by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Crist in the old Strath Haven Inn at Swarthmore, eleven miles from Philadelphia. It is a home school in the country offering general and college preparatory courses. Seventy-five girls are in attendance, fifty of whom are resident, coming from widespread regions. Mr. Crist is a graduate of Bucknell and Mrs. Crist of Mt. Holyoke.

Miss Sayward's School, in the suburb of Overbrook, five miles from Philadelphia, was established in 1892 and is still conducted by Miss S. Janet Sayward, Salem Normal School. There are about fifty resident pupils and a large elementary department which includes little boys and girls. The school draws not only from Pennsylvania, but to an extent from the whole country.

The Misses Shipley's School, Bryn Mawr, ten miles from Philadelphia, is a large college preparatory school which occupies the first place among the Philadelphia suburban schools both in social standing and sound academic training. The school was established in 1893 by the three sisters, Hannah T., Elizabeth A., and Katharine M. Shipley, who had prepared themselves for educational work respectively at the Sorbonne, the University of Leipzig, and Cambridge University, England. In 1911 Miss Alice G. Howland and Miss Eleanor O. Brownell, who had for some years conducted the New School at Utica, became associated with the Misses Shipley as part owners and assistant principals. The strong, college-trained faculty affords sound academic training, and the proximity of the school to Bryn Mawr College offers it the privileges of many public lectures. Seventy-five girls are in residence and there are sixty in the day department. One third of the pupils take elementary courses. In 1914 over seventy per cent of the senior class entered college.

The Misses Kirk's School, Bryn Mawr, has been conducted by them since 1899. Miss Abby Kirk, a graduate of Bryn Mawr in the class of '92, and her sister, Miss Sophia Kirk, were previously on the staff of the college. It is a small preparatory school to Bryn Mawr, giving much individual attention to a limited number of girls. The principals receive in their home fourteen resident pupils.

The Baldwin School, Bryn Mawr, was established in 1888 by Miss Florence Baldwin and incorporated by her in 1906, when she severed her connection. It is a strong and growing school, has attained a national patronage, and has a reputation of being one of the best preparatory schools in the country. The head of the school, Miss Jane L. Brownell, A.B., A.M., Bryn Mawr, and the assistant head, Miss Elizabeth F. Johnson, A.B., Vassar, maintain the wholesome and sensible ideals of the founder so that the school life is full of healthy activity of mind and body. There is a large and efficient faculty practically all college-trained, many of whom have studied in foreign universities. The alumnae number over thirteen hundred, of whom over two hundred and fifty have entered Bryn Mawr. Since 1896 the school has been installed in the Bryn Mawr Hotel building, which is well adapted for the purpose.

Miss Wright's School, attractively located opposite Bryn Mawr College for which it especially prepares, offers also a finishing course and an attractive home life under the best of personal influences. The school was established in 1902 by Miss Lila M. Wright. Of the eighty girls more than half are in residence, and they come from the desirable families all over the country which appreciate the wholesome atmosphere of the school, combining as it does the best of the so-called old-fashioned methods with modern progressive ideas.

Walnut Lane School, Germantown, is a home school established in 1857 as a French boarding school, and for many years was known, from its founder, as Madame Clement's School. Under the direction of Miss S. Edna Johnston, A.B., Wilson, the principal for the past six years, the school maintains its reputation as a fashionable school. One half of the students are day pupils from the vicinity. Since 1907 the school has graduated three hundred alumnae. Besides the general and college preparatory courses, there is an advanced course of two years. A junior department is also conducted for younger girls. Miss Edith H. Gregory, A.B., Wellesley, Oxford Univ., is the vice-principal.

Miss Marshall's School, Oak Lane, eight miles from Philadelphia, was opened by Miss Emma Stuart Marshall twenty-one years ago. It is a finishing school of a conservative type and numbers one hundred pupils, one third of whom are boarders, who come from the western states as well as the southern and eastern. There is also an elementary department.

Ogontz School for young ladies, Ogontz, a northern suburb of Philadelphia, is an old and well-known finishing school which was founded as early as 1850 as the Chestnut Street Seminary. In 1883 it removed to Ogontz where it occupies the estate of the Civil War financier, Jay Cooke, and has since been known as Ogontz School. Miss Abby A. Sutherland, the principal since 1908, is a graduate of Radcliffe and before coming to Ogontz in 1902 had taught for two years at Bradford Academy. The school accents social and family life, and study of art, psychology, and ethics, rather than adhering rigidly to college preparation. It is a boarding school but some day pupils are accepted.

Beechwood, Jenkinton, "A School of the Cultural and Practical," now in its fourth year, is a boarding and day school attracting over three hundred students, most of whom come from Pennsylvania. It offers to high school graduates an opportunity to continue cultural studies or to take special work in music, art, kindergarten training, and secretarial work. Matthew H. Reaser, Ph.D., the president since 1911, formerly for eight years president of Wilson College, and the vice-president, Rev. D. R. Kerr, are assisted by a large faculty, seventeen of whom have received their training at the smaller colleges or universities.

Springside, Chestnut Hill, was established in 1870 and is conducted by Mrs. Chapman and Miss Jones, who succeeded Mrs. Comegys and Miss Bell. There is a large day school. The resident department offers an intimate home life for twenty or thirty girls who come largely from wealthy families.

Bishophorpe Manor, South Bethlehem, is a home school for fifty girls. It was established in 1868 and for the past seven years has been under the management of Claude N. Wyant, Univ. of Virginia, who had previously had an experience of twenty years in private schools. Mrs. Wyant presides over the home life, a feature which is accented. Though the majority of the girls come from Pennsylvania the patronage is national.

Moravian Seminary and College for Women, Bethlehem, is the oldest boarding school for girls in America. It was founded in 1742 by the Countess Zinzendorf of Saxony while on a visit to Philadelphia, and since 1743 has been continuously maintained at Bethlehem. Around old Colonial Hall, erected in 1748, cluster memories of the French and Indian Wars and during the Revolution it served as a military hospital, sheltering thousands of wounded Revolutionary heroes. Among its pupils were Eleanor Lee, a niece of Washington, Chancellor Livingston's daughter, Cornelia, the wife of Robert Fulton, two daughters of Nathaniel Greene, and others representing the old Colonial families, Dutch, German, Quaker, French, and English. The seminary has sent forth eight thousand alumnae and there are active alumnae associations which continue to dower their ancient institution with gifts. Since 1912 work of a college grade has been undertaken and the title of the institution added to. A great majority of the girls come from Pennsylvania, though sixteen states are represented. The school though non-sectarian is owned and controlled by the Moravian Church through its Synods. The Rev. John H. Clewell, Ph.D., of the Moravian Church, has been the president since 1909.

Wilkes-Barre Institute, Wilkes-Barre, has been a private college preparatory school since 1854. Its boarding department is limited to thirty, permitting home atmosphere and individual attention. Anna Miles Olcott, Columbia, is the principal.

Darlington Sem nary, West Chester, twenty-eight miles from Philadelphia, was founded in 1851 by Hon. Smedley Darlington, who remained the principal until 1861. It has a national patronage,—three fourths of its four hundred alumnae are from outside the state. The school provides the varied courses of the oldtime seminary. The principal is Mary E. Chambers, A.M., Bucknell, and Frank P. Bye, Univ. of Penn. and Univ. of Berlin, is the president.

Linden Hall Seminary in the town of Lititz is another ancient Moravian institution for girls, and claims an unbroken record since 1746, the date of the founding of the town. From 1794 the school, known as the Lititz Boarding School, received girls from other states. In 1855 it received its present name, and was chartered by the legislature in 1863. It is controlled by the Moravian Church through a board of trustees. Most of the pupils come from the smaller towns in Pennsylvania. Rev. E. S. Hagen is the principal and there is a faculty of twenty.

The Shippen School for Girls, Lancaster, is a day school of local patronage which resulted in 1908 from the combination of Lancaster College and Miss Stahr's School, and was incorporated the following year. There are somewhat over eighty girls in the upper school and there is a small primary department. Miss Emily R. Underhill, A.B., Swarthmore '99, is the principal.

Penn Hall, formerly the preparatory department of Wilson College at Chambersburg, was established as a separate school and its present building was erected in 1906. The school still makes a specialty of preparing for college, but also maintains an elementary course. There are upward of one hundred girls in attendance, three fourths of whom are boarding pupils coming from all over the United States. During the month of May each year the entire school is transferred to Atlantic City, where the Hotel Gladstone, fronting directly on the beach, is leased, and the school work is carried on as usual. The school is under a board of directors and Frank S. Magill, who has been the principal since 1910.

Miss Cowles' School, Hollidaysburg, was opened in Highland Hall, September, 1911. Miss Emma Milton Cowles, A.B., Elmira '83; Ph.B., Univ. of Chicago '01, was for nineteen years connected with Milwaukee-Downer College, the last thirteen years as professor of mathematics. She has associated with her a strong faculty of college-trained women who give sound instruction in college preparatory and general courses. In the Upper School the boarding pupils come from twelve states. The Lower School is for day pupils only.

The Birmingham School for Girls occupies a strikingly beautiful position among wooded hills overlooking the Juniata river in central Pennsylvania. Since 1857 the school has been under the control of one family, Alvan R. Grier having been the president since the death of his father, Dr. Lemuel G. Grier, in 1887. Miss Catharine Allen, a graduate of Oberlin who has studied at Berlin and the Sorbonne, and Miss N. J. Davis are the principals, the latter having been connected with the school since its foundation. It is a boarding school exclusively, accommodating about seventy-five girls, representing many states.

Washington Seminary, now in its eighty-first year, is a day school with a small boarding department. Its pupils come largely from Washington, the seat of Washington and Jefferson College. In 1914 Miss Mary McCurdy, a graduate of the Seminary, succeeded Miss Rosenkrans, who had been the principal for six years.

Thurston Preparatory School, Pittsburgh, opened in 1887 by Miss Alice M. Thurston as a day school, has had a prosperous career, and in 1909 a residential department was added. Encouraged by her success Miss Thurston six years ago established a similar school for boys. There is a large and efficient faculty, most of whom have received college or normal school training.

Dilworth Hall, Pittsburgh, on Woodland Road, in the most exclusive resident portion of Pittsburgh, is the day and boarding preparatory department of the Pennsylvania College for Women. The school has its own buildings and faculty and enjoys many advantages from the college. About forty boarding pupils are accommodated and the total enrollment is one hundred, most of whom come from western Pennsylvania. The majority prepare for college, but the school offers special courses in music. Miss Janet L. Brownlee, the principal, has been with the school many years.

The Winchester School, Pittsburgh, formerly the Stuart School, has under the direction of Miss Mitchell been brought up to a high academic standing. It is a day school with local patronage with a large elementary department.

MARYLAND

The Girls' Latin School, 1217 St. Paul St., Baltimore, a college preparatory boarding and day school, was established in 1890 as the preparatory department for the Women's College of Baltimore, now Goucher College; but in 1910 the school became an independent corporation. A lower school was added in 1911 with an independent organization under Miss Anne T. Brewer, A.B., Columbia Univ. '08, and two years later a primary department, thus making the school course complete. The head mistress is Miss N. M. Wilmot, Syracuse Univ. '89, who has been connected with the school since 1897. There are about one hundred girls in the day department, and twenty boarding pupils live in the Ross Winans mansion which was acquired as a residence in 1914. Five hundred students have been graduated, of which number three hundred and eighty-four have entered college, chiefly Goucher, where they have attained high rank.

The Arundell School, 1102 N. Charles St., is one of the exclusive day schools of Baltimore. It was established in 1900 by Walter Chandler and in 1902 was taken over by the present head mistress, Miss Elizabeth M. Carroll, a graduate of Bryn Mawr. The primary school, of which Miss Margaret C. Carey, Framingham Normal School, is the head, is largely conducted out of doors. The school has been prosperous, growing so that it has twice moved to more commodious quarters. There is an attendance of one hundred and an alumnae association of three hundred.

Bryn Mawr School for Girls, Cathedral & Preston Sts., is an exclusive day school strongly backed by its board of managers, which includes the president of and others interested in Bryn Mawr College. It was established in 1885 by Miss Mary Garrett and is now maintained by Miss Edith Hamilton, A.B., A.M., Bryn Mawr, who also studied at Leipzig and Munich. The primary department, first opened in 1894, has its own staff of professionally trained teachers. Afternoon study and exercise under supervision are provided for out of doors. The two hundred and seventy-five girls in attendance come from Baltimore's leading families and largely prepare for Bryn Mawr, but some enter other colleges. Naturally Bryn Mawr standards of scholarship prevail.

Notre Dame Preparatory School, Charles St. & Homeland Ave., Roland Park, is a boarding and day school conducted by the Sisters of the Order in connection with their adjacent college. It offers complete school courses and is attended by two hundred girls, the majority from Maryland, but it draws also from all over the United States and South American countries.

Roland Park Country School, Roland Park, is a large day school attended by one hundred and fifty boys and girls from Baltimore's leading families. The school offers both a college preparatory and a general course and maintains a high standard of scholarship. Boys are received only in the Playground Department and in the primary school. Miss Nanna D. Dushane, Framingham Normal School, is the principal.

St. Timothy's School for Girls, more generally known as "Catonsville," is one of the most exclusive girls' schools of the country, with the patronage of conservative families of New York, Philadelphia, and the South. The school was established in 1882 by the Misses Carter, who surrendered it three years ago to the principals now in charge, Miss Jane R. Heath and Miss Louisa M. Fowler. The atmosphere of the school is simple and old-fashioned and gives evidence of breeding. There is resident accommodation for about seventy girls, but there are always applications in excess of this, and reservations must be made several years in advance. One third of the one hundred students are day scholars. There is an active alumnae association of over five hundred.

Mt. St. Agnes College and High School, at Mt. Washington, a suburb of Baltimore, was founded in 1867 by the Sisters of Mercy. There is a four-year high school course and an elementary school for both day and boarding pupils, as well as a college course leading to the degree of A.B.

Garrison Forest School, incorporated as the Green Spring Valley School by residents of the neighborhood, is at Garrison, a few miles north of Baltimore. It is a country day school with resident accommodation for twelve and provides a complete school course. Miss Mary Moncrieffe Livingston, the head mistress, is assisted by a faculty of college-trained women.

The Hannah More Academy, Reisterstown, fifteen miles from Baltimore, owes its origin to Mrs. Anne Neilson, who in 1832 donated the buildings for a Church school which was incorporated the same year. In 1873 the academy was accepted as the Episcopal Diocesan School of Maryland and has since received many benefactions from friends of the school. Six-year academic and preparatory courses are given. About half the girls are from Maryland. Miss Anna L. Lawrence, Univ. of Vermont, St. Andrew's Univ., is the principal.

Oldfield's, Glencoe, is a home school for forty pupils who come from all over the country, the children of alumnae and their friends. The school was founded in 1866 by Mrs. John Sears McCulloch, a woman of unusual and spiritual personality. Since her death her ideals have been continued by her children, Miss Anna G. McCulloch and the Rev. Duncan McCulloch.

Hood Seminary for Girls, Frederick, in 1915, was set off as a separate preparatory department of Hood College. The college, established in 1893 on earlier foundations, was formerly known as the Woman's College of Frederick.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Mount Vernon Seminary, M & 11th Sts., the oldest Protestant boarding school for girls in Washington, dates from 1875. Since its establishment the tone and spirit have remained unchanged and the high standards are still maintained under the principals, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Somers and Mrs. Adelia G. Hensley. The school offers college preparatory and finishing courses and two years of college work. The girls come from all parts of the country. A large playground for outdoor sports has recently been added.

The Misses Timlow's Boarding and Day School, 1600 Scott Circle, was first opened at Nutley, N.J., in 1894. In 1900 it moved to Montclair, N.J. In 1910 it was transplanted to Washington for the sake of the advantages of the Capital. It is essentially a finishing school, but also prepares for college. Miss Timlow is the House Mother and her sister, Miss Elizabeth Timlow, who studied at Wellesley and Cornell, is the principal.

The Misses Eastman's School, 1305 17th St., N.W., was opened in 1899 as a school for younger girls. It has developed with its pupils and now prepares girls for college and accommodates a few boarding pupils. The Misses Annie H., Mary T., and Miriam M. Eastman are the principals.

Miss Madeira's School, 1332 19th St., was opened in 1906 as a college preparatory and a finishing school by Miss Lucy Madeira. Miss Madeira is a Vassar graduate and was formerly an instructor in the Sidwell's Friends' School. About one hundred girls are received in the school, one third of whom are day students coming from Washington. There is a strong faculty of fifteen college-trained women.

Martha Washington Seminary, 1601 Connecticut Ave., maintained by Edward W. Thompson, offers finishing and advanced courses.

Madison Hall, 3100 R St., N.W., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. George F. Winston, is a boarding and day school accenting the home and social life.

Paul Institute, 2107 S St., N.W., formerly Washington Seminary, established by Mr. and Mrs. Smallwood twenty-three years ago, is today conducted by Mrs. Nanette B. Paul, LL.B., with Mrs. Paul Hamill as principal. The patronage is largely from Washington and the West.

The Colonial School for Girls, 1539 18th St., under the direction of Miss Charlotte Crittenden Everett, offers instruction in the liberal, fine, and domestic arts. Sixteen states are represented by the student body. Some day pupils are also received.

Holton-Arms School, 2125 S St., N.W., is a large day school with a small resident department, established in 1901 by Mrs. Jessie Moon Holton, educated at Cornell, and Miss Caroline Hough Arms. It is now wholly under the direction of Mrs. Holton, and the school maintains the reputation of being ultra-fashionable.

Irwin Hall, 2009 Columbia Road, is a small English-French school conducted by Mrs. Sarah Irwin Mattingly. Courses are offered from primary work to college preparation.

St. Margaret's Boarding and Day School, 2115 California Ave., is under the direction of Miss Sara K. Lippincott, Froebel Normal School, and Miss Susan C. Baker, Pestalozzi-Froebel Training School, Berlin, by whom it was established in 1896. There are about sixty girls in attendance equally divided between the resident and day departments. In the lower school girls as young as seven are admitted to the boarding department.

Bristol School for Girls, Mintwood Pl. & 19th St., has been maintained since 1904 by Miss Alice A. Bristol. It is a home school accommodating seventy-five resident girls, largely from the eastern and southern states. The school is preparatory and finishing, but two years of regular college work are offered. A distinctive feature is the full diploma music and French course.

Academy of the Holy Cross, Connecticut Ave. & Upton St., conducted by the Sisters of that Order, is located on Dunbarton Heights, in the suburbs of Washington. It is a boarding and day school with a separate department for little girls.

Gunston Hall, 1906 Florida Ave., established in 1892, has steadily grown and now has an attendance of one hundred girls coming from prominent families in all parts of the United States. It is a boarding and day school and offers a great variety of courses from kindergarten to college preparation. Mrs. Beverley R. Mason, the principal, is assisted by a faculty of twenty-four, about one half of whom have received college degrees.

Belcourt Seminary, 13th & Girard Sts., Columbia Heights, is a home and day school accommodating fifty girls. A six-year course in preparation for college is offered. Mrs. Mary B. Somervell, Univ. of Chicago, is the principal.

Fairmont Seminary, 1411 Fairmont St., was established in 1899 by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ramsey, under whose management, assisted by Miss Judith L. Steele, the school has continued to prosper in the same location. The student body has included girls from the families of Government officials and others throughout the country.

Chevy Chase Seminary was opened at Chevy Chase fourteen years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. Barker, who had previously had twenty-five years' experience in teaching. They have with them as dean, Miss Louise L. Newell, A.B., Vassar. The patronage is national and about sixty girls attend. It is a finishing school, offering sound academic training and special courses in music, art, and domestic science.

Washington College, established twenty-one years ago in the old Gales mansion, Eckington, is of high scholastic standing. Three courses are offered, an advanced course for which the degree of A.B. is conferred, a literary course, and a modern language course. Eighty students are received in the boarding department and some day pupils are accepted. Flournoy Menefee is the president and Mrs. Menefee the directress of the college home.

National Cathedral School, within Cathedral Close on Mt. St. Alban, was opened in 1900 under the management of the Misses Bangs and Whiton who remained at the school six years. It is an Episcopal school under the board of trustees of the Episcopal Cathedral Foundation of the District of Columbia. Two thirds of the one hundred and fifty girls enrolled are resident. The girls lead a simple, wholesome life, spending much time out of doors. In 1913 Miss Jessie C. McDonald, B.S., Wellesley '88, M.S., Columbia '04, became the principal. This year Miss Helen L. Webster, Ph.D., became the academic head.

National Park Seminary, Forest Glen, Md., a suburb of Washington, is a large boarding school attended by two hundred and fifty girls from all over the United States. It was established in 1894 by John Irvin Cassedy, formerly at Lasell Seminary and for seven years the principal of Norfolk College. It is a junior college and finishing school receiving almost exclusively graduates of preparatory or high schools for a definite two-year course of study. The school offers a varied and entertaining school life with the greatest variety of educational diversissements.

VIRGINIA

Fauquier Institute for Girls and Young Ladies, Warrenton, in the Piedmont region, fifty miles from Washington, now in its fifty-sixth year, is a small school accommodating twenty-six boarders and about twenty day pupils. Nellie V. Butler is the principal.

Warrenton Country School for Young Girls, Warrenton, is a new French-English school for twenty young girls, recently opened by Miss Lea M. Boulogny, formerly principal of the Chevy Chase School.

Fort Loudoun Seminary, Winchester, in the Shenandoah Valley, was established in 1905 by Miss Katherine R. Glass, who purchased the property of an older school which had been established here in 1830. It is a boarding and day school with an annual attendance of over one hundred from Virginia and other states, a few of whom prepare for college.

Marion College, Marion, is a 'junior college'* under Lutheran auspices with a four-year high school and two-year college course, founded in 1873 as a Female College. Since then it has received a thousand pupils from fourteen states, of whom two hundred have graduated. Rev. Henderson N. Miller, A.M., Ph.D., is president.

Mary Baldwin Seminary, Staunton, in the Shenandoah Valley, was established in 1842 as "The Augusta Female Seminary." For more than thirty years the school was under the direction of Mary J. Baldwin and Agnes McClung, who devoted their lives to its up-building, and in 1896 the name was changed by the legislature in honor of the former principal. It is a boarding and day school with an attendance of over three hundred students who come from more than thirty states, though upward of one hundred are from Virginia. It has been tentatively accredited by Vassar, but its work has not yet been tested there.

Stuart Hall, Staunton, is the diocesan school of Virginia. Its origins go back to 1831, but the school was founded at its present site in 1843. Originally known as the "Virginia Female Institute" it received its present name in 1907, in honor of the widow of Virginia's famous cavalry leader, Mrs. J. E. B. Stuart, who was principal nineteen years. It is a boarding and day school attracting girls from all over the southern states. Miss Jane C. Howard, formerly a teacher in the school, became principal in 1915, succeeding Miss Mariah P. Duval, who left to establish St. Hilda's Hall.

St. Anne's School, a day and resident Church school for girls, Charlottesville, opened in 1910, succeeding Rawlings and Albemarle Female Institutes. The Bishop of the Diocese is president of the board of trustees. Girls are especially fitted for the Virginia women's colleges. There are primary and intermediate departments, and a few day pupils are accepted. The girls are nearly all from Virginia. The principal, Mary Hyde Du Val, is assisted by a faculty of college men and women.

Southern Seminary, Buena Vista, in the Shenandoah Valley, founded in 1867, is a boarding school. The students come from widely distributed regions throughout the West and South. It has been tentatively accredited by Vassar. The principals, Revs. E. H. Rowe and J. S. Engle, are both graduates of Randolph-Macon College. The former has been principal for more than twenty-five years.

Virginia College (Junior) for Young Women,* Roanoke, in the Shenandoah Valley, was established in 1893 by Dr. William A. Harris, whose daughters, Miss Harris and Mrs. Boatwright, have since successfully continued its management. Four years of college preparation and two years of junior college work are offered. Its preparatory department is tentatively accredited by Vassar. There is a strong faculty including many college graduates, and the attendance is almost cosmopolitan, coming from thirty states.

Sweet Briar College for Women, Sweet Briar, twelve miles from Lynchburg, has nearly half its students in the preparatory department. It was founded in 1900 as the result of the bequest of Mrs. Indiana F. Williams. It is a well-equipped boarding institution, and Dr. Mary K. Benedict, a graduate of Vassar and Ph.D. of Yale, is president.

Hollins College, in the Valley of Virginia, now in its seventy-third year, maintains a college preparatory department for girls over fifteen who have completed two years or more of high school work. About seventy-five pupils attend this department and they are segregated from the equal number of older students. Miss Matty L. Cocke is the president.

Sullins College-Conservatory, Bristol, is a resident school for young ladies, named after its founder who served as president from 1870 to 1880. It is reported that its buildings burned during the past winter so that it is closed for the present. Rev. John C. Orr is the president. Though classed by the State Board of Education as a junior college its work is hardly of that grade.

Virginia Intermont College for Young Women,* Bristol, was opened in 1884 as "The Virginia Institute," and has been maintained on its present site since 1893. It is a Baptist boarding and day school enrolling nearly two hundred students mostly from the South. The president is H. G. Noffsinger, A.B., A.M., Richmond College. A few 1915 graduates were tentatively admitted to the junior class of Westhampton College, one of the two standard colleges for women in Virginia.

Southern Female College, Petersburg, was chartered in 1863 and is an old-time Virginia institution with an attendance of over fifty girls. The principal, Arthur Kyle Davis, A.M., Randolph-Macon College, is a member of a family prominent in the annals of Virginia, and prides himself on having a school of the best ante-bellum traditions.

Miss Ellett's School, 11 S. Laurel St., Richmond, is one of the best Virginia schools, recommended by the Southern Association of College Women, and accredited by Vassar.

The Blackstone College for Girls, formerly "Female Institute" in southern Virginia, is owned and controlled by the Methodists of the Farmville district. It is a college preparatory school with two years of advanced work. Dr. James Cannon, Jr., has been president for all but four years of its twenty-one years' history.

Randolph-Macon Institute, Danville, is a Methodist Episcopal boarding and day school, established in 1898, when it took over the former Danville College for Young Ladies. It is one of the Randolph-Macon System controlled by the board of trustees of Randolph-Macon College. The hundred boarding pupils come mostly from Virginia. Most of those completing the work go to the Randolph-Macon Woman's College at Lynchburg. The principal, Charles G. Evans, is a graduate of Randolph-Macon College and has been connected with the teaching force of the Randolph-Macon System since 1895, and has occupied his present position since 1906.

WEST VIRGINIA

Lewisburg Seminary and Conservatory of Music, in southeastern West Virginia, originated under Presbyterian auspices as "Lewisburg Academy" in 1812. It is a boarding and day school having a local attendance. Richard C. Sommerville has been president of the school since 1911.

Stephenson Seminary, Charles Town, is a boarding school established in 1882. It has an attendance of about sixty pupils. Mrs. C. N. Campbell is the principal.

St. Hilda's Hall, Charles Town, opened in September, 1915, by Miss Mariah P. Duval, who for thirty-three years had been connected with Stuart Hall. The school opened on the property of the old Powhatan College under the auspices of the Diocese of the Episcopal Church, and bids fair to be a good school.

NORTH CAROLINA

Fassifern, a home school for girls, Hendersonville, twenty miles from Asheville, was opened by Miss Kate C. Shipp in 1907 at Lincolnton and moved to its present site in 1914. It is recommended by the Southern Association of College Women as a college preparatory school.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Ashley Hall, Charleston, is the home and day school of Charleston. There is a small resident department and a total attendance of about one hundred from the oldest families of the city. It was established in 1909 by the principal, Miss Mary V. McBee, who holds degrees from Smith and Columbia. It is recommended by the Southern Association of College Women and accredited by northern colleges.

The Gwyn School, Spartanburg, was opened by Miss Elsie S. Gwyn, A.B., Cornell, in 1910, to accommodate boarding pupils. There is also a primary day department.

GEORGIA

Shorter College, Rome, was established by Colonel Alfred Shorter in 1877 on the site of the old Cherokee College. The academy offers a three-year college preparatory course for boarding and day pupils, who come from the southern states.

Lucy Cobb Institute, Athens, is a boarding school established in 1858 by General Cobb and other citizens of Athens. The faculty are largely alumnae of the school. The principals, Miss Gerdine and Miss Brumby, have been in charge since 1908. It is recommended by the Southern Association of College Women for those who wish a general finishing course.

Washington Seminary, Atlanta, now in its thirty-eighth year, is the fashionable boarding and day school of Atlanta. There is a small boarding department. Instruction is offered in nearly all grades, including a special college preparatory course. Its graduates are accredited by Vassar, Wellesley, and Smith. Llewellyn D. Scott, the principal since 1907, has been connected with the seminary since 1894.

Woodberry Hall, Atlanta, maintained by Miss Rosa Woodberry since 1908, is an efficient college preparatory boarding and day school with a grammar school department, under Episcopal influence. The school enjoys the patronage of the best families of Atlanta and has grown in numbers and influence.

Pape School, Savannah, is an exclusive day school, established in 1901, offering courses from the kindergarten to college preparatory. Miss Nina Anderson Pape is the principal. It is accredited by Vassar and recommended by the Southern Association.

The Columbus Seminary is a select day school for girls in Columbus. It enjoys a fashionable patronage and prepares for college. Miss Rosa B. Snyder is the principal.

Brenau College,* Gainesville, founded in 1878, maintains many departments, including a preparatory course for girls from fourteen years upward. Though it grants degrees they are not recognized as standard by the Southern Association of College Women.

FLORIDA

Miss Tebeau's Boarding and Day School for Girls, Gainesville, now in its forty-first year, is the diocesan school of the Episcopal Church of Florida. The curriculum covers twelve years. Resident pupils are limited to twenty.

The Cathedral School, Orlando, was established in 1900 by Bishop William C. Gray. It is an Episcopalian school attended by sixty day and over thirty boarding pupils. Rev. Roderick P. Cobb is the principal.

Flagler Preparatory School, formerly known as the Florida Open Air School, is on Cedar river, near Jacksonville. It is a boarding and day school opened in 1914 by Mrs. Langdon Caskin, but is a school of an unusual type. Bugle calls for periods, bloomers and tennis shoes for usual costume, open-air sleeping porches, are characteristic of the school life. The students do real work as well. See p. 542.

KENTUCKY

Science Hill School, thirty-one miles south of Louisville, was established by Rev. and Mrs. John Tevis in 1825, and maintained by them until 1879, when the property was purchased by Dr. W. T. Poynter, whose widow still continues it. Without endowment, the school has attained the position of the leading college preparatory school of its section of the country and offers efficient courses under a college-trained faculty, from primary grades to college. Over one hundred and eighty girls have been prepared for college, chiefly Wellesley and Vassar. There are one hundred and forty girls in the school, about half of whom are in the academic department. See p. 538.

Louisville Collegiate School, 512 W. Ormsby Ave., Louisville, is a local day school, established in 1915 when it took over the former Semple Collegiate School. Miss Ada S. Blake, A.B., Radcliffe, formerly head of the English department of The Albany Academy for Girls, is principal.

Hamilton College, Lexington, established 1869, offers a four-year high school and a two-year junior college course. It has recently re-organized its courses so as to conform to the junior college type as approved by leading educational associations. Its weakness seems to be in the small proportion of its junior college students. E. W. McDiarmid is president and Mrs. M. G. Thomson is principal of the college.

TENNESSEE

Ward-Belmont, Nashville, was formed in 1912 by the union of Ward Seminary and Belmont College, under the charter name the Ward-Belmont School. The former institution was founded in 1865 and the latter in 1890. At that time they had a joint enrollment of seven hundred and fifty from all the southern states with a predominance from Tennessee. The president, J. D. Blanton, was for twenty years president of Ward Seminary. There is a faculty of over fifty, including a majority of college-trained men and women. The school is a member of the Southern Association of Colleges and is recommended by the Association of College Women.

Martin College for Girls and Young Women, Pulaski, an endowed Methodist boarding and day school, was founded in 1870 by Thomas Martin. It is now classed as a 'junior college' by the Methodist Board of Education and the enrollment is about equally divided between the academic courses and the courses in music, expression, and domestic science. W. T. Wynn has been the president since 1908.

St. Mary's School, Memphis, is an Episcopal boarding school, established in 1874. Miss Helen A. Loomis and Miss M. H. Paoli are the principals. It is accredited by Vassar and recommended by the Southern Association of College Women.

Girls' Preparatory School, Chattanooga, prepares girls for the leading colleges of the country. It is recommended by the Southern Association of College Women. Miss Grace E. McCallie is the principal.

TEXAS

El Paso School for Girls, El Paso, was founded in 1910 by citizens of the town to provide the best of educational advantages for their daughters, and is administered by a board of directors. The principals are Miss Ora W. L. Slater, A.B., Wellesley, and Miss Olga E. Tafel of the University of Cincinnati. It is accredited to Smith and Vassar and recommended by the Southern Association of College Women.

The Whitis School, Austin, a boarding and day school, now in its sixteenth year, has a local patronage, but maintains a high standard of work.

NORTH CENTRAL STATES

OHIO

Bartholomew-Clifton School, established in 1874 in Clifton, a suburb of Cincinnati, is conducted by Miss B. Antoinette Ely and Miss Mary F. Smith. There is a strong college-trained faculty who give instruction from Montessori and kindergarten work to preparation for the leading colleges. Though it is mainly a day school about twenty boarding pupils are enrolled this year. The four hundred and fifty graduates are organized in an alumnae association.

Oakhurst, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, Miss Kendrick's Collegiate School for Girls, was established in 1892 as Miss Butler's School. It is a day school with accommodation for a few boarders. Miss Helen F. Kendrick is the principal.

The H. Thane Miller School, Avondale, near Cincinnati, a boarding and day school, was founded as Mt. Auburn Institute in 1856 but has for twenty-one years been conducted by Mrs. H. Thane Miller who named it for her husband. Associated with her is Miss Emma L. Parry.

The School of the Brown County Ursulines, Saint Martin, is a boarding school established in 1845 by the famous French Order of Nuns. Its distinctive work is individual personal training. While one of its eight separate courses prepares for college, the aim of the school is pre-eminently home-building and the home-virtues. It has been called "the school aloof from the iconoclasm of the age." The Rt. Rev. J. B. Purcell has charge of the school. The pupils come chiefly from the smaller towns in the Middle West.

The Columbus School for Girls, Parsons Pl., Columbus, incorporated in 1912, has been conducted since 1904 by Miss Alice Gladden, A.B., Smith, and Miss Grace L. Jones, A.B., A.M., Bryn Mawr, who succeeded to a school established by Miss Scott and Miss Kelly in 1898. It is a prosperous day school attended by two hundred and fifty with resident accommodation for about twenty-five.

Harcourt Place School for Girls, Gambier, is a boarding school established in 1887 by Miss Harriett Merwin. In 1915 she was succeeded in the management of the school by the Rev. Jacob Streibert, Ph.D., as regent, who for thirty years has been engaged in educational work, and by Mrs. Emily D. Streibert and Miss Ethel K. Streibert, A.B., Univ. of Mich., B.S., Columbia, as principals.

Laurel School, 10001 Euclid Ave., Cleveland, established in 1898, is a day school with a limited number of resident pupils. There are about three hundred students in attendance. Mrs. A. E. Lyman is head mistress.

Hathaway-Brown School, 1945 E. 97th St., Cleveland, founded in 1876 by Rev. Frederick Brooks, brother of Phillips Brooks, is a day school accommodating a small number of resident students. Miss Mary E. Raymond, A.B., A.M., Smith and Radcliffe, is the principal.

The Smead School for Girls, Toledo, a day school with departments from Montessori to college preparation, accommodating a limited number of resident pupils, was established in Toledo in 1884 by the Misses Smead. Upon their retirement in 1911 the school was incorporated under a board of trustees and the Misses Anderson, who had been teachers in the school, assumed direction. Friends have given the entire property occupied by the school and have raised a small endowment.

INDIANA

St. Mary's College and Academy, Notre Dame, near South Bend, has for sixty-one years been maintained by the Sisters of the Holy Cross. Instruction is offered from primary to college grade. More than three hundred and fifty are enrolled in the collegiate and academic department, coming from widespread regions.

Tudor Hall School for Girls, 1560 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis, has been conducted by Miss Fredonia Allen, a Cornell graduate, since 1902. It is a day school for one hundred and sixty students with accommodations for thirty boarders.

Elmhurst, Connersville, now in its seventh year, is a college preparatory country school for twenty-four boarding pupils, established by its principals, Miss I. B. Cressler, A.B., Wilson, and Miss Caroline L. Sumner, A.B., Smith. The school occupies an old Colonial mansion on a farm in the eastern part of Indiana. Miss Cressler formerly conducted a school for American girls in Rome and Miss Sumner was for a number of years connected with the Latin department of Smith College.

St. Mary-of-the-Woods College and Academy, St. Mary-of-the-Woods, founded in 1840 by the Sisters of Providence of Ruillé-sur-Loir, France, has become a splendidly equipped and successful school offering preparatory and college courses to pupils from twenty-five states.

MICHIGAN

The Liggett Schools, 73 Stimson Pl., Detroit, successful and prosperous day schools under the management of the Misses Liggett, have developed from what was formerly known as the "Detroit Home and Day School," established by them and their father, Rev. James D. Liggett, in 1878. The Liggett Schools have remained continuously for thirty-six years under the management of the same family. The schools are of the first rank, well organized and equipped, with a large and resourceful faculty. Stuart A. Courtis, a pioneer in scientific research in education, has long been connected with the school. The pupils represent the best families of the city of Detroit. So popular is the school that there is a waiting list. About one hundred and thirty-five of its five hundred graduates have entered college, chiefly Vassar, and the Alumnae Association cooperates heartily with the school. A branch school known as "The Eastern Liggett School" was opened in the eastern part of Detroit in 1913, providing for the growing patronage of that section.

St. Mary's College and Academy, Monroe, founded in 1845, under the direction of the Sisters Servants of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, offers the ordinary high school courses. Four hundred and fifty graduates form its Alumnae Association and by their scholarship fund and generous cooperation lend efficient aid. There is an enrollment of one hundred and eighty, the majority being boarders.

Akeley Hall, Grand Haven, on the shore of Lake Michigan, is the diocesan school of western Michigan, founded in 1887. It is leased to the Misses Yerkes and is conducted as a private boarding school limited to fifty girls who receive much individual attention. Miss Susan H. Yerkes was in charge from 1901 to 1909. Miss Mary Helen Yerkes is now the resident principal. See p. 537.

CHICAGO

Brooks School, Ashland Boulevard & Monroe St., is a local day school established in 1890 by Maria Brooks. It provides instruction from kindergarten to college preparation. Miss Effie A. Gardner, Ph.B., University of Chicago, the principal, is considered an excellent teacher. About seventy pupils are enrolled. Boys are admitted to the lower school.

Boyesen School, 4961 Lake Ave., is a boarding and day school for girls and young boys maintained by Miss Augusta Boyesen, a Christian Scientist. Instruction is offered from primary to academic.

The Chicago Institute, a day school founded by Mrs. Emmons Blaine, was formerly presided over by Colonel Francis W. Parker. It is the preparatory school of the Department of Education of Chicago University. John Dewey, now of Columbia, was formerly the director. It comprises a complete school system—kindergarten, elementary, and college preparatory.

Starrett School for Girls, 47th St. & Woodlawn Ave., on the South Side, is a large day school with accommodation for ten resident pupils. It has been maintained since 1884 by Mrs. Helen E. Starrett. Instruction is provided from kindergarten through college preparation.

University School for Girls, 1106 Lake Shore Drive, is a day and boarding school established in 1896 and patronized by North Side families. Miss Anna R. Haire, A.B., Smith, the principal, maintains high standards in the school work, and among the students she sends each year to the leading eastern colleges a number have taken honors at Bryn Mawr. A kindergarten department is maintained.

Chicago Latin School for Girls, 59 Scott St., established, and conducted since 1888, by Miss Mabel S. Vickery, who also established the Chicago Latin School for Boys, is an exclusive day school for North Side girls, with high standards of scholarship. A number of girls are prepared for college each year.

The Kenwood-Loring School, 4600 Ellis Ave., was formed by the merging of the Kenwood Institute, dating from 1885, with the Loring School, established in 1876. The present head mistress, Mrs. Stella D. Loring, had been connected with the latter school since 1879. Her daughter, Miss Helen D. Loring, is co-principal. There is a large day school with a separate residence for boarders. The school is cooperative with the University of Chicago and has sent over two hundred girls to the eastern women's colleges.

The Faulkner School for Girls, 4746 Dorchester Ave., succeeded in 1909 an older school known as Ascham Hall. It is a large day school exclusively, with an attendance of about two hundred and departments from kindergarten to college preparatory. Miss Elizabeth Faulkner, a graduate of the University of Chicago, is a capable executive who commands the respect of pupils and patrons. Her sister, Miss Georgene Faulkner, has a well-deserved reputation as a kindergartner. The school cooperates with the University of Chicago and girls are prepared for all the leading colleges.

Girton School for Girls, founded in 1898 at Winnetka by Francis King Cooke, A.B., Harvard '94, is a home and day school combining the advantages of town and country. Miss Mary M. Richardson, Vassar, the academic head mistress, has been with the school since its foundation. Miss Mabel Whitman, Smith, has for many years been in charge of the girls in the home. The upper school offers thorough preparation for the leading women's colleges, to which about ten girls are sent each year.

Ferry Hall, Lake Forest, affiliated with Lake Forest College, is a preparatory school and junior college for day and boarding pupils. It was founded and endowed in 1869 under the name of "Ferry Institute for Young Ladies" by Rev. William M. Ferry, whose wife was the closest girlhood friend of Mary Lyon. The school has many friends who have added to its endowment. It is attended in all its departments by about one hundred girls from Illinois and nearby states. In the past quarter-century over two thousand young women have been enrolled, including a large number of missionaries. In 1915 Miss Marion Coats succeeded Miss Frances L. Hughes, who was in charge of the school for ten years.

Roycemore, a Day School for Girls, Evanston, was opened in 1915 by Miss Julia S. Henry with strong financial backing. The school offers a course of study for the eight grammar grades and the first and second years of the high school. Little boys are admitted in the lower school.

Jennings Seminary, Aurora, one hour from Chicago, was opened as a Methodist Episcopal coeducational institution in 1859 and reorganized in 1898 as a boarding school for girls of high school age only. Miss Charlotte Codding was superintendent from 1898 to 1904. At that time Miss Bertha A. Barber, B.S., became principal, and Mrs. Lucy Rider Meyer, long interested in the institution, the principal emerita.

Waterman Hall, Sycamore, fifty-five miles northwest of Chicago, is a partially endowed church school under a board of trustees, established in 1888. The pupils come from Illinois and the Mississippi valley. The Rev. B. Frank Fleetwood, A.M., D.D., has been rector since its beginning. Last year several girls entered college from this school.

Frances Shimer School, Mt. Carroll, one hundred and twenty-five miles west of Chicago, was founded in 1853 as the "Mt. Carroll Seminary." In 1896 it was named in honor of its founder, Mrs. F. A. W. Shimer, and became affiliated with the University of Chicago and controlled by a board of trustees representing that university, the alumnae, and the citizens of the town. The school is endowed. About sixteen from the school entered college last year.

Geneseo Collegiate Institute, Geneseo, is a coeducational school with a local attendance of about one hundred, established in 1884 by the College Board of the Presbyterian Church. The Department of Music under Miss Ethel B. Crosier is emphasized. Of the three hundred and fifty graduates of the school two thirds are women. Norbury W. Thornton, A.M., is principal.

Academy of the Illinois Woman's College, Jacksonville, is a Methodist college preparatory school established in 1846 and now under the direction of Joseph R. Harker.

Monticello Seminary, Godfrey, thirty miles from St. Louis, is the oldest girls' school in the West and one of the best. It was founded in 1835 by Benjamin Godfrey, an old Cape Cod sea-captain who had made a fortune in Eastern trade and settled here because of large land holdings. The school was organized by Rev. Theron Baldwin, a friend of Captain Godfrey, who was influenced by the ideas of Mary Lyon. In 1841 it was incorporated and graduated its first class. When first established the school was known locally as "Godfrey's Folly," but in its long history it has played an important part in the education of young women of the West so that it is appropriately spoken of as the "Mt. Holyoke of the West." For forty years Harriet Newell Haskell was a most capable principal. Miss Martina C. Erickson at present occupies that position. The school has a large body of loyal alumnae organized in many associations throughout the West. The girls come from all over the western states.

WISCONSIN

Milwaukee-Downer Seminary, Milwaukee, may be said to date from 1895, when the two colleges, founded in the fifties, were united, and a preparatory department was organized. In 1910 the seminary became an independent institution, and, though it is still controlled by the trustees and president of the college, it has its own separate faculty. Under the administration of Miss E. C. Sabin, president of Milwaukee-Downer College, and the dean, Miss Rodman, the school maintains a high academic standard. The school has graduated over four hundred girls, about half of whom have entered college. Its day pupils come from Milwaukee's best families; the boarding pupils from all parts of the West.

Hillcrest School, Beaver Dam, three hours from Milwaukee, is a small, home boarding school exclusively for little girls, preparing them for high school or academy. It has been maintained by Miss S. M. Davison for the past six years.

Kemper Hall, Kenosha, is a boarding school including three departments,—primary, preparatory, and collegiate. Special attention is given to young pupils. The school has the highest class of patronage and maintains high academic standards.

Grafton Hall, Fond du Lac, incorporated in 1894, accepts girls from fourteen years up. The pupils come largely from the Middle West. Preparatory and academic courses are offered as well as a two-year junior college course. The school is accredited to the leading eastern colleges.

MINNESOTA

The Academy of Albert Lea College, Albert Lea, near the southern boundary of Minnesota, a Presbyterian institution established in 1884, offers a four-year college preparatory course. The students come from the Middle West. Miss Gertrude S. Kingsland, A.M., Columbia, is dean.

St. Mary's Hall, the Bishop Whipple School for Girls, Faribault, is a home school for girls under strong church influence. This school grew out of the efforts of the Rt. Rev. Henry Benjamin Whipple, the first bishop in this region. From the "Bishop Seabury Mission," which he founded in 1866, have developed, in addition to St. Mary's, Shattuck School and Seabury Divinity School. The rector, the Rt. Rev. S. C. Edsall, is also president of the Seabury Divinity School. Miss Caroline W. Eels, the principal, studied at Oxford University. Instruction is offered from primary to college grade, and the faculty, which includes many college women, is a strong one. The life at St. Mary's is simple, homely, and devout. The girls come from the Northwest generally. The school has graduated about four hundred and twenty-five.

Lutheran Ladies' Seminary, Red Wing, on the Mississippi, was incorporated in 1892 by the Synod of the Norwegian Evangelical Church. The girls represent seven nationalities, chiefly Scandinavian, from Minnesota and other middle-western states. There have been over four hundred graduates. The Rev. Hans Allen has been at the head of this institution since its opening in 1892.

Oak Hall, Mrs. Backus' School for Girls, 578 Holly Ave., St. Paul, until 1903 called Baldwin's Seminary, has been controlled by Mrs. Backus for thirty-one years. It is a day school with a resident department. About half the girls prepare for college.

College of St. Catherine, Cleveland Ave. & Randolph St., St. Paul, conducted by the Sisters of St. Joseph since 1905, offers the equivalent of a four-year high school course and a four-year college course leading to a degree. The faculty includes graduates of Columbia, Chicago, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. About one hundred and fifty girls are enrolled, largely from Minnesota, with a sprinkling from other states and Canada.

Stanley Hall, 2139 Pleasant Ave., an English classical boarding and day school in Minneapolis, was opened as a day school by Miss Olive A. Evers in 1890. The school offers instruction from primary upward and in 1913 college grades were added. Six years ago the fine arts departments were combined with the Northwestern Conservatory and now annually enroll between six and seven hundred students.

Graham Hall, Minneapolis, established in 1900 and incorporated in 1915, is a city school with a large day department. The residence for boarding students is in a separate building. The courses extend from primary to college grade and in the lowest grades little boys are accepted. Miss Elizabeth Carse, A.M., is principal, and Miss E. M. Smith, A.B., assistant principal. There are in attendance one hundred and seventy day students and twenty-five boarding students.

College of Saint Scholastica, two miles north of Duluth, was established in 1892 as the "Sacred Heart Institute," by the Sisters of St. Benedict under the direction of the Rt. Rev. James McGolrick. It is a boarding and day school providing instruction for college preparatory and college students.

NORTH DAKOTA

Oak Grove Lutheran Ladies' Seminary, Fargo, incorporated in 1906 by the Lutheran Free Church, is a boarding school for girls from Scandinavian families of North Dakota, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.

SOUTH DAKOTA

All Saints School, Sioux Falls, established in 1885, is an endowed Episcopal boarding school with a hundred girls in attendance, about half of whom are in the day school. Miss Helen S. Peabody has been principal since the opening of the school.

MISSOURI

Miss Barstow's School, 15 Westport Ave., Kansas City, is a day school with a small boarding department. Instruction is offered in courses from kindergarten to college preparation. The principal, Miss Mary L. C. Barstow, A.B., Wellesley, is a woman of large understanding.

Hardin College and Conservatory, Mexico, was established in 1873 by Ex-governor C. H. Hardin and since that time has graduated eight hundred students. The college is conducted by John W. Million, Johns Hopkins and Univ. of Chicago, who has been president since 1897. At one time Xavier Scharwenka was connected with the music department.

William Woods College, Fulton, established in 1890, has a grammar school course and a four-year college preparatory course. Of the two hundred students more than half live at the school and the majority are in the high school department. The president is Joseph L. Garvin, A.M., Columbia; B.D., Union Theological Seminary. The college is owned and controlled by the Christian Churches of Missouri.

Stephens Junior College, Columbia, is a preparatory school and junior college. The school was established in 1856 and is owned by the State Baptist Association and during its history has graduated nearly five hundred. James M. Wood, B.S., A.B., Univ. of Mo.; A.M., Columbia, is the head master.

Lindenwood, St. Charles, twenty-two miles northwest of St. Louis, is one of the oldest schools west of the Mississippi river, having been established in 1831. Most of the students live at the school and come largely from St. Louis, Mo., and the surrounding states. Dr. John L. Roemer, A.B., B.D., has recently become the president.

Mary Institute, Lake & McPherson Aves., St. Louis, is the leading college preparatory school for girls of St. Louis. It is conducted under the charter of Washington University, which was founded in 1853. In 1859 Rev. William Greenleaf Eliot, who had played an active part in the establishment of the University, founded and organized Mary Institute, which he named for his daughter. It is exclusively a day school and has graduated over twelve hundred and the annual attendance during recent decades has been over four hundred. Loyal alumnae have from time to time contributed funds. Edmund H. Sears, A.B., Harvard; A.M., Washington '71, has been principal since 1891.

Hosmer Hall, St. Louis, established in 1884 by Miss Shepard and Miss Mathews, was under the sole control of the latter for ten years until her death in 1907. Miss Louise McNair, the present principal, then succeeded to the management. Miss McNair is a Wellesley graduate, a woman of high ideals, more interested in the intangible results than the formal side of education. She had for many years been a teacher in this school. Practically all her faculty are college-educated women. College preparation is accented but there is a department for younger girls.

Lenox Hall, "four blocks west of Limit Walk, the western boundary of the city of St. Louis," is conducted by Mrs. M. Louise Thomas. It is a well-equipped home and day school for girls with accommodation for forty resident pupils, representing twelve states but largely from the Southwest.

NEBRASKA

Brownell Hall, 10th & Worthington Sts., Omaha, founded in 1863 by Bishop Talbot, is the pioneer Church school in the West. It is an Episcopal boarding and day school, the Bishop of Nebraska being president of the board of trustees. There are junior, academic, and post-graduate departments. Miss Euphemia Johnson, the principal since 1911, was educated at Radcliffe and Columbia. She was supervisor of All Saints School at Sioux Falls from 1901 to 1909, and instructor at Wolfe Hall, Denver, for one year. See p. 540.

COLORADO

Wolcott School, at Denver, was established in 1898 by Miss Anna L. Wolcott (now Mrs. Joel F. Vaile), a former Wellesley student. On her marriage in 1913 the management of the school was turned over to other hands, but Mrs. Vaile continues her interest in the school. The school corporation includes leading citizens of Denver. It is essentially a day school although there is a boarding department for those from a distance. Provision is also made for younger girls. College preparation is a primary aim, but, in its function of providing for the educational needs of the leading families of the city, it makes adequate provision for those who do not wish to enter college. The faculty is headed by Dr. J. D. S. Riggs, formerly president of Ottawa University (Kan.) and Shurtleff College.

IDAHO

St. Margaret's Hall, Boise, an Episcopalian boarding and day school for girls established in 1885, is the oldest Protestant school in the state. The instruction covers the whole range of girls' education, from kindergarten to college preparation. Leonora Cox, B.S., Columbia, who studied also in England and Paris, is principal. The majority of the girls are from Boise.

UTAH

New Jersey Academy, 55 N. 2d W. St., Logan, is a boarding school for girls under the management of the Presbyterian Church. It was begun in 1878 by Rev. Calvin M. Parks and Mrs. Parks and has had a steady growth. Miss Faith H. Haines, A.B., Vassar, is acting principal.

Rowland Hall, Salt Lake City, established in 1880, is a large Episcopal church school. Its present high standards and prosperity are due to Miss Clara I. Colburne who for nineteen years was principal. In 1914 she gave up the school to take over the Rayson School, New York City. Miss Georgiana Humphreys, formerly of Huron College, S.D., is now in charge.

WASHINGTON

Brunot Hall, 2209 Pacific Ave., Spokane, an Episcopal boarding and day school, has for more than twenty years provided thorough instruction for girls of the Northwest. Miss Julia P. Bailey, Radcliffe, is assisted by a strong faculty of college-bred women who offer a college preparatory course as well as elementary work and a four-year domestic science course. Especial advantages are afforded in music and art. See p. 541.

The Annie Wright Seminary, Tacoma, was founded by the Rt. Rev. John A. Paddock, D.D., Bishop of Washington, in 1884, and has been endowed by Charles B. Wright of Philadelphia. Miss Adelaide Preston, Smith College, is principal. There is an alumnae association of two hundred.

St. Paul's School for Girls, Walla Walla, is an Episcopal school established in 1872 for both boarding and day pupils. Nettie M. Galbraith is the principal.

CALIFORNIA

Hamlin School, 2230 Pacific Ave., San Francisco, is a large residential and day school. Miss Hamlin, the principal, is a native of Massachusetts and a graduate of the University of Michigan. There are over a hundred girls in attendance, thirty of them in the elementary department, to which little boys are also admitted. Thirty boarding pupils are accommodated.

Miss Burke's School for Girls, 2310 Broderick St., San Francisco, is an exclusive school with a large day patronage. Miss Katharine Burke is the principal.

Miss Murison's School, Clay & Pierce Sts., San Francisco, is an excellent day school maintained by Miss Elizabeth L. Murison, for fifty girls with boarding accommodation for a dozen.

Dominican College, San Rafael, was incorporated in 1890 and is conducted by the Sisters of the Order. Instruction is given from primary to college grade and a school of music is maintained.

The Horton School, Perkins & Palm Sts., Oakland, has been maintained as a day school since 1884 by Miss Sarah W. Horton. It provides instruction from kindergarten to college preparation.

Miss Head's Boarding and Day School for Girls, 2538 Channing Way, Berkeley, established in 1887, has, since the retirement of Miss Head in 1909, been maintained by Miss Mary Elizabeth Wilson, the principal, a graduate of Smith College, assisted by a strong faculty, most of whom are college graduates. The four-year high school course is emphasized and a considerable number of the girls enter college, but there are also intermediate and primary departments. The girls come largely from surrounding towns.

The Watson School, 3037 Telegraph Ave., Berkeley, is a day school with accommodation for about twenty boarding pupils. It has been maintained by Mrs. C. L. Watson since 1908. The school receives girls for instruction in all grades from primary to college and boys up to the age of thirteen. The school's growth has caused its removal to larger and more attractive quarters. Among the patrons are many Christian Scientists.

Miss Ransom and Miss Bridges' School for Girls, Hazel Lane, Piedmont, established in 1906, has attained so marked a success that with the assistance of friends and patrons it was incorporated in 1913 and new buildings erected. Miss Marion Ransom, Vassar and Radcliffe, and Miss Edith Bridges, Univ. of Cal., are assisted by a faculty of twenty, more than half of whom are college graduates. The patronage is largely local and there are fifty resident students.

Miss Harker's School, Palo Alto, is a large day school with a limited accommodation for boarding pupils. Miss Catherine Harker, the principal, is a graduate of Vassar and is assisted by a strong faculty of college-bred women. The school was established in 1902 and its success necessitated the erection in 1907 of its present attractive building.

Castilleja School, Palo Alto, has for nine years been maintained by Miss Mary Isabel Lockey, A.B., Stanford. Its steady growth enabled it five years ago to move into buildings especially adapted to its purposes. Much of the work is carried on out of doors. The enrollment includes many local day pupils but the whole Pacific Coast is represented. The course of study includes all grades from Montessori to college preparation.

Santa Barbara Girls School, 1624 Garden St., was incorporated in 1914 by prominent residents of Santa Barbara. Courses extend from kindergarten through college preparation. It is a day school but there is a resident department for twelve girls.

The Hollywood School for Girls, Sunset Boulevard & Hay Ave., Hollywood, a residential school just outside Los Angeles, is under the joint management of Miss Sophie S. Hogan and Miss Louise Knappen. Recitations and study periods are held out of doors except in rainy weather. Instruction is given in all grades from primary to a four-year high school course. Pupils come from various localities, including the East.

The Marlborough, 865 W. 23d St., the oldest girls' school in Los Angeles, was established in 1889 by Mrs. G. A. Caswell, who still remains the principal though she has practically relinquished control to her associate, Miss Grace Wiltshire, a graduate of the Univ. of California and a woman of the broadest and most liberal sympathies. A practical, all-round education is given, with especial emphasis on thorough training in English. Though it is not primarily a college preparatory school a considerable proportion of its graduates have entered the leading colleges in the East as well as the West. There is a large day school, and thirty resident pupils are accommodated. A wholly new plant has been built recently. No work below high school grade is attempted and the average age of graduation is about nineteen. Some twenty girls graduate each year and the school has three hundred alumnae. The patronage is largely from California, but the boarding pupils are from nearly every state in the Union. The faculty consists almost wholly of college graduates.

Girls' Collegiate School, "Casa de Rosas," Adams & Hoover Sts., Los Angeles, was established in 1892 by its present principals, Miss Alice K. Parsons, Wells, and Miss Jeanne W. Dennen, Bradford Academy, who had conducted a school in Brooklyn for seven years previously. They are assisted by a college-trained faculty. The school has grown rapidly and sends girls to the leading colleges East and West. In 1909 the school was reorganized in upper and lower schools, with a post-graduate department. Special attention is given to physical training. Courses in domestic science, music, business methods, and arts, besides the regular college preparatory work, are offered to the one hundred and fifty girls. The Alumnae Association was organized in 1898. See p. 543.

Angels Vista School, 1844 St. Andrew's Pl., Los Angeles, a small day and residence school, conducted by Ethelwyn Wing, Michigan and Wisconsin, since 1908, is now under the direction of her sister, Miss Oril Wing. The school provides a complete system of education from primary through first year college.

Westlake School for Girls, 612 Alvarado St., Los Angeles, is a large school with an enrollment of about two hundred. Miss Frederica H. de Laguna, A.M., Columbia, and Miss Jessica S. Vance, A.M., Stanford, the joint principals, were formerly members of the faculties of Chaffey College and the Univ. of Southern California. The school provides instruction from primary to college grade and has accommodations for about thirty boarding pupils.

St. Catherine's School, 636 W. Adams St., Los Angeles, established in 1910, is a non-sectarian school for girls under fifteen and in the primary and grammar grades, and prepares for the Marlborough and the Girls' Collegiate Schools of Los Angeles. The 'cubicle' system gives each girl a degree of privacy together with proximity and supervision. While most of the pupils are from the neighborhood there is accommodation for twenty boarding pupils. Miss Maude Thomas and Miss Mosgrave are the principals.

The Orton School, 120 South Euclid Ave., an English-classical school for girls in Pasadena, was established in 1890 by Miss Anna B. Orton, a daughter of Professor James Orton of Vassar, the celebrated naturalist. The four-year high school course leading to college preparation may be continued into the first two years of college work. The school maintains affiliation with Cours Dwight in Paris and the Willard School in Berlin.

Los Robles School, 386 South Los Robles Ave., Pasadena, established in 1900, was in 1915 entirely reorganized and is now under the management of Blanche Bunnelle, formerly principal of the lower school at Belmont School and of the Grammar School at Throop Institute. Much time is spent in the open air.

Huntington Hall, South Pasadena, is a non-sectarian boarding school established in 1905 and conducted by Miss Florence Housel.

The San Diego Bishop's Schools comprise an Episcopal day school in San Diego, Mrs. Maclean, principal, and a boarding school at La Jolla. These were established and incorporated in 1910 by the first bishop of Los Angeles and the boarding school was made possible by a donation from Miss E. Virginia Scripps of land and buildings. In the primary grades little boys as well as girls are admitted as day pupils.

COEDUCATIONAL SCHOOLS*

MAINE

Westbrook Seminary, Portland, chartered in 1831, is an endowed school under Universalist control. It offers all secondary courses and a graduate course of two years. There are one hundred and twenty boarding and day students, largely from Portland and the surrounding towns with a sprinkling from other states and foreign countries. The boys and girls are accommodated in separate dormitories. The school has a notable body of alumni including men and women prominent in the affairs of New England. Since 1914 Clarence P. Quimby, A.B., Bates, A.M., Harvard, has been president.

The Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Kent's Hill, in its ninety-first year, is a prosperous endowed boarding and day school with a large farm, providing varied courses which attract two hundred and twenty-five students from all over the state. The course in agriculture is especially well given. In its ninety-one years of existence fifteen thousand students have passed through its halls. J. O. Newton, A.B., Wesleyan Univ., is a vigorous administrator and keeps the institution in the front rank of Maine schools.

Oak Grove Seminary, Vassalboro, is owned and controlled and largely patronized by the Society of Friends of New England. Opened in 1850, it was incorporated four years later as the "Oak Grove School." From the beginning the school failed to be self-supporting financially and was twice closed and twice burned. Since 1888, however, the school has prospered and now has an endowment that insures a permanent future. It is a conservative preparatory school giving close supervision to each pupil. Louis T. Jones, Ph.D., the principal, is a man of extensive educational experience.

Coburn Classical Institute, Waterville, was established in 1829 as an academy preparatory to Colby College. It was given its present name as a result of endowments received in 1874 from Abner Coburn. The school offers college preparatory and general courses to one hundred and twenty-five boys and girls coming not only from the surrounding towns but also from throughout northern New England. George Stevenson, a graduate, was head master here for some years until he gave up the teaching profession. He was succeeded three years ago by Drew T. Harthorn, A.M. George Otis Smith, Director U.S. Geological Survey, is president of the trustees.

Maine Central Institute, Pittsfield, established in 1866, is a large school drawing its two hundred and fifty students from all over New England. A high standard of scholarship is maintained in all the courses, which fit for any college or scientific school, or train the pupils to be teachers. Since its establishment three thousand six hundred students have enjoyed the privileges of the school. S. R. Oldham, A.B., Harvard, is the principal. The faculty are nearly all college-trained.

Hebron Academy, Hebron, founded in 1804, has many famous names upon its roll of alumni. Well endowed and beautifully situated, it has under the virile administration of William E. Sargent since 1885 fully maintained its prestige. Its two hundred and fifty students while largely from Maine come from all parts of New England and from the South and West. See p. 508.

Fryeburg Academy, Fryeburg, has been a coeducational school since its establishment in 1792 and remains a vigorous institution with high school courses attended by over one hundred and thirty boys and girls. The principal is Ernest E. Weeks.

Thornton Academy, Saco, is a well-endowed academy which for more than a century has provided excellent educational facilities for the boys and girls of the region. During the last ten years more than seventy of its graduates have entered the Maine colleges.

The Lanier Home School, on the Piscataqua river, Eliot, opened in 1914, is the outgrowth of the summer camp which for some years Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lanier have there maintained. Mr. Lanier, son of the Southern poet, has inherited the poetic and creative temperament which Mrs. Lanier admirably supplements and executively utilizes for the inspiration of children and grown-ups. It is a school of the most intimate sort for their own three children and a dozen others, where all organic life activities are made educative and the traditional artificialities of school are not permitted to interfere with the child's real life. Materially the life is simple and inspirationally rich, untrammelled by formalities.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

New Hampton Literary Institution and Commercial College, New Hampton, established in 1821, is a vigorous endowed institution. It has two thousand living alumni in New Hampshire and as many more in other New England states, among them several state governors. Frank W. Preston is the principal of the Commercial College, and C. L. Joy is associate principal.

Tilton Seminary was founded in 1845 and incorporated in 1852 as the New Hampshire Conference Seminary. Removed in 1862 to Tilton, nineteen miles north of Concord, it adopted its present corporate name in 1903. In its long history it has enrolled over eight thousand students and today is attended by three hundred, one third of whom come from outside the state. Under the strong and able administration of George L. Plimpton, who has been the principal since 1896, the seminary has greatly increased its endowment and numbers, and is well equipped to maintain the best traditions of the old academies.

Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, was opened as a Congregational boys' school in 1813, but in 1840 a newly-started seminary for girls united with it. The one hundred and fifty pupils, though largely local, represent seven states and five foreign countries. Charles Alden Tracy, B.L., Dartmouth, has been the principal since 1905. Miss E. A. Kimball, founder of the Kimball School for Girls, Worcester, is the preceptress of the girls.

Sanborn Seminary, Kingston, was built and endowed by Major Edward S. Sanborn in 1883. It offers college preparatory and general courses to one hundred boarding and day students who come from surrounding towns. The school has graduated three hundred, of whom more than one fourth have entered college. Z. Willis Kemp, A.B., A.M., Bowdoin; Ph.D., Univ. of Ill., is the principal.

Colby Academy, New London, was opened in 1837 as the New London Academical Institution. In 1853 it was renamed in honor of the Colby family who had long been friends of the school and who added to its endowment. It is a boarding and day school,—a successful and prosperous survival of the old-fashioned academy type. Its varied courses attract about one hundred and eighty students from New England, chiefly New Hampshire. Justin O. Wellman, A.B., Colby College '98, has been the principal since 1905.

Proctor Academy, the successor of the old Andover Academy, was opened in 1881. It is a boarding and day school having an attendance of ninety boys and girls from all over New England. The curriculum is especially arranged for students who do not expect to enter college. Francis T. Clayton, a graduate of New York University and Union Theological Seminary, is the principal.

New Ipswich Appleton Academy, the second oldest academy in New Hampshire, was founded and incorporated in 1789. In 1853 it was endowed by Samuel Appleton. It provides sound instruction for forty local pupils. There is dormitory accommodation for a small number of girls.

VERMONT

St. Johnsbury Academy is a large school of local patronage accommodating three hundred and thirty students. It was founded and endowed in 1843 by three brothers of the Fairbanks family. Scholarships and many gifts enable the school to offer varied courses at low cost. College preparation is the first aim but instruction is offered in industrial training, commercial work, and fine arts. The principal is Martin G. Benedict.

Montpelier Seminary, established in 1832 at Newbury, is a flourishing school under Methodist influence, giving a good educational training at low cost. In 1866 the school moved to Montpelier. Special emphasis is put on college preparation and a large percentage of its graduates go to college, although a variety of other courses is offered. There is an enrollment of one hundred and seventy largely from Vermont. The principal since 1914 is the Rev. John W. Hatch, Univ. of Maine '88, who is a man of enthusiasm and initiative.

Troy Conference Academy, Poultney, established in 1834 by the Methodists, is a boarding school with separate dormitories for boys and girls coming from all parts of the United States, but largely from New York and New England. Since the destruction by fire of the old building in 1908 new buildings have been erected, so the equipment is modern. The school has received many endowments and generous gifts and is thus able to offer thorough instruction at a moderate cost. Charles L. Leonard, A.B., D.D., is the principal.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Buckingham School, 2 Buckingham Pl., Cambridge, is a day school for young girls for the first nine years of school life. Boys are fitted to enter the sixth class from the top of college preparatory schools. There is an attendance of about one hundred and fifteen pupils from the families of the Harvard faculty and old Cambridge. Begun by Miss Markham twenty-one years ago, the school was incorporated by leading citizens of Cambridge in 1902 and has since been under the able administration of Miss Katharine M. Thompson, A.B., Radcliffe, assisted by a staff of thirteen room and department teachers.

Miss Pierce's School, Hedge Rd., Brookline, is a large and successful elementary school for girls and boys, patronized by the leading families of Brookline. Miss Pierce established the school twenty-nine years ago, and Miss Julia B. Park, Wellesley '01, is the principal.

The Chestnut Hill School, organized in 1893, is an elementary day school for girls and boys, receiving them from neighboring families and preparing them for leading secondary schools in the vicinity of Boston. Miss Martha A. Cushman is the principal.

Thayer Academy, Braintree, is a school of local importance endowed by Sylvanus Thayer in 1877. It is free to the residents of the original town of Braintree from which region its one hundred and twenty pupils come. William Gallagher, a graduate of Harvard, is the head master.

Derby Academy, Hingham, was founded and endowed in 1784 by Madam Sarah Derby. Throughout its long history it has provided instruction for boys and girls from Hingham and the adjacent towns on the south shore. As conducted today it is a day school providing instruction from kindergarten through the grammar school grades. The principal, Mrs. Marita M. Burdett, formerly of Chestnut Hill School and Volkmann School, receives a few boarding pupils in her home.

Dean Academy, Franklin, twenty-eight miles southwest of Boston, is a day and boarding school of which Arthur W. Peirce has been head master since 1897. There are over two hundred boys and girls in attendance, many of whom are from New England.

Tabor Academy, Marion, on Buzzard's Bay, now in its fortieth year, was established by Elizabeth Tabor for day and boarding pupils. Charles E. Pethybridge is the principal.

Leicester Academy, Leicester, has been coeducational since its establishment in 1784. Its early history is significant because of many educational innovations and experiments there introduced.

Cushing Academy, Ashburnham, an endowed boarding and day school opened in 1875, bears the name of its first benefactor. There are about one hundred and seventy students coming from all over New England. Hervey S. Cowell, Bates College, who since 1875 has devoted his life to educational work, has been the principal since 1887.

RHODE ISLAND

The East Greenwich Academy, a boarding school established in 1802, is conducted by a board of trustees under the Methodist Episcopal Church of New England and northern New York. It offers college preparatory, commercial, and music courses at low cost, and while it draws one hundred and fifty boys and girls from all over New England, its patronage is largely local.

CONNECTICUT

The Woodcraft School, Round Hill Road, Greenwich, is a most interesting and novel educational enterprise for both boys and girls. It was begun in 1915 as the "Little School In The Woods" under the direction of Mrs. Charles Tarbell Dudley, a graduate of Bryn Mawr, with the support and backing of such Greenwich residents as Ernest Thompson Seton and Dr. William T. Hornaday. It aims to combine woodcraft pursuits and nature study with academic instruction through college preparatory work. Art, music, folk dancing, and handicraft are inherent parts of the pupil's day.

The Gilbert School, Winsted, is a private high school established in 1895 by the bequest of the late William L. Gilbert. It is a day school, free to the people of the town with a nominal tuition to those from outside. Walter D. Hood, A.B., is the principal.

The Berle Home-School, Litchfield, is a school for the intensive training of children from six to thirteen, opened in 1915. The director, the Rev. A. A. Berle, is well known for his vitally interesting books "The School in the Home" and "Teaching in the Home" which relate the system of education he followed so successfully with his own children. The head master is Ira Z. Allen, whose own experience in public school work convinced him of the enormous waste of their methods and led him to establish this school.

The Norwich Free Academy, Norwich, originated in a movement of leading citizens as early as 1846 which culminated when the academy was incorporated in 1854. It differs in type from both the academies and high schools, between which it is historically a connecting link. As early as the closing years of the eighteenth century there had been an old-time private academy at Norwich. The movement to establish a free academy met with great opposition, for many at this time opposed free education beyond the elementary schools. The orators of the day including Daniel Webster were enlisted, and the agitation which resulted did much to further the development of the high school system, but in Norwich no high school was established. Though amply endowed the free academy makes a nominal charge to residents of the town and exacts a tuition of $60 from non-residents. The school was early influenced by the Putnam School of Newburyport, no longer existing.

The Norwich Free Academy has served a useful purpose and continues its successful career as a coeducational school with an attendance of over six hundred from Norwich and adjoining towns. To Robert Porter Keep, Yale '65, who was principal from 1885 until he resigned in 1903 to take charge of his aunt's, Sarah Porter's, school at Farmington, the school owes hardly less than to its founders. Harry A. Tirrell has been principal since 1904.

NEW YORK

Friends Seminary, 226 E. 16th St., New York City, has been maintained since 1860 as a day school for boys and girls from kindergarten through high school. Edward B. Rawson of Johns Hopkins, who has been connected with the school for twenty-six years, and Miss Alice S. Palmer, are the principals.

Ethical Culture School, Central Park West & 63d St., New York

City, a day school, was established in 1878 by Felix Adler, who had established the New York Society for Ethical Culture two years before. The aim of the school is a social, an ethical one, yet it is democratic, comprising among its pupils the children of the rich, the middle classes, and the poor. The school provides instruction from kindergarten through college preparation, and has branched out in new activities and now maintains departments in art, science, and shop work. In 1912 an open-air department was inaugurated where the children study and recite in the open air the year round. There are in attendance upward of seven hundred and fifty.

Miss Chaires Out-door School of Natural Education, 115 West 79th St., New York City, is an out-of-door play school for young children with kindergarten, primary, French, German, and art classes. Folk and esthetic dancing, painting, and drawing are made much of.

Adelphi Academy, Lafayette Ave. & St. James Pl., Brooklyn, founded in 1863, passed to the control of a corporation in 1869 and since that time has provided sound instruction in elementary and secondary school studies in preparation for college or business to the children of the residents of Brooklyn. It is a city day school with six hundred and seventy-five students in attendance, two thirds of whom are in the elementary department. Eugene C. Alder, a graduate of Kansas and Harvard, is the principal.

Friends School, 112 Schermerhorn St., Brooklyn, is a day school for boys and girls with a large elementary department. The school has been conducted by the Society of Friends under a board of trustees for half a century. John L. Carver, B.L., A.M., Ph.D., is the principal. The little children and some of the older classes recite on the roof in the open air.

Friends Academy, Locust Valley, L.I., was established and incorporated in 1876 by Gideon Frost. It is a prosperous boarding and day school with an enrollment of about one hundred from nearby towns. Intermediate and college preparatory work are taken up under the principalship of Nelson A. Jackson.

The Staten Island Academy, New Brighton, established in 1884, is a large day school which offers an advanced progressive school program under the most capable auspices to over two hundred boys and girls from the kindergarten grades upward. It is maintained by a corporation for the good of the community. Frank R. Page, Harvard, is the head master and his faculty are college or professionally trained. The educational value of the Boy Scout movement is recognized and utilized, and there is also a group of Camp Fire Girls. The enrollment of two hundred and fifty is chiefly in the elementary departments, but over one hundred boys and girls have entered the leading colleges.

Hartwick Seminary in the town of the same name in central New York, both named for their founder, was opened in 1797. As provided by the charter its principal, J. G. Traver, is a Lutheran clergyman and a course in Lutheran Theology is given.

The Cazenovia Seminary, Cazenovia, in the lake region of central New York, was founded as early as 1824, and is the oldest continuously existing Methodist Conference seminary. In its long history it has done much for education in New York State. In the ninety-one years of its existence it has had more than fifteen thousand students many of whom have since become prominent. It is a prosperous, endowed boarding and day school offering a wide range of courses. It is attended by nearly two hundred students. Rev. Charles Drake Skinner, D.D., has been the president since 1908.

The Oakwood Seminary was founded in 1796 as the Friends' Academy at Nine Partners, and was subsequently removed to Union Springs on Cayuga Lake, where it was incorporated in 1860, receiving its present name in 1876. It is an endowed college preparatory school accommodating over eighty boys and girls, one third of whom are day pupils. Eliezer Partington, A.B., Earlham Coll., became the principal in 1914.

The Cook Academy, Montour Falls, is an endowed boarding and day school, founded in 1872 by Colonel Elbert W. Cook and endowed by Baptists. Emil Hanke, A.B., Colgate, has been the principal for the last five years.

Palmer Institute-Starkey Seminary, Lakemont, was founded in 1839, on Lake Seneca. About twenty-five years ago the name was changed because of the benefactions and endowment of the Hon. Francis A. Palmer. It is a boarding and day school with elementary and high school departments. Martyn Summerbell, A.B., N.Y. City Coll.; LL.D., Elon, has been the president since 1898.

Genesee Wesleyan Academy, Lima, eighteen miles south of Rochester, was established by the Genesee Conference in 1832. It enrolls over two hundred boarding and day students, nearly all from New York State. A variety of courses is offered both in the elementary and high school work, but college preparation is emphasized. The Rev. Earl D. Shepard is the president.

NEW JERSEY

Hoboken Academy, Hoboken, is a day school founded in 1860 by the German-speaking residents of Hoboken, that their children might attend a school based upon German ideals of thoroughness and receive instruction in that language. William C. Raymond, Pd.M., N.Y. Univ., is the principal.

Hasbrouck Institute, Jersey City, is a college preparatory school founded in 1856. It offers high school and elementary courses to two hundred boys and girls. Charles C. Stimets, Oswego Normal College and Rutgers, has been the principal since 1876.

The Spining School, South Orange, a day school for boys and girls, has been maintained for sixteen years by Miss Harriet M. Spining, A.M., Columbia, with the assistance of able men and women teachers.

Short Hills School, Short Hills, has been maintained by Henry F. Twitchell as a day school, meeting local requirements for boys and girls from elementary through high school.

PENNSYLVANIA

Friends' Select School, 140 N. Sixteenth St., Philadelphia, is a descendant of the earliest school established by the Friends in 1689 and is still under their direct management. The two schools for boys and girls, which had been separate since 1832, were united in 1886. It is a day school emphasizing college preparatory work with a large elementary department. The school has an unusually well equipped playground and excellent provision for manual training and domestic science. There is definite religious instruction. Walter W. Haviland, A.B., Haverford, is the principal.

Friends' Central School, 15th & Race Sts., Philadelphia, founded 1845, counts among its pupils many grandchildren of earlier ones. It is a large day school providing instruction from elementary through high school. Dr. John W. Carr, A.M., Ph.D., engaged in educational work since 1885, this year succeeded W. Elmer Barrett as principal.

Germantown Friends School, the largest of the Orthodox Friends schools in and about Philadelphia, was established in 1845 for their children exclusively, but since 1885 all denominations have been admitted. In 1849 oversight of the meeting was discontinued and the school was conducted as a private enterprise for nine years when the Friends again assumed control. It is a successful day preparatory school accommodating four hundred and fifty girls and boys and is so popular as to have a waiting list. Stanley R. Yarnall is the principal.

Westtown Boarding School, Westtown, is a day school under the patronage of the Society of Friends and only members of that order are admitted. The school was founded in 1799 and since that time eleven thousand boys and girls have been educated there. William F. Wickersham is the principal.

George School, Bucks County, twenty-five miles northeast of Philadelphia, is a Friends boarding school established in 1893 in accordance with the will of John M. George, providing for the education of the children of Friends, however poor. It is a large and growing school enrolling two hundred and fifty students of high school grade, drawn from all over the eastern states, eighty per cent of whom are from Quaker families. A dozen or more students enter college yearly. There are over three hundred and fifty alumni and four times that number of former non-graduate students. George A. Walton, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, has been the principal since 1912.

The Easton Academy, Easton, has for a generation and more provided instruction from primary to college preparation, and has an attendance of about one hundred and fifty local students. The school is the successor of earlier schools of the town extending back to the eighteenth century. It has been under its present name and organization for thirty-two years. Samuel R. Park became principal in 1887 and in 1893 sole proprietor. Of the two hundred and fifty graduates of the school many have entered the leading colleges.

Perkiomen Seminary, Pennsburg, is a prosperous coeducational school reorganized in 1892 under the patronage of the Schwenkfelder Church, with Rev. Oscar S. Kriebel, A.M., B.D., Oberlin; D.D., Franklin and Marshall, as the principal. Since then it has steadily grown and now draws three hundred students from Pennsylvania and adjacent states. Among its nine hundred alumni, six hundred and seventy-five have entered higher institutions of learning, including the leading colleges and universities of the country. The school does commendable work in helping young people of limited means to an education.

Keystone Academy, fifteen miles from Scranton, established in 1868, is an endowed institution providing a variety of courses. It advertises itself as a school for young men but had a recent enrollment of forty "Ladies" and seventy-nine "Gentlemen," largely local. It offers dormitory accommodation for boys only.

Wyoming Seminary, near Wilkesbarre in the Wyoming Valley, was founded in 1844. It is a prosperous example of the old-time academy, providing liberally for the education of the sons and daughters of the region round about. There are over five hundred students annually in attendance, one half of whom take the academic courses. Dr. Levi L. Sprague, an alumnus of the institution, has been connected with the school since 1868 and has been the president since 1882.

The New Bloomfield Academy, in the Blue Ridge region of Pennsylvania, has for seventy-eight years been a coeducational preparatory school with boarding and day departments accommodating one hundred and fifty students, chiefly from the surrounding country. Added endowment recently received has made possible improved equipment. The school is conducted by Donald C. Willard, A.B., Univ. of Penn., the principal, and the Rev. Joseph S. Roddy, the director. The school specializes in a junior department for pupils under twelve.

Williamsport Dickinson Seminary, founded in 1848 by the Methodists, is attended by over three hundred students from Williamsport and nearby towns of central Pennsylvania. The generous gifts of friends enable the school to offer a variety of courses at low cost. The Rev. B. C. Conner, a graduate of the Seminary and of Wesleyan, has been the president since 1912, and had previously had wide experience in teaching and in the ministry.

Schuylkill Seminary, Reading, is attended by one hundred and fifty students, mostly day pupils from nearby towns. It was established at Reading by an Evangelical Association in 1881 but from 1886 to 1902 was located at Fredericksburg. Since 1902 it has been located at Reading. The school offers preparation for college and theological or other professional schools. Rev. Warren F. Teel, Ph.B., Northwestern College; A.M., Univ. of Penn.; D.D., Franklin and Marshall, has been the principal since 1901.

York Collegiate Institute, York, founded and endowed in 1873 by the late Samuel Small, is a day school with a small boarding department. College preparation is emphasized but a finishing course is also offered to the girls. During its history over fifteen hundred students have attended the school and there is an annual enrollment of one hundred coming from nearby towns. At present forty graduates are enrolled in the leading colleges and professional schools. The Rev. E. T. Jeffers has been the principal since 1893.

The School of Childhood of the University of Pittsburgh is for children from four to seven years of age, embodying in practice the best present-day scientific theories in regard to education. The school had its origins in the School of Play organized by the Pittsburgh Playground Association, taken over by the University in 1912. It is one of a number of schools honestly endeavoring to do pioneer educational work. There is no charge for tuition.

DELAWARE

Friends School, Fourth and West Sts., Wilmington, is an endowed day school established in 1748. Instruction is given from primary through college preparation. Herschel A. Norris, A.M., Princeton, is principal.

MARYLAND

Friends School, Park Place, Baltimore, established in 1899, is a cooperative day school providing the children of its patrons with the best educational facilities from kindergarten to college at actual cost. Edward C. Wilson, B.S., Swarthmore '91, is principal.

Blue Ridge College Academy, New Windsor, now in its seventeenth year, offers a four-year college preparatory course to seventy-five boys and girls from the region round about. The school is under the control of the Church of the Brethren.

Sidwells' Friends School, 1811 I St., N.W., is a large and prosperous day school established in 1883 by Mr. Thomas W. Sidwell, Univ. of Penn., and Mrs. Frances Haldeman-Sidwell, Vassar. It has justly earned a reputation for sound training and has prepared students for the leading eastern colleges. About two hundred and forty are in attendance. The school offers instruction from primary to college.

VIRGINIA

Shenandoah Collegiate Institute, Dayton, in the middle of the Shenandoah Valley, was organized in 1875 and has since changed its name several times. It is an old-time institution, which, by its varied courses, attracts nearly six hundred students, half of whom are enrolled in the music department.

FLORIDA

The Academy of Rollins College, Winter Park, established thirty-one years ago, offers a four-year course in preparation for the college. There are about eighty pupils chiefly from Florida, but a considerable number come from the North, attracted by the mild climate.

KENTUCKY

Cumberland College, Williamsburg, formerly Williamsburg Institute, is a Baptist 'junior college,' dating from 1888. It offers courses of academic and college grade, including domestic science, manual training, agriculture, music, and art. E. E. Wood, A.M., is president.

TENNESSEE

Price-Webb School, Lewisburg, fifty miles south of Nashville, was formerly Haynes-McLean School. E. T. Price, the principal, is a graduate of the Webb School and Vanderbilt University, and with the assistance of W. R. Webb, of Bell Buckle, in an advisory capacity, in 1912 reorganized this old school on the lines which have made the Webb School so successful. It is a day school.

Carson and Newman College, Jefferson City, dates from 1851. The four-year college preparatory course is taken by boys and girls, from the region round about. J. M. Burnett is president.

ALABAMA

Mrs. Johnson's Private School for Little Children, Fairhope, has become famous among advanced educators as the School of Organic Education. Children from the kindergarten to high school age learn here in a natural way through supplying their own needs and finding their own expression. They are not 'taught,' repressed, depressed, or suppressed. Text-books are used as little as possible. There is no tuition charge, the work being supported by voluntary subscriptions. There is however boarding accommodation for some resident pupils. Mrs. Marietta L. Johnson is the principal. A summer session, chiefly for teachers, is held at Greenwich, Conn. A fuller account of the school is given in Dewey's "Schools of Tomorrow."

LOUISIANA

Isidore Newman Manual Training School, New Orleans, was established in 1903, and through the munificence of the donor, whose name it bears, it is a non-sectarian day school with kindergarten, elementary, and high school grades, emphasizing manual training of all sorts, throughout the courses. The school teaching staff consists of twenty-four college-trained men and women, and prepares for the leading colleges in the country.

TEXAS

San Marcos Baptist Academy, thirty miles from Austin, opened in 1906, offers a seven-year course preparatory to the Texas colleges and makes a special feature of its musical department. There are in attendance over two hundred and fifty pupils, the majority of whom are boys, coming almost wholly from the state. T. G. Harris, head of the faculty since 1911, had previously had a long experience in Texas secondary schools.

OHIO

Wooster Academy, Wooster, is the preparatory department of the College of Wooster, a Presbyterian institution. John H. Dickason, A.M., is the present principal.

University School, Blair Ave., Avondale, Cincinnati, was organized and incorporated in 1903 by interested parents, and is administered by a board of trustees of business and professional men. It is a democratic school having departments from kindergarten through high school. Each of the first eight grades is in charge of an individual teacher. William E. Stilwell, A.B., A.M., Harvard, has been head master of the school since its inception. The faculty of eighteen men and women teachers have all had thorough training and experience in teaching.

MICHIGAN

Waverley Home and Day School, 79 Rosedale Ct., Detroit, is a small school established in 1913 by George L. Bixby, S.B. and S.M., M.I.T., for the children of Christian Scientists.

Spring Arbor Seminary, eight miles south of Jackson, is a religious school established in 1873 and maintained by the Free Methodists. H. S. Stewart is the principal.

Calvin College, Grand Rapids, an institution of Christian Reformed Church established in 1876, maintains a preparatory school attended by boys and girls of Dutch parentage, from the surrounding towns.

Ferris Institute, Big Rapids, is the largest private school in the state giving a variety of courses. There are two departments:

the preparatory having a registration of about six hundred and fifty and the elementary about seven hundred. The principal of the school is Woodbridge N. Ferris, who was elected governor of Michigan in 1912.

ILLINOIS

The Francis W. Parker School, 330 Webster Ave., Chicago, aims to carry out the principles first propounded by the well-known educator, Francis W. Parker. Interest is stimulated by adapting the studies to the pupil's own experience. The range of the school is wide—from kindergarten through grammar grades and high school. Miss Flora J. Cook, long a co-worker with Colonel Parker, has been the principal since 1900 and is assisted by a strong staff of grade and special teachers.

The University High School, 58th & Monroe Sts., Chicago, was formed in 1903 by the union of the Chicago Manual Training School, which had been running twenty years, and the South Side Academy, founded ten years previously. The two institutions were brought in 1903 to the grounds of the University of Chicago to unite and form a part of the School of Education. The High School serves as a laboratory for the University in the solution of educational problems. Franklin W. Johnson, A.B., Colby '91, the principal, is assisted by a faculty of about forty, all of whom are experienced instructors.

Evanston Academy, Evanston, is a large college preparatory school established in 1860 by the trustees of Northwestern University on its campus. About half the students are in residence and there are separate dormitories. Practically all the graduates enter leading colleges. Edward W. Marcellus, Northwestern University, became principal in 1915.

Elgin Academy, Elgin, since 1903 controlled by Northwestern University, is an endowed school annually enrolling one hundred local students above the grammar grades. Horace M. Buckley, A.B., Northwestern Univ.; A.M., Columbia Univ.; B.D., Chicago Univ., has been principal since 1913.

Grand Prairie Seminary, Onarga, chartered in 1863, is an endowed school which, until 1880, granted degrees. Instruction has since been limited to high school subjects. Hubert Phillips has been president since August, 1914. The one hundred girls and boys come largely from Illinois.

Whipple Academy, Jacksonville, the Preparatory Department of Illinois College, through the generous endowment of Dr. Samuel L. Whipple, began its career in 1869 as a boys' school. In 1903 it became coeducational. The life of the academy centers in Whipple Hall but the equipment and the faculty of the college are available. Charles H. Rammelkamp, Ph.B., Ph.D., is the president.

The Shurtleff Academy, Alton, has existed since 1827 as the preparatory department of Shurtleff College, the oldest educational institution in the Mississippi Valley. George M. Potter has been the president for about four years.

WISCONSIN

German-English Academy, 558 Broadway, Milwaukee, founded in 1851 by prominent Milwaukee Germans under the leadership of Peter Engelmann, claims to be the sole heir of German-American culture in Milwaukee. It is a school of German thoroughness, offering complete instruction from kindergarten to college. The patronage is wholly local. Under the same management there is a Normal School for Teachers which draws from all over the north central states. Max Griebisch is the director.

Evansville Seminary and Junior College, Evansville, founded in 1855 by Methodists, now under the control of the Free Methodists, annually enrolls two hundred, one fourth of whom come from outside the state, and offers junior college courses. Richard R. Blews, Ph.D., Cornell Univ., is the president.

Wayland Academy, Beaver Dam, is an endowed Baptist school for boys and girls, founded in 1855. The curriculum offers high school work, some junior college work, and music courses. The attendance is from the north central states. Edwin P. Brown, A.B., Univ. of Chicago '96, principal since 1901, is a man of keen business sense, zealous for the reputation of the school.

MINNESOTA

Pillsbury Academy, Owatonna, seventy miles south of St. Paul and Minneapolis, is a boarding school established as Minnesota Academy in 1877 by the Baptist State Convention. In 1886 the name of the academy was changed because of the gifts of the great flour merchant, George A. Pillsbury. Military drill is prescribed in the five grades. There are separate dormitories for the boys and girls. About thirty graduate each year. Milo B. Price, Ph.D., Leipzig Univ., who had previously been an instructor in other leading preparatory schools, has been principal since 1904.

IOWA

Jewell Lutheran College, Jewell, established in 1893 by the Evangelical Lutheran Church, is a preparatory school with a four-year academic course as well as commercial and music courses. About fifteen graduate annually. The students are largely Scandinavians and come from surrounding states. The Rev. K. O. Eittreim is the president.

MISSOURI

The Principia, Principia Park, St. Louis, is exclusively for the children of Christian Scientists and enrolls about two hundred and fifty pupils, one half of whom are in residence. It is a preparatory day and boarding school established in 1898 by Mrs. Mary Kimball Morgan, who is the acting principal. The school offers instruction from kindergarten through a six-year preparatory course, with commercial, domestic science, and manual training courses as well. Military training for the boys and physical training for both boys and girls are given prominence.

The University Schools, Columbia, comprise an elementary school and a high school under the administration of the department of education of the University of Missouri. Dr. J. L. Meriam, professor of School Supervision in the University, is superintendent. The first is primarily an observational school where the best modern theories of natural education are being tested out. The high school is a practice school. Both are used as laboratories in the study of educational methods.

KANSAS

Southwestern Academy, Winfield, the preparatory department of Southwestern College, was established in 1885 and is controlled by the Methodist Episcopal Church. There is an annual attendance of about seventy and the alumni number about three hundred. Arthur L. Stickel, A.B., Ill. Wes. Univ. '81, A.M. '00, who has had long educational experience, has been the principal since 1911.

Washburn Academy, Topeka, a Congregationalist school, is the preparatory department of Washburn College, which was established in 1865. Over one hundred are enrolled, mainly local. Wilson C. Wheeler is principal.

Ottawa University Academy, Ottawa, conducted by Baptists since its establishment in 1885, offers a four-year college preparatory and a four-year commercial course. Miss Lulu M. Brown, A.M., is principal of the academy.

WASHINGTON

Seattle Seminary and College, Seattle, is a Free Methodist institution with a four-year academic course. There are over two hundred in attendance, divided about equally between boys and girls, who come chiefly from Seattle and the Northwest in general. Alexander Beers is president.

OREGON

Music-Education School, Portland, now three years old, is for the teaching of all subjects "upon the principles applied in the music education of the child." It is under the direction of Calvin Brainerd Cady, Teachers College, Columbia. The principal is Miss Elizabeth Hoar Cady. Its purpose is to demonstrate that "there are aims to be attained and means for accomplishing those ends that lie at least somewhat beyond the conceptions that obtain in the larger part of our public and private school work." The course covers the usual subjects of instruction in a novel and interesting way.

Portland Academy, 13th and Montgomery Sts., Portland, organized in 1889, is an endowed boarding school. A four-year academic course is supplemented by a Lower School which covers a seven-year grammar school course. There are over three hundred in attendance, chiefly from Portland, and about thirty enter college annually. James F. Ewing is the principal.

CALIFORNIA

The Polytechnic Elementary School, Pasadena, is a large day school, a reorganization in 1907 under a board of trustees of the Grammar School Department of Throop Polytechnic Institute. Miss Grace Henley, the principal, is a progressive educator who makes full use of the educational value of manual arts,—industrial arts, wood work, cooking, and sewing, in all grades.

Washburn School, San José, is a small day school maintained by Arthur and Jessica T. Washburn from 1894 until recently. Its courses especially prepare for admission to Leland Stanford University. Miss Mary E. Meyrick is principal.

SCHOOLS AND CONSERVATORIES OF MUSIC

New England Conservatory of Music, Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass., established in 1853 by Dr. Eben Tourjee, is not only the oldest institution of its kind in the country but the largest and best equipped. It has always offered the best of facilities in all branches of musical instruction. Since removing to its new building it offers advantages perhaps unrivaled elsewhere. Facilities for every kind of concert and orchestral performance are provided by class-room instruction supplemented by frequent concerts and recitals. The Conservatory Orchestra gives especially useful training to instrumentalists. The School of Grand Opera offers a practical as well as theoretical training. The school has no endowment, aside from provision for a few scholarships. The debt incurred for the new building has been somewhat reduced by gift. The charter of the school prohibits it from being conducted for profit and the present surplus is being applied to reduce the indebtedness. George W. Chadwick, the director, is an orchestral composer and conductor of international reputation. Last year over twenty-seven hundred students were in attendance from all parts of the country. Ralph L. Flanders is the general manager. See p. 505.

Faelten Pianoforte School, 30 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass., was established in 1897 by Carl Faelten who has been connected as instructor and director with various prominent musical institutions since his arrival in this country in 1882. He is a concert pianist, and the originator of the Faelten System of fundamental training now widely adopted in music schools.

The Fox-Buonamici School of Pianoforte Playing, 581 Boylston St., Boston, was established in 1908 by Felix Fox and Carlo Buonamici, who are now assisted by graduates of the school. Mr. Fox is a concert pianist and a leading exponent of the teaching of Isidor Philip; Mr. Buonamici, the son of a noted Italian pianist.

The New Haven School of Music, Merchants' National Bank Building, New Haven, Conn., established in 1911, offers instruction in voice, violin, piano, and the theory and history of music. The school is an incorporated mutual association of music teachers for the purpose of increasing their teaching efficiency.

New York College of Music, 128 E. 58th St., New York City, founded in 1878, is an incorporated institution of high standing. The directors are Carl Hein and August Fraemcke. The faculty is especially strong in the piano, vocal, violin, and theory departments. A training course is offered for teachers of public school music.

The American Institute of Applied Music, 212 W. 59th St., New York City, was incorporated in 1900 by the board of regents of the University of the State of New York for the purpose of amalgamating the several educational interests of the Metropolitan College of Music (1891), the Metropolitan Conservatory of Music (1886), the Synthetic Piano School (1887), and the American Institute of Normal Methods. The institute has a strong faculty and offers practical and theoretical courses leading to the degrees of Bachelor and Doctor of Music.

The Institute of Musical Art of New York, 120 Claremont Ave., New York City, was established in 1905 by Frank Damrosch, who was fortunate in securing an endowment of half a million dollars from Mr. James Loeb. The equipment now represents as much more. Advanced students of piano, violin, 'cello, etc., rehearse their concertos with a Students' Symphony Orchestra of seventy performers. Those studying Grand Opera receive not only thorough training but practical experience. Franz Kneisel, of the celebrated Kneisel Quartet, is at the head of the department of stringed instruments, and Percy Goetschius, whose works on harmony and counterpoint are of international celebrity and use, is at the head of the department of theory. See p. 537.

The Elinor Comstock School of Music, 41 E. 80th St., New York City, was opened in 1914. Miss Comstock, a pupil of Leschetizky, has for sixteen years been a teacher of music in New York. The members of her school have opportunities for carrying on academic as well as musical study. See p. 530.

The von Ende School of Music, 44 W. 85th St., New York City, founded in 1910 and directed by Herwegh von Ende, has a distinguished faculty, including such names as Sigismond Stojowski, Anton Vitek, Adrienne Remenyi, Albert Ross Parsons, and Hans van den Burg. The school is chartered by the board of regents of the University of the State of New York. A dormitory for young ladies is maintained one block from the school.

New York School of Music and Arts, Central Park West, cor. 95th St., New York, offers courses in all branches of music and the arts from primary to finishing, under the direction of Ralfe Leech Sterner, well known as a writer and teacher on vocal subjects, assisted by an eminent faculty of American teachers. The school was established in 1901. There are special courses for teachers, and a dormitory for the boarding students.

Crane Normal Institute of Music, Potsdam, N.Y., grew out of the work which was begun by Miss Julia Crane in 1884 in the Potsdam State Normal School and which she still continues there. As the state made no provision for the fuller training which Miss Crane deemed essential she has, while continuing her duties in the State Normal, built up this private institution the work of which supplements the work of the state school and yet is entirely supported by its tuition.

The Ithaca Conservatory of Music, Ithaca, N.Y., organized in 1892 and incorporated in 1897, offers preparatory and intermediate work and a four-year academic course. The students' concert companies give an opportunity for practical experience through touring in the East. Two thirds of the students are non-resident. The school occupies four large buildings in the center of the city.

Syracuse University, Syracuse, N.Y., maintains a large Department of Music in the College of Fine Arts under G. A. Parker, dean.

Philadelphia Musical Academy, 1617 Spruce St., Philadelphia, Pa., was founded in 1870. Richard Zeckwer, a graduate of Leipzig Conservatory, has been director since 1876, and sole owner since 1880. Instruction is given in all branches of practical and theoretical music by the class system.

Combs Broad Street Conservatory of Music, 1327 S. Broad St., Philadelphia, Pa., was established by Gilbert R. Combs in 1885. It has moved several times to more commodious quarters as its clientele has grown. The institution offers musical instruction of every kind, and has reciprocal relations with the University of Pennsylvania. In 1900 a dormitory was added to the equipment.

Peabody Conservatory of Music of Baltimore, Charles St. & Mount Vernon Pl., Baltimore, Md., is a portion of the great foundation established in 1868 by George Peabody, the leading philanthropist of the day, and is the oldest endowed institution of its kind. It occupies a part of the Peabody Institute Building, in which are also the Gallery of Art, the Public Library, and three concert halls. There is a Conservatory Annex of two buildings nearby. Harold Randolph has been director since 1898. A special course is given for students wishing to teach music in the public schools. There are no entrance requirements, students being placed in the grades for which they are best fitted.

Birmingham Conservatory of Music, 1818 2d Ave., Birmingham, Ala., was opened in 1895 by Benjamin Guckenberger, and is now ably conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Gussen. The Fletcher method for children is in use.

Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, Highland Ave. & Oak St., Cincinnati, Ohio, was founded in 1867 by Clara Baur, aunt of the present directress. Instruction is given in elocution, physical culture, and languages, besides practical and theoretical music. A dormitory was recently added to the main building. Pupils are received from the age of six years upward.

The College of Music of Cincinnati, Elm St., Cincinnati, Ohio, was founded and endowed in 1878 by Reuben R. Springer, Theodore Thomas having been the first musical director. It offers instruction in elocution and languages, aside from vocal and instrumental music, and maintains a teachers' training department. The theory department is strong. About fifty students graduate each year.

Dana's Musical Institute and College of Music, Warren, Ohio, founded in 1869 by William H. Dana, was chartered in 1911 with power to confer degrees. Practical and theoretical music are taught in daily lessons, the history and theory of music being required. Dormitories are provided for both men and women.

Oberlin College Conservatory of Music, Oberlin, Ohio, has long occupied a leading position among the music schools of the Middle West. It was organized in 1865, being fostered by the interest in sacred music and by the Puritan traditions of the early New Englanders who settled Ohio. Charles Walthall Morrison, the director, is assisted by a strong faculty. The students have the opportunities for library and gymnasium work and the lecture privileges of the connection with Oberlin College. Courses are offered in all branches of vocal and instrumental music and theory, and may be combined with other college courses. Students may live in the dormitories.

The Toledo Conservatory of Music, Inc., Toledo, Ohio, established in 1900, caters to a large patronage from northwest Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana. Instruction is given in all branches of music, with emphasis on normal training for teachers. Bradford Mills has been the director since 1900.

The University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich., gives thorough instruction in piano, voice, violin, violoncello, organ, and brass instruments, public school methods, and the theory of music. Established in 1880 the school has since 1888 been in charge of Albert Augustus Stanley, A.M., composer and one of the founders of the American Guild of Organists. It is affiliated with the University of Michigan. The school maintains a choral union of three hundred, an orchestra of fifty; and gives a hundred concerts annually.

Detroit Conservatory of Music, 1013 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich., which was established in 1874 by J. H. Hahn, is now under the direction of Francis L. York, A.M., Michigan, a pupil of Guilbant. Besides offering courses in all branches of music the school has established a complete academic department and there are courses in school drawing, kindergarten methods, and folk-dancing. The faculty consists of about one hundred experienced teachers. Dormitory accommodation is provided.

Detroit Institute of Musical Art, 67-69 Davenport St., Detroit, Mich., in its second year, is conducted by Guy Bevier Williams. The school maintains five branch schools and is affiliated with the Thomas Normal Training School. There are dormitory advantages.

Chicago Musical College, 624 S. Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., was established in 1867 by Dr. Florenz Ziegfeld, four years after his coming to America from Germany. The growth of the school has kept pace with the development of the city and it is now one of the permanent educational institutions of Chicago, with the backing of its best citizens. It occupies commodious quarters in the Lake Park Building, in which there is a large and attractive concert hall. All branches of musical instruction are offered though stress is laid on work for the piano and the voice. Free and partial scholarships are available. Over two thousand students, chiefly from the Middle West, are enrolled in the regular courses, the summer normal course, and the evening classes.

American Conservatory of Music, 304 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., is the creation of John J. Hattstaedt, who established it in 1886. Instruction is provided for students in all grades of advancement and the curriculum is modern and very comprehensive, including all branches of instrumental and vocal music, theory and composition, dramatic art, physical culture, and modern languages. Many prominent names are included among the eighty members of the faculty. About two thousand students are enrolled from over thirty different states. See p. 540.

Columbia School of Music, 509 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill., established in 1901 by Miss Estelle Phelan and Miss Clare Osborne

Reed, its present director, specializes in normal training for piano and vocal teachers, and public school music and methods. A course is offered in the Dalcroze method of eurythmics.

The Mary Wood Chase School of Musical Arts, 410 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., organized in 1907 as a school of the piano, was incorporated in 1912 and many other departments were added. A special feature is made of courses for professional musicians and a school of speech arts has recently been opened.

The Technical Normal School of Chicago, 3207 Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, Ill., was opened in 1911 to prepare students to teach art, music, domestic science, and physical education in public and private schools. The training aims to correlate the academic, technical, and professional or pedagogical aspects of the subjects taught. The staff includes graduates of many of the leading universities. Two dwelling-houses within a block of the school are used as dormitories for students from a distance.

The Sherwood Music School, 410 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., established by William H. Sherwood, was incorporated in 1910 and is now in charge of Miss Georgia Kober, a pupil of Mr. Sherwood. Instruction is given in all branches of music, as well as dramatic art, with emphasis on the normal course for teachers, who are given opportunity for observation and practice, and on public school music. A dormitory is provided.

Centralizing School of Music, 20 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill., founded in 1907 by Miss Gertrude Radle-Paradis, maintains a number of branch studios in and around Chicago and conducts courses in pianoforte, lyric diction, singing, violin, public school music, etc., as well as a normal department and a model training school for prospective teachers. The Centralizing School of Acting is under the able directorship of Edward Dvorak.

The Cosmopolitan School of Music and Dramatic Art, Auditorium Building, Chicago, Ill., is an incorporated institution of which Mrs. Willard S. Bracken is president. A strong feature of its work is the academic course of three years, including theory and history of music. A course is also offered in dramatic art.

Bush Conservatory, 800 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill., was established by William L. Bush in Bush Temple, which was a memorial to his father. Other buildings have been added, including a dormitory for women. The School of Opera has recently been organized under Signor Parelli, conductor of the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Two thirds of the students come from outside Illinois.

The School of Music of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., organized in 1891, is a professional music school which bears the same relation to the university as the professional school of law or medicine, and has degree-conferring powers. Peter Christian Lutkin has been dean of the school since its foundation. The school has an interchange of work with the College of Liberal Arts and other departments of the university.

Knox Conservatory of Music, Galesburg, Ill., is a department of Knox College, established in 1883. William Frederick Bentley has been in charge of the music department since the third year of its establishment and to him is due its growth and development.

He is also a well-known conductor of music festivals through the Middle West. Dormitory accommodation is provided for girls.

Lawrence Conservatory of Music, Appleton, Wis., is a department of Lawrence College. Particular attention is given to preparation of teachers for music work in the public schools. Peabody Hall, erected in 1909, is the gift of the late George Peabody. The school has its own dormitories for women and the men may live in one of the halls of the college. Frederick Vance Evans is the dean.

The Northwestern Conservatory of Music, Art, and Expression, 806 Nicollet Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., founded in 1885, is now under the direction of Olive Adele Evers. Courses are offered in practical and theoretical music, art, expression, and various special branches, while younger students may avail themselves of class work equivalent to regulation high and grammar school courses, through Miss Evers' interest in Stanley Hall, a girls' school. There is a summer school course, and evening classes during the winter.

Minneapolis School of Music, Oratory, and Dramatic Art, 42 Eighth St., S., Minneapolis, Minn., organized and incorporated in 1907, offers instruction in all branches of music, dramatic art, and languages. Theory is required of all graduates. William H. Pontius has been the director since the school's incorporation.

Drake University, Conservatory of Music, Des Moines, Ia., offers instruction in vocal and instrumental music as well as the theory and history of music, with special work for teachers. The patronage is mostly from the western states and Canada. Holmes Cowper is dean.

The University School of Music, Lincoln, Neb., owned and conducted by Willard Kimball since 1894, was until 1911 affiliated with the University of Nebraska. Mr. Kimball, Oberlin '73, is a well-known conductor in this section of the country.

College of the Pacific, Conservatory of Music, San Jose, Cal., is in charge of Warren D. Allen. All branches of instrumental and vocal study are taught with the object of fitting for the teaching profession or concert appearance. A course in public school music is offered. Students may also pursue courses in College Park Academy and in the College of Liberal Arts.

University of Southern California, College of Music, 400 Mason Opera House, Los Angeles, Cal., opened thirty years ago, gives instruction in all branches of music. W. F. Skeele is dean.

SCHOOLS OF ART

Commonwealth Art Colony, Boothbay Harbor, Me., established in 1904, is a summer school for serious study. The staff gives instruction in illustration; painting, from landscape or model; design; arts and crafts; and music. The Colony offers an outdoor life and many social attractions, and the country round about supplies picturesque subjects for painting and sketching or photography. Asa G. Randall, B.S., of Providence is the director. Many of the students are accompanied by friends who take no courses.

School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass., founded in 1876, gives instruction to those who wish to become painters, sculptors, and designers. The curriculum is elaborate and carefully devised for the ends desired. Pupils must be over sixteen years of age. Nineteen scholarships are offered. The staff of instructors includes Frank W. Benson, Bela Pratt, Philip L. Hale, and William James. Among its graduates are many well-known artists.

School of Fine Arts, Crafts, and Decorative Design, 126 Massachusetts Ave., Boston, was established in 1914 by C. Howard Walker, architect, art lecturer, and editor, and Miss Katherine B. Child. It offers a four-year course in decorative art, interior decorating, metal work, and pottery. Practical training is given in an art shop connected with the school. The trip to New York in the spring teaches the students to study a museum quickly and well.

Fenway School of Illustration, Fenway Studios, Boston, is a training school for illustrators maintained by Chase Emerson, Harold Brett, and Arthur P. Spear, painters and illustrators. Susan E. Phillips is director. The school equips the student with practical knowledge for the various fields of illustrative art.

Boston School of Painting, 64 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, in its tenth year, is conducted by Arthur M. Hazard, the well-known portrait painter and mural decorator, and several assistants, who emphasize the practical side of art in illustration and commercial drawing, portrait painting and mural decoration, practical design, ceramics and china decoration. The school is small and allows much chance for individual attention. See p. 508.

New School of Design and Illustration, 248 Boylston St., Boston, established in 1911, gives instruction in a great variety of subjects and has an annual attendance of about two hundred. The directors are Douglas J. Connah and Vesper L. George.

School of the Worcester Art Museum, 24 Highland St., Worcester, Mass., is now in its seventeenth year. Since 1907 it has occupied the former residence of Mr. Salisbury, founder of the school and museum. Since 1909 H. Stuart Michie has been director. Special facilities are offered in design and the crafts.

Lowthorpe School of Landscape Architecture for Women, Groton, Mass., established in 1901, is in charge of Miss Georgiana J. Sanders, and offers a two-year course.

Rhode Island School of Design, 11 Waterman St., Providence, R.I., was founded and incorporated in 1877. L. Earle Rowe is the director. Instruction is offered in the following departments: freehand drawing and painting, decorative design, sculpture, architecture, mechanical design, textile design, jewelry and silversmithing, normal art. The state makes an annual appropriation for scholarships. The school has its own museum.

School of the Art Society of Hartford, 28 Prospect St., Hartford, Conn., has been maintained and managed by a board of prominent Hartford women since 1877. It has in the past numbered among its instructors such pre-eminent artists as William Chase and Dwight W. Tryon. The present instructors include Philip L. Hale and Robert F. Logan, and Grace Olmstead Clarke. Drawing, painting, costume, illustration, and design are taught.

Yale School of Fine Arts, New Haven, Conn., is an independent department of the university, founded in 1864 by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Russell Street, at whose expense the building was erected. The school has continued to receive gifts and endowments so that in 1910 new galleries and class-rooms were added. The school has two valuable collections of paintings,—the Trumbull collection, of historical portraits and events of the American Revolution, which formed the nucleus of its Art Museum, and the Jarves collection of Italian paintings, unexcelled in this country. William Sergeant Kendall has been director of the school for some years. Three-year courses are offered in painting, sculpture, and a four-year course in architecture. To the first two, students of both sexes are admitted. Preparatory work is offered for absolute beginners.

Cooper Union, 3d Ave. & 8th St., New York City, founded by Peter Cooper in 1859, was the forerunner of many similar institutions, having avowedly inspired the Carnegie benefactions. Additional endowment has continued to come from the family of the founder and others interested in art and art education. At the time of the opening of the school, in 1859, it took over the work of a private society, which offered a course in the arts of design to women, and has since maintained a free art school for women, and free evening art classes for men. C. R. Richards is director, and the art classes are under the immediate direction of Frederick Dielman.

The Art Students' League of New York, 215 W. 57th St., was founded in 1875 and incorporated three years later. Its board and officers include many prominent citizens who have a broad interest in art, and in its list of active members are several of the best known artists and art lovers in New York. The League maintains classes of instruction in all branches of art. Growth in attendance has twice necessitated the removal to enlarged quarters and it is now located in the American Fine Arts Building in studios especially adapted to its purposes. The instructors include some of the prominent and more successful artists of New York and the work turned out by its students is probably not excelled by that of any other school. The League maintains two summer schools,—one in the city under George B. Bridgman, and a school of landscape painting at Woodstock in the Catskills under John F. Carlson.

New York School of Applied Design for Women, 160 Lexington Ave., was founded and incorporated in 1892 by Mrs. Dunlap Hopkins for the purpose of affording to women practical instruction in the arts and crafts whereby they might become self-supporting. The instructors are practical men and women engaged in the crafts which they here teach. The directors and officers are public-spirited men and women interested in art education and the institution is further supported by subscribing patrons. More than nine thousand women have been graduated from the school.

New York School of Fine and Applied Art, 2237 Broadway, succeeded the Chase School in 1909. Courses are offered in drawing, painting, interior decoration, the crafts, costume design, illustrative advertising, and normal training. Vocational art and vocational art teaching are emphasized. Frank A. Parsons is president and Susan F. Bissell, executive secretary. The school is incorporated under the board of regents, and holds a summer session at Port Jefferson, L.I.

The Arts High School of the Ethical Culture School, Central Park West & 63d St., opened in 1913, is designed for those who wish to specialize in art during the last two years of high school work. Two hours a day are given to the study of art. The school is prevocational and opens the way to a more intelligent choice in some special form of art for their profession. Two years of high school work are required for admission and a diploma is given for the two years spent in the art school.

National Academy of Design, Free Schools, 109th St. & Amsterdam Ave., founded in 1825, give instruction in drawing, painting, sculpture, and etching. Tuition is free but a small entrance fee is charged. Adolph A. Weinman is at the head of the school.

Pratt Institute, School of Fine and Applied Arts, Ryerson St., Brooklyn, founded in 1887, gives especial attention to normal courses in art and manual training. Courses are also given in drawing, illustration, applied design, architecture, crafts, and jewelry. Scholarships are offered by friends of the school and by the Art Students' Fund Association.

The Albany School of Fine Arts, 52 S. Swan St., Albany, N.Y., established in 1910, offers a three-year course and a normal teachers' course as well as special work in crafts, design, and architecture, under the direction of the State Education Department. Miss Edith Very, B.S., Columbia, is director.

Syracuse University, College of Fine Arts, Syracuse, N.Y., opened in 1873, has departments of architecture, painting, and design. George A. Parker is dean of Fine Arts and the summer school is in charge of Charles B. Walker.

Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Broad St., above Arch, Philadelphia, Pa., founded in 1805, is the oldest school in America devoted exclusively to the cultivation of the fine arts. All the instructors, specialists in their respective lines, are well-known artists or sculptors. About twenty students each year are given traveling scholarships through the generosity of friends of the school.

Thorough instruction is offered in drawing and painting, sculpture, and illustration.

School of Industrial Art of the Pennsylvania Museum, Broad & Pine Sts., Philadelphia, chartered in 1876, sprang from the increased interest in art and art education awakened by the Centennial Exhibition. Its trustees include public-spirited men and women of Philadelphia. Leslie W. Miller is the principal. In the School of Applied Art, instruction is given in architecture, design, interior decoration, as well as illustration and the crafts, with a normal course for teachers. Several scholarships are offered. A summer school is maintained under the direction of Otto F. Ege, and a textile school gives courses in dyeing, weaving, finishing, etc.

Philadelphia School of Design for Women, Broad & Master Sts., Philadelphia, established in 1844, offers instruction in all branches of art, under the direction of Miss Emily Sartain. It is the oldest school of industrial art in America.

Corcoran School of Art, 17th St. & New York Ave., Washington, D.C., was established in a small way in 1875 when certain rules and regulations were adopted for the observance of persons drawing or copying in the Corcoran Gallery. In 1890 the new Art School building was opened and in 1897 a new gallery building was opened. Edmund Clarence Messer is principal of the school, which gives instruction in drawing and painting. Tuition is free but an annual entrance fee of $10 is charged.

Schools of Art and Design of Maryland Institute, Mount Royal Ave., Baltimore, Md., founded in 1825 and reorganized in 1848, has maintained day classes and a night school since 1849, in charge of C. Y. Turner. The board of managers includes well-known Baltimore citizens. The Rhinehart School of Sculpture was made possible in 1908 by a state appropriation and the gift by Andrew Carnegie of $263,000. The usual art courses are offered, with emphasis on work in glass, pottery, leather, wood, and metal.

The H. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College for Women, New Orleans, La., maintains a school of art, founded in 1887 by Mrs. Josephine Louise Newcomb, who in 1895 gave new buildings. In 1901 an additional building was erected for applied art work-rooms. A specialty is made of pottery and of other crafts, including embroidery and jewelry.

Institute of Applied Arts of the Ohio Mechanics Institute, Cincinnati, O., founded in 1828 and incorporated in 1829, first opened its teaching work in 1856 as an evening school. The old building was remodeled in 1900 and a day school added. In 1908 Mrs. Mary M. Emery gave $500,000 for a new building which was completed in 1911. Architecture, art and design, decorative glass work, and normal art work are offered.

Art Academy of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, founded in 1869 and formerly known as the McMicken School of Design and Art School of Cincinnati, is maintained by the trustees of the Cincinnati Museum Association, which includes a number of prominent citizens. Its endowment through several sources amounts to practically half a million. Instruction is given in drawing, painting, modeling, and applied arts. Part-time courses are arranged for high school and other special students. A summer school is maintained and a two-year course for teachers.

Columbus Art School, 492 E. Broad St., Columbus, O., founded in 1879 by the Columbus Art Association, offers instruction in drawing, painting, illustrating, sculpture, design, and metal work. Julius Golz, Jr., is director.

Cleveland School of Art, Juniper Road & Magnolia Drive, Cleveland, O., founded in 1882, in charge of Miss Georgie L. Norton, gives instruction in the principles of art, design, and crafts. Six four-year courses are offered, the last two years of which are elective, with a two-year course for teachers. Three scholarships are given by friends of the school.

The Art School of the John Herron Art Institute, Pennsylvania & 16th Sts., Indianapolis, Ind., conducted by the Art Association of Indianapolis and made possible by the will of John Herron, was opened in 1902 and has been in its present building since 1907. Harold Haven Brown is the director. The school offers the usual courses in drawing, painting, design, modeling, and normal art. Saturday morning classes are maintained and a summer school.

School of Design of Detroit Museum of Art, Jefferson Ave. & Rivard St., Detroit, Mich., has for five years given instruction in drawing, design, modeling, and normal art, under the direction of George T. Hamilton. Affiliated with the Detroit Museum of Art, the School of Design is given public funds. Several scholarships are awarded each year.

The School of Fine Arts, Fine Arts Building, Detroit, gives instruction in painting and illustration under John P. Wicker.

The Art Institute of Chicago, Lake Front, opposite Adams St., Chicago, Ill., is probably one of the best equipped and most thorough-going art schools in the country. It was incorporated in 1879 and is the continuation of the school of the old Academy of Design established in 1866. Theodore J. Keane is in charge of the school, which gives instruction in drawing, painting, decorative design, ceramic painting, and architecture, with a three-year course in normal art. Nine hundred are enrolled in the day school, seven hundred in the Saturday classes, over a thousand in the evening classes, five hundred in the summer school, with a total of nearly twenty-nine hundred.

Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, 81 East Madison St., Chicago, maintained by Carl N. Werntz since 1903, gives instruction in fine, decorative, and normal art, and dress design, with emphasis on the vocational and commercial aspects.

Chicago School of Applied and Normal Art, 606 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, maintained since 1908 by Miss Emma Church, formerly with the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, gives instruction in painting, illustration, design, and crafts. About forty per cent of the students come from outside Chicago.

Minneapolis School of Art, Dorrilus Morrison Park, Minneapolis, Minn., has been conducted by the Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts since 1886, and gives instruction in fine and applied arts through day and evening classes. A new art building is to be opened this fall near the Institute of Arts, and a separate director for the school will be appointed. A number of scholarships are awarded annually. The students come from all parts of the United States.

The St. Paul Institute School of Art, The Auditorium, St. Paul, Minn., established in 1895, maintains classes in painting, modeling, illustration, design, and normal art. Lee Woodward Zeigler is the director, and the trustees represent well-known and influential citizens of St. Paul.

Cumming School of Art, Des Moines, Ia., under direction of Charles A. Cumming, gives the usual courses in art with a spirit which although conservative is yet thoroughly serious and firm. The course of study is strictly academic.

St. Louis School of Fine Arts (Washington University), Skinker Road & Lindell Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., founded in 1874, a department of the university, is in charge of Mr. E. H. Wuerpel. Instruction is given in all branches of art, with emphasis on crafts, and the art museum is supported by the city. Several scholarships are offered by friends of the school. The majority of the students come from Missouri, but the whole of the West is represented. The University also maintains schools of architecture, drawing, and history of art.

The Fine Arts Academy of Denver, 31 E. 18th Ave., Denver, Col., established in 1912 under the direction of Miss Abigail Holman, gives instruction in fine, decorative, and normal art.

California School of Design, San Francisco Institute of Art, San Francisco, Cal., founded in 1874, has since 1894 been affiliated with the University of California. It offers courses in drawing, painting, illustration, design, crafts, and normal work for teachers. A summer course was added in 1914. Pedro J. Lemos is acting director.

California School of Arts and Crafts, 2119 Allston Way, Berkeley, Cal., offers courses in fine, applied, and normal arts. Frederick H. Meyer is director. The summer school is held at Carmel-by-the-Sea. There are day, evening, and Saturday classes.

The Carmel Summer School of Art, Carmel-by-the-Sea, Cal., was conducted by William M. Chase in 1914. In 1915 the school was in charge of C. P. Townsley, who was associated for many years with Mr. Chase in the management of the Shinnecook Summer School of Art and the Chase European Classes. There are classes in painting from the landscape and from costume model out of doors, and from the portrait model and from still life in the studios.

The Stickney Memorial School of Fine Arts, Fair Oaks & Lincoln Aves., Pasadena, Cal., opened in 1914 by C. P. Townsley, gives instruction in drawing, painting, modeling, illustration, and composition, under the auspices of the Pasadena Music and Art Association. Students are enrolled from different parts of the United States and South America.

Los Angeles School of Art and Design, 6th & Alvarado Sts., Los Angeles, Cal., established in 1887, gives instruction in all branches of art. L. E. Gorden-Macleod is director. In 1914 a summer school was opened.

KINDERGARTEN TRAINING SCHOOLS

Miss Wheelock's Kindergarten Training School, 110 Riverway, Boston, Mass., is perhaps the best known and most successful in New England. For twenty-six years it has been conducted by Miss Lucy Wheelock, about whose personality it centers. She is a woman of broad sympathies who has exerted a wide influence in her field. Applicants must have the equivalent of a high school education, must be nineteen years of age, and able to play the piano and sing. Students are received on two months' probation and those from a distance are expected to live in the school dormitory. The Froebel system is closely followed but the training is broad.

Kindergarten Normal School, 200 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, was established in 1906 by Miss Laura Fisher, a woman of unusual personality, who introduced many novel features. Since Miss Fisher gave up her interest in order to go to New York the school has been conducted by Miss Harriet Niel. The school has a desirable class of patronage from families of Greater Boston.

Perry Kindergarten Normal School, 18 Huntington Ave., Boston, prepares for kindergarten, primary, and playground positions. The school limits its numbers to forty-eight and is in charge of Mrs. Annie Moseley Perry.

Lesley Normal School, 29 Everett St., Cambridge, Mass., established in 1909, is conducted by Mrs. Edith Lesley Wolfard. Proximity to Harvard makes possible lectures by university professors and in addition to kindergarten work preparation is offered for primary and playground teaching. There are opportunities for observing the work of kindergartens in Boston and vicinity. Residence accommodation is provided for a limited number.

The Fannie A. Smith Froebel Kindergarten Training School, 863 Lafayette St., Bridgeport, Conn., is one of the oldest existing schools of its kind. Established in 1885, jointly with a kindergarten and private school which had been running two years, it has enrolled over fifteen hundred children and gives a very thorough training. Miss Smith is still principal and has given students the unusual opportunity of practicing the principles of Froebel in the same school in which they study. Additional practice is given in the public schools of the city.

Connecticut Froebel Normal Kindergarten Primary Training School, 179 West Ave., Bridgeport, a boarding and day school established in 1899, offers academic, kindergarten, primary, and playground courses. The principal is Miss Mary C. Mills, who has, through aggressive and enterprising methods, built up a prosperous school.

The Harriette Melissa Mills Training School for Kindergarten and Primary Teachers, New York University Bldg., Washington

Sq., New York City, opened in 1909, is affiliated with New York University and conducted by Miss Mills, lecturer in the School of Pedagogy and principal of the Kindergarten Department in the Summer School of the University. The two-year normal course is approved by the state board of regents. The instructors include heads of departments in the School of Pedagogy, and specialists and lecturers of note.

The New York Kindergarten Association, 524 W. 42d St., conducts a kindergarten training school which since 1914 has been under the direction of Miss Laura Fisher. It offers a two-year observation and practice course.

The Froebel League, 112 E. 71st St., has maintained a kindergarten training school since 1909. A kindergarten was opened in 1897 and the League incorporated a year later. The board of trustees is made up of prominent New York women. The work of the League has broadened and includes an elementary school, a mothers' department, and a nurses' class. It occupies its own specially constructed building and in 1914 opened a students' residence. The course provides a very complete technical training, and adds many subjects that contribute to the all-round development of the individual. A part of the last year is spent on the League's alumnæ Connecticut farm, where much is made of nature study.

The Ethical Culture School, Central Park West & 63d St., maintains a kindergarten-primary normal training department in connection with its complete course of instruction. The school was established in 1878 by Dr. Felix Adler. Throughout the normal work the kindergarten and primary education are put on a common basis. The well-organized school from kindergarten to college grade affords excellent opportunities for observation and practice and the study of the continuous development of the child from kindergarten to later stages of school life. Afternoon classes leading to kindergarten-primary diplomas are given in methods. Franklin C. Lewis is the superintendent.

Teachers College, Columbia University, established in 1887, has a kindergarten department in charge of Miss Patty S. Hill, the well-known worker along these lines, since 1910.

Miss Hart's Training School for Kindergartners, 3600 Walnut St., Philadelphia, Pa., is conducted by Miss Caroline M. C. Hart, who was at one time connected with the Baltimore Kindergarten Association. A very thorough preparation is made possible by the cooperation of five kindergartens in different parts of the city.

American Montessori Training School for Teachers, Torresdale, Philadelphia, is conducted by Mrs. J. Scott Anderson in a building especially adapted to the needs of the school. The work is taken up on the same lines as in Signora Montessori's school in Rome, where Mrs. Anderson studied for a time.

Pittsburgh and Allegheny Kindergarten College, Pittsburgh, Pa., conducted by Mrs. James I. Buchanan, offers thorough yet somewhat conservative courses in kindergarten training, both theoretical and practical.

Kindergarten Normal Institution, 1426 Q St., N.W., Washington, D.C., established in 1874, is maintained by Miss Susan Plessner

Pollock, whose mother, Mrs. Louise Pollock, first introduced the kindergarten system in English into this country.

Atlanta Kindergarten Normal and Elementary School, 639 Peachtree St., conducted since 1897 by Miss Willette A. Allen, gives a two-year course in Froebel and Montessori principles. The children's class has an enrollment of about twenty-five. Miss Allen is a graduate of the Chicago Central Normal and the Hailman Training School for Kindergartners and has done graduate work at New York University.

Cincinnati Kindergarten Association Training School, 6 Linton Rd., Cincinnati, O., is carried on under a board of trustees by Miss Lillian H. Stone. The school is affiliated with the University of Cincinnati and gives the students an opportunity for practice in the public schools, mission, and private kindergartens.

Cleveland Kindergarten Training School, 2050 E. 96th St., Cleveland, O., was organized in 1894 by the Cleveland Day Nursery and Free Kindergarten Association, acting with the advice and help of Miss Elizabeth Harrison and Mrs. J. N. Crouse of the National Kindergarten College, with which it is now affiliated. It is conducted by Miss Netta Faris, a graduate of Chicago Kindergarten College, as are many of its staff. The students have opportunities to observe and practice in the nine practice kindergartens around the city. The three-year course of study is broadly planned. Candidates are accepted on six weeks' probation.

The Law Froebel Kindergarten Training School, 2313 Ashland Ave., Toledo, O., grew out of a kindergarten established in 1883 by Dr. Mary E. Law, M.D., and since that time has graduated some five hundred teachers, including nearly all those engaged in kindergarten work in the Toledo public schools. Froebel principles as well as those of the Montessori system are studied and daily practice is a part of each year's work.

Teachers' College of Indianapolis, Alabama & 23d Sts., Indianapolis, Ind., established in 1882, gives a kindergarten course under the direction of Mrs. Eliza A. Blaker.

The Grand Rapids Kindergarten Training School, 508 Fountain St., N.E., Grand Rapids, Mich., was established in 1891 by Mrs. Lucretia Willard Treat, who was succeeded in 1904 by Miss Clara Wheeler. At the end of a two-year course, its students receive state kindergarten certificates which entitle them to teach in the kindergarten and first grade of the Michigan public schools.

Kindergarten Collegiate Institute of Chicago, 410 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., one of the oldest schools of kindergarten training, established in 1881, is in charge of Miss Eva B. Whitmore. It is under the direction of the Chicago Free Kindergarten Training Association, from which more than half its income is derived.

National Kindergarten College, 2944 Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, is one of the oldest extant schools of its kind in the country, and one of the largest and best. It was established in 1886 as the Chicago Kindergarten College by Miss Elizabeth Harrison, its president, and Mrs. John N. Crouse, who has since retired. In 1912 it was incorporated under its present name in affiliation with the National Kindergarten Association, whose directors are men and women of national reputation and influence. The following year the college moved to its present sumptuous quarters in the historic Sidney Kent property. Miss Harrison, after thirty years of teaching and administrative work, demonstrated her openness of mind by joining Dottroessa Montessori's first training class in Rome. She had previously visited and studied the chief kindergarten centers of Europe and America. A strong faculty offers instruction in practical and theoretical kindergarten work. A broad training is given, including work in art, science, history, and literature. Fifty practice kindergartens under the supervision of the college afford generous opportunities for observation and practice. The patronage is national. Those from out of town are expected to live in the dormitory. The Alumnae Association, organized in 1893, includes many graduates holding leading kindergarten positions throughout the country.

The Pestalozzi-Froebel Kindergarten Training School, 616 S. Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, maintained since 1896 by Mrs. Bertha Hofer Hegner, has incorporated some of the features of the Pestalozzi-Froebel Haus in Berlin. Mrs. Hegner was director of the Chicago Commons Social Settlement Kindergarten from 1895-1904. Special work is given for playground and primary teachers. Pupils are assigned for practice teaching in about forty public school and social settlement kindergartens. The students come from all sections of the country. The Alumnae Association is a branch of the International Kindergarten Union.

Chicago Kindergarten Institute, 54 Scott St., Chicago, established in 1894, has been under student government since 1908. There are three directors, Mrs. Mary Boomer Page, Miss Caroline C. Cronise, and Mrs. Ethel Roe Lindgren. A two or three year normal kindergarten course is offered, the first two months being a period of probation. Regular students live at least one month at Gertrude House, where home training is combined with student life and teachers and students live together like one family.

The Froebel Kindergarten Training School, 1020 McGee St., Kansas City, Mo., has in the eighteen years of its existence trained nearly ninety-five per cent of the kindergarten teachers in the city schools. Miss Elizabeth Moss, director since 1908, has been connected with the school since its inception.

Golden Gate Kindergarten Free Normal School, 560 Union St., San Francisco, Cal., established in 1891, is conducted by Miss Anna M. Stovall. As this is an association school most of its revenue comes from that source and not from tuition fees. There are opportunities for much practice teaching.

SCHOOLS OF PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Posse School of Gymnastics, 779 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., is modeled after the Royal Gymnastic Central Institute in Stockholm, Sweden, and the Swedish system of gymnastics is largely used. Substantial courses are offered for the training of physical culture teachers. The school was established by Baron Nils Posse in 1890 and after his death was carried on by his wife Baroness Rose Posse until 1915, when Hartvig Nissen became acting president. From the beginning special attention has been given to medical and corrective work. The graduates of the school hold responsible positions in schools all over the country.

American School for Physical Education, 44 St. Botolph St., Boston, was opened in 1914 by Dr. Mary R. Mulliner, Boston Univ., who has had especially thorough training for her profession and was for ten years a lecturer in the Sargent School. Dr. Mulliner lays stress upon the "combination of various systems of gymnastics into the American system."

Boston School of Physical Education, 702 Beacon St., Boston, Mass., opened in 1913 and incorporated a year later, is conducted by Miss Marjorie Bouvé. A two-year course is intended for girls who wish to teach, and all are required to spend one month in the school camp at the end of the junior year.

The Sargent School for Physical Education, 8 Everett St., Cambridge, Mass., was established by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent in 1881. Dr. Sargent, A.B., Bowdoin '75, A.M., '87; M.D., Yale '78, has been a pioneer in organizing physical education in this country, his influence is widespread, and the greater number of physical directors in our schools and colleges have been trained under his direction. The school developed from a gymnasium established in connection with Radcliffe College and in 1904 a building of its own was erected which was doubled in capacity ten years later. There is a broad three-year normal course in which the mental and physical sciences are correlated. The work in June and September is carried on at the summer camp in Peterboro, N.H. In addition to the normal, there are remedial and recreative courses. The school early recognized the merits of esthetic dancing as developed by the late Mr. Gilbert. The pupils enrolled represent all parts of the United States and Canada. In all over sixteen hundred have attended the winter sessions and twenty-four hundred the summer sessions.

New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, 1466 Chapel St., New Haven, Conn., was organized in 1886 and moved to New Haven six years later where it became known as the Anderson Normal School of Gymnastics; the present name was assumed in 1900. The school offers thorough courses for teachers of physical training and playground work. The men and women enrolled come largely from New England and the eastern states but there is a scattering from all over the country. E. Hermann Arnold, M.D., Yale, is the director. To enter a student must have graduated from a school of high school grade or have passed college entrance examinations. It has its own dormitories and its own enclosed campus.

The Chalif Normal School of Dancing, 7 W. 42d St., New York City, has been conducted for the past ten years by Louis H. Chalif. Instruction is given in esthetic, interpretive, and the newest ball-room dancing to teachers of dancing and physical culture and exhibition dancers. Last year six hundred teachers from all parts of the country were enrolled in the various courses. In the fall, the school will occupy a new building at 163-165 W. 57th St.

The Savage School for Physical Education, 308 and 310 W. 59th St., formerly the New York Normal School, offers complete courses in the theory and practice of physical training to men and women, mostly from Greater New York. The school was established in 1895 and is still conducted by Watson L. Savage, A.B., Amherst '82, A.M., '85; M.D., Long Island Hospital '85, who has had wide experience in other schools. The faculty represent the best colleges and universities.

Temple University Normal School of Physical Education, Broad & Berks Sts., Philadelphia, has since 1914 been conducted by Wm. Nicolai, who has made a complete revision of the course. The department of physical education was organized in 1896, four years after the establishment of the university. A complete course for training teachers in all branches of physical education is given.

Normal College of the North American Gymnastic Union, 415-419 E. Michigan St., Indianapolis, Ind., is the oldest American institution for the education of teachers of physical training, and since its establishment has been under the direction of and supported by the North American Gymnastic Union, an organization begun through German influence in 1848. The Normal College was opened in Rochester, N.Y., in 1861 and after several moves finally settled in Indianapolis in 1907. Emil Rath, the president, graduated from this institution in 1898.

Normal School of Physical Education, Battle Creek, Mich., a branch of the educational department of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, has grown rapidly since its establishment in 1909 and at present enrolls men and women from all over the country. Besides the training school there is a summer school. Dr. Frank J. Born, A.B., Yale '98, is dean and director.

Department of Physical Education of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis., established in 1911, offers courses for teachers of physical education, directors of play, and instructors of athletics. The department also has jurisdiction over all athletic activities of the college. George W. Ehler has for six years been the director.

SCHOOLS OF EXPRESSION AND DRAMATIC ART

Emerson College of Oratory, Huntington Ave., Boston, established in 1880, is the largest institution of its kind. Henry Lawrence Southwick, now president, became partner of Dr. C. W. Emerson in 1889 and in 1899 bought the school and took charge. The regular diploma course requires four years, about eighty elective courses being divided into seven general groups of studies. Half the students come from outside the state, the great majority being women. Summer courses are given in Boston and in Knoxville, Tenn.

School of Expression, Pierce Building, Boston, maintained by Dr. S. S. Curry, was organized by him as an independent institution in 1884, and is an outgrowth of a department of oratory in Boston University established in 1875. Dr. Curry has been at various times instructor at Harvard and Yale. A three-year professional and normal course is offered. Summer courses are given in Chicago, Asheville, N.C., Burlington, Vt., New York, and Boston.

Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word, Fenway, Boston, has been maintained since 1904 by Mr. Leland Powers, who is widely known as a public reader and author. Recently the school moved into a new building of its own in the Fenway. The enrollment is limited to one hundred and ten, mostly young women from all parts of the country.

The Lawrence School of Oratory, 149 W. 35th St., New York City, founded in 1869, gives instruction in elocution, oratory, and dramatic art. Edwin Gordon Lawrence, actor and author, succeeded his father as director of the school in 1882.

The Alberti School of Expression, Carnegie Hall, New York City, maintained since 1897 by William M. Alberti, offers class and individual instruction in pantomime, elocution, literature, dancing, pageantry, costuming, and scenic effects.

American Academy of Dramatic Arts, Carnegie Hall, was founded as the Lyceum School of Acting in 1884, and chartered fifteen years later by the regents of the State of New York. It is the earliest and foremost institution of its kind in the country, and gives complete instruction in all phases of dramatic arts, the regular course requiring two years. The senior classes are organized as a stock company and give public performances. Franklin H. Sargent is president.

The Hawn School of the Speech Arts, Inc., Carnegie Hall, New York City, maintained by Henry Gaines Hawn for about twenty years, gives a variety of two-year courses in reading, dramatic arts, literature, and oratory.

The Alviene Schools, 225 W. 57th St., maintained by Claude M. Alviene, give professional training for the stage, the two regular six-month courses being synchronous.

The Williams School of Expression and Dramatic Art, Ithaca, N.Y., maintained since 1897 by George C. Williams, the secretary and treasurer of the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, offers instruction in the usual branches of oratory and dramatic art, with special work for those of defective speech.

The National School of Elocution and Oratory, Broad & Cherry Sts., Philadelphia, Pa., founded in 1874 by J. W. Shoemaker, is one of the oldest chartered schools of the kind in the country. The diploma course requires one year and an additional year leads to the degree of Bachelor of Oratory.

Chaffee-Noble School of Expression, 83 Hancock Ave., Detroit, Mich., established in 1877, is now carried on by Mrs. Edna Chaffee Noble, for eighteen years with the Chaffee-Noble School of Expression in London.

Northwestern University, School of Oratory, Evanston, Ill., has since 1878 been in charge of Robert McLean Cumnock. There is a two-year course with an optional year of more advanced work. Students live in the university dormitories.

The Anna Morgan Studios, Inc., 825 Fine Arts Building, Chicago, Ill., have been maintained since 1895 by Miss Morgan, who was at the head of the dramatic department of Chicago Conservatory from 1883 to 1895. Dramatic art is taught in all its branches with especial attention to teachers and professional students. A few plays are given each year in Miss Morgan's "Little Theatre."

School of Acting of Bush Temple Conservatory, N. Clark St. & Chicago Ave., Chicago, offers a two-year course in acting with practice in a stock company which produces about twenty-five plays each season.

The Centralizing School of Acting, 20 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, under the direction of Edward Dvorak, formerly of the School of Acting of Bush Temple Conservatory and well known as a teacher of Dramatic Art, is the only school in Chicago having its own theater. Theoretical and practical training is given in all branches of acting, stage management, as well as acting for the moving pictures. Many of Mr. Dvorak's pupils have gained distinction on the stage.

SCHOOLS OF THE HOUSEHOLD ARTS

The Garland School of Homemaking, 19 Chestnut St., Boston, Mass., under the management of Mrs. Margaret J. Stannard since 1902, and incorporated in 1913, has been peculiarly successful in promoting education for homemaking. Mrs. Stannard was long engaged in kindergarten training and has been prominent in the educational life of Boston. The school is the first in the United States to develop a purely non-professional graduate course dealing with all aspects of a homemaker's responsibility. This course requires the study of family and civic obligations, of the house and its furnishings, of food and clothing, of personal and family budgets and their use, of social relations, and of the principles in science, art, economics, and ethics which apply to these. See p. 531.

Boston Y. W. C. A. School of Domestic Science, 40 Berkeley St., Boston, established in 1888, is one of the oldest of its kind. Practical and thorough instruction is given in domestic art and science. Two hours of practice are given to one hour of theory. Residence, in domestic science, is compulsory. Miss A. Josephine Forehand has been in charge since 1898.

Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, 30 Huntington Ave., Boston, established in 1902 and long conducted by Miss Fannie Merritt Farmer, author of the famous Cook Books, is now maintained by Miss Alice Bradley. Demonstrations, practice classes, and special lessons are offered in all branches of cookery, table service, dietetics, and marketing.

Worcester Domestic Science School, 156 Institute Road, Worcester, Mass., is the outgrowth of the Oread Institute. Dormitories are provided for girls from a distance. Mrs. F. A. Wethered, formerly with the Oread Institute, is principal.

New York Cooking School, Fourth Ave. & 22d St., New York City, founded in 1876 and incorporated two years later, is managed by a board of prominent New York women and supported by voluntary contributions. Instruction is offered in morning and evening classes, and also in private lessons. There are free evening classes for working girls.

The Barnard School of Household Arts, 226 W. 79th St., is a select private school for girls of Greater New York, under the same general management as the Barnard School for Girls. Instruction is given in cooking, sewing, embroidery, and other finishing courses.

Pratt Institute, School of Household Science and Arts, Brooklyn, N.Y., opened in 1887, is the largest department of the Institute. Thorough two-year courses are offered for teachers and also professional and trade courses ranging from three months to one year in length and giving a very practical training. Miss Isabel Ely Lord is the director. There is an attendance of fifteen hundred students from all parts of the country.

Skidmore School of Arts, Saratoga Springs, N.Y., maintains a school of domestic science and art with a two-year normal training course. Advanced and technical courses are also offered, and senior students have an opportunity to teach in the public schools as well as in the extension class of the institution. Katherine T. Cranor, B.S., and Gudrun I. Carlson have charge of the two departments.

Mechanics Institute, 55 Plymouth Ave., Rochester, N.Y., founded in 1886, maintains a department of household arts under the direction of Miss May D. Benedict. Instruction is given in all branches of domestic arts and sciences, with special work for dietitians and managers of lunch rooms.

Drexel Institute, School of Domestic Science and Arts, 32d & Chestnut Sts., Philadelphia, Pa., in its three-year and shorter courses makes the physical sciences, mathematics, and English the foundation of training in the appropriate special subjects.

National School of Domestic Arts and Sciences, Connecticut Ave. & M St., Washington, D.C., an exclusive domestic science finishing school for young ladies, has accommodation for a limited number of boarding pupils. Miss Mary A. Zurhorst is principal.

Hood College, School of Home Economics, Frederick, Md., organized nine years ago, is in charge of Miss Edith M. Thomas. A practical two-year certificate course and a four-year normal course leading to the B.S. degree are offered. The girls come from nearby states.

The School of Domestic Arts and Sciences, 6 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., in 1901 took over the practical courses in domestic science of Armour Institute of Technology. Courses for homemakers and nurses are offered; also practical courses in sewing, cooking, nursing, and household administration. Mrs. Lyndon Evans is director.

Technical Normal School of Chicago, 3207 Michigan Boulevard, Chicago, established in 1910, maintains a department of domestic science offering one and two-year courses in all branches of household economics. Nearly all the students are preparing for positions as dietitians, institutional managers, and teachers, and to that end are given opportunities for practice teaching in the Abraham Lincoln Center School and other social settlements. Mrs. Dora E. Duff is in charge of the department.

SCHOOLS FOR THE DEFICIENT PHYSICALLY, MENTALLY, SENSORILY

The Davidson School of Individual Instruction, Tamworth, N.H., is conducted by S. G. Davidson, A.M., Litt.D., with the assistance of Miss Emma Florence West. Dr. Davidson, formerly of Mt. Airy, Philadelphia, has had long experience with defective children and now maintains on his farm at Tamworth three summer camps for boys, young girls, and adults.

The Shepard School, Wickford, R.I., on Narragansett Bay, was opened in 1914 for boys from eight to sixteen who need special care or treatment because of Physical Deficiencies. Life is out of doors and work practical. No mentally deficient are accepted. Fred W. Burnham, A.M., is the principal. Dr. W. B. Shepard is the director.

Florence Nightingale School, 238th St. and Riverdale Ave., New York City, for Nervous and Backward Children, was opened in 1912 and is now under the direction of Miss Sara Weinberger, Registered Nurse. Each of the twelve pupils is under the treatment of some prominent nerve specialist and receives individual attention.

The Wright Oral School for the Deaf, 1 Mount Morris Park, West, New York City, founded in 1894 by John Dutton Wright, M.A., who still conducts it, has done a notable work in its field. It provides the most scientific instruction for deaf children and those who have defective hearing. The speech method is used exclusively from kindergarten to college entrance. The number of boarding pupils is limited to thirty. Helen Keller is perhaps the most widely known pupil.

The New York School for the Hard of Hearing, 18-20 East 41st St., New York City, was founded in 1903 to teach Lip Reading to Adults, by Edward B. Nitchie, A.B., himself deaf, who is a graduate of Amherst and the author of six books on lip reading.

The Seguin Physiological School, 370 Center St., Orange, N.J., is one of the oldest and best known schools for Abnormal Children. It is maintained by Mrs. Seguin, the wife of Edward Seguin, the celebrated pioneer in the education of the Feeble-Minded. The school is limited to twenty-five resident and three day pupils. The situation is excellent and the equipment of the best.

The Bancroft Training School, Haddonfield, N.J., now in its thirty-third year, was founded by Margaret Bancroft, for the training of Children of Retarded Mental Development. The best of medical care and supervision is given to the fifty pupils, but the chief function of the School is the training and education of each pupil, meeting his own individual needs. Miss J. C. Cooley, the principal, is assisted by a strong resident and consulting staff.

Herbert Hall, Plainfield, N.J., is for Atypical Boys and Girls, that is, "those whose uneven brightness or difficult mental grasp needs special education." It was established in 1900 by Dr. Maximilian P. E. Groszmann, the present principal, author of numerous books and articles on education of abnormal children. He is prepared to cope equally with the too rapidly budding genius or the child that might otherwise prove deficient. There is individual home care on a country estate and a summer camp, Wetumpka, is conducted.

The Latshaw School, 3412-3414 Sansom St., Philadelphia, Pa., is for Subnormal or Defective Children from three to twenty-one years old, endeavoring to develop the child's individuality by his own initiative. The Director, Allen Latshaw, has had twenty-four years of varied experience with 7000 people. The present school was opened as a day school in 1904 and as a boarding school in 1912.

The Brookwood School, for Nervous and Backward Children, Lansdowne, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, was established by Miss Rachel W. Brewster in 1903.

The Sanatorium School, 46 Runnymede Ave., Lansdowne, Pa., is conducted by Miss Claudia M. Redd, Principal. It is a small home school giving individual instruction and scientific treatment for physical and mental defects peculiar to Nervous, Delicate, and Unusual Children.

The Stewart Home and School, Farmdale, Ky., is a distinctly home training school for Children of Backward Mental Development above five years of age. The School was founded in 1893 by the father of the present Superintendent, Dr. John Q. A. Stewart, a pioneer in the industrial training of backward children.

Miss Arbaugh's School for Deaf Children, Macon, Ga., is a boarding and day school with a pleasant home life. Specially trained teachers give individual instruction in lip reading to Deaf Children and those with imperfect hearing.

The Reed School, 383-393 Hubbard Ave., Detroit, Mich., for Nervous and Mentally Retarded Children, is conducted by Mrs. Frank A. Reed. Instruction is given in manual and physical training, vocal and instrumental music, drawing, painting, and the usual school subjects. The School for Stuttering and Stammering at the same address is entirely separate and the children of the two never come in contact.

Beverly Farm, Godfrey, Ill., is a private home and school for Nervous and Backward Children, conducted by Dr. W. H. C. Smith, former President of the American Association for the Study of Feeble-Minded. The school was established in 1897 and has since received into its family 280 children. The system of education is the most advanced pedagogic ideas. Kindergarten, gymnastics, sloyd, and handiwork of many kinds are utilized.

Central Institute for the Deaf, N. E. corner Vandeventer Ave. and Westminster Place, St. Louis, Mo., was established in 1914, and maintains training classes for teachers as well as instruction for Deaf Children and Adults. Miss Ethel M. Hillard, Ph.B., Chicago Univ., is the principal.

Powell School for Backward and Nervous Children, Oak Hill, Red Oak, Ia., was established by Dr. and Mrs. Velura E. Powell in 1903. About thirty-five pupils are enrolled.

THE PRIVATE SCHOOLS OF CANADA

TORONTO

Upper Canada College is a boarding and day school established in 1829 by Lord Seaton and modeled after the great public schools of England. In 1891 the college moved to new quarters in Deer Park, a suburb of Toronto, and a new site has recently been secured at Norval. The college is endowed and under the control of a governing board of its alumni. Boys are prepared for university, honor, and pass matriculation, and for the Royal Military College, and come from every part of Canada, and other countries. Henry W. Auden, M.A., Cambridge, formerly master at Fettes College, Edinburgh, has been principal for thirteen years. A cadet rifle corps is maintained. There is a preparatory school for boys from nine to thirteen, opened in 1902 in a separate building with its own faculty. J. L. Somerville, B.A., Cambridge, is head master of this school.

St. Andrew's College is a residential and day school founded in 1899 through Presbyterian influence, though it is in no sense sectarian. The school has met with remarkable success and steady growth. In 1905 it moved to new quarters in North Rosedale. The school continued to grow and in 1911 was incorporated with a board of governors, three of whom are elected biennially by the Old Boys' Association. The seniors and juniors are organized in cadet corps for military drill. There are about one hundred and fifty boys in residence, who come from all parts of Canada and the United States. The school has in its history enrolled over one thousand students. Rev. D. Bruce MacDonald, A.M., LL.D., Toronto, head master since 1900, is assisted by a staff of college-trained men.

St. Clement's College for Boys, Brampton, formerly at Eglinton, North Toronto, is a Church of England day and boarding school. It was organized in 1902 by Rev. T. W. Powell, now president of King's College, Windsor, as a coeducational institution. Seven years later St. Clement's School for Girls and Junior Boys was organized and remained on the former site, while the boys' school was established at Eglinton. A cadet corps is maintained. Rev. A. K. Griffin is principal.

The Bishop Strachan School is commencing its fiftieth year in new and complete buildings on College Heights. It is a Church day and residential school for girls, providing instruction from kindergarten to university matriculation with special work in domestic arts, music, and painting. Miss Walsh, B.A., Dublin, is the principal.

Branksome Hall, 10 Elm Ave., Rosedale, incorporated in 1903, is a large day and residential school for girls. The principal, Miss Edith M. Read, is assisted by a strong faculty, a number of whom have had European training. Much is made of the matriculation course. Music, art, and domestic science are also provided.

Glen Mawr, Spadina Ave., incorporated in 1912, is a residential and day school for girls conducted by Miss J. J. Stuart who studied for some years at Cambridge, England.

Havergal College, 350 Jarvis St., was founded in 1894 as a school for girls which should combine the best methods of English and Canadian instruction. Miss Knox, Cambridge and Oxford, the principal, is assisted by a faculty composed of Canadian and English mistresses, largely foreign university-trained. A homelike atmosphere is cultivated and the girls are given careful supervision. The success of the school soon resulted in its outgrowing the original quarters. It now consists of a larger school on Jarvis Street, with a separate junior school and a smaller school, Havergal-on-the-Hill, on College Heights, two and a half miles from the main school. In addition to provision for university matriculation there is an advanced class for second year university work. The music instruction is especially thorough and the work of the art department is modeled on that of similar schools in England. There is a large enrollment in the day school and accommodations for about one hundred resident pupils who come from widespread regions.

Loretto Abbey, Wellington St., West, founded in 1848, is a large and prosperous Roman Catholic College and Academy with both residential quarters and a large day school, the latter on Brunswick Ave. The school is affiliated in its college course with Toronto University through St. Michael's College. The High School course provides for junior and senior university matriculation. See p. 538.

St. Margaret's College, 144 Bloor St., East, founded by the late George Dickson, former principal of Upper Canada College, is a boarding and day school for girls with upper, lower, and middle divisions. Mrs. George Dickson is president and Miss J. E. MacDonald, Univ. of Toronto, is principal.

Westbourne School for Girls, 278 Bloor St., West, incorporated in 1901, is a residential and day school with boarding accommodation for about thirty girls. It is affiliated with the Toronto Conservatory of Music and offers instruction in art and elocution as well as junior matriculation pass and honors into the universities. Miss Margery Curlette, the principal, a graduate of Trinity College, and the University of Toronto, has had a varied educational experience in "ladies' schools."

Westminster College, opposite Queen's Park, Bloor St., West, is a residential and day school for girls. The girls come chiefly from Toronto with a considerable number from western Canada. There is a junior day school for little girls. Mrs. A. R. Gregory is the principal.

College and Academy of St. Joseph, near Queen's Park, in the vicinity of the University of Toronto, conducted since 1854 by the Sisters of the Order of St. Joseph, a teaching order founded in France in 1650, is one of the largest convent schools in Canada, with girls not only from Toronto but from all parts of the United States and South America. It is affiliated with the University of Toronto through the federated College of St. Michael.

St. Clement's School for Girls and Junior Boys, Eglinton, North Toronto, was opened in 1909 when St. Clement's College for Boys was removed from the coeducational school to its present site. It is a Church of England school.

Toronto Conservatory of Music, College St. & University Ave., established in 1887 by the late Dr. Edward Fisher, is the pioneer institution of its kind in Canada. Its rapid growth led to the purchase ten years later of the present site and the erection of the buildings now used, which include a residence for a limited number of pupils. There is a strong faculty, including many foreign-trained instructors. Practical and theoretical music are taught, as well as languages and elocution; theory can be studied by correspondence if desired. Preparatory work for children is given, and there is a normal course for teachers. Dr. A. S. Vogt, for years a member of the staff, became musical director in 1913.

Toronto College of Music, Ltd., 12 Pembroke St., was established by its present director, Dr. F. H. Torrington, in 1888 and incorporated in 1890. Practical and theoretical music are taught, with emphasis on courses in theory and in kindergarten music for both teachers and children. Degrees are given in affiliation with the University of Toronto. Dr. Torrington, who has been conducting the music festivals of Toronto for several years, is held in high esteem by the Toronto people.

The Canadian Academy of Music, Ltd., 12 Spadina Rd., is under the direction of Peter C. Kennedy. Courses are offered in practical and theoretical music with normal work in all departments.

Hambourg Conservatory of Music, Sherbourne & Wellesley Sts., has been maintained since 1911 by Michael Hambourg, with his two sons, Jan, the violinist, and Boris, the 'cellist. Another son, Mark Hambourg, is a well-known pianist. Professor Hambourg has been director of the Moscow Imperial Conservatory and from 1890 to 1910 was engaged in teaching in London.

ONTARIO

Ontario Ladies' College, Whitby, twenty-eight miles east of Toronto, is a Methodist school conducted by Rev. J. J. Hare since its incorporation in 1874 until 1915, when Rev. F. L. Farewell took charge. Literary work is emphasized, the faculty having seven university graduates on its literary staff, and cultural courses are also provided. Practical and theoretical work is offered in the music department, which is known as the Ontario Conservatory of Music and is in charge of G. D. Atkinson. The school is residential, though there are a few day pupils.

Bishop Bethune College, Oshawa, incorporated in 1889, has been conducted since 1893 by the Sisters of St. John the Divine as a church school mainly for little girls. Outdoor sports are encouraged and all students are required to join the physical culture classes. Some come from the United States.

Pickering College, Newmarket, thirty-three miles north of Toronto, is a coeducational boarding and day school maintained since 1842 by the Society of Friends. Incorporated in 1848 the school has moved several times and was for thirty years at the village of Pickering until it was destroyed by fire in 1906. It was then rebuilt, through the liberality of friends, on the present site.

Alma College, St. Thomas, established in 1881, is an endowed Methodist boarding and day school affiliated with the University of Toronto. Over five thousand pupils have been enrolled in the school's history, many of whom have become missionaries. A junior department for girls over ten years of age prepares for high school entrance. Robert I. Warner, A.M., D.D., is principal.

Woodstock College, Woodstock, is an academic department of McMaster University, supported by the Baptist Church. Founded in 1857 by Dr. R. A. Fyfe, it was coeducational until the establishment of Moulton College. It is now a residential school for boys and young men, with a four-year course consisting of arts and science matriculation, a three-year manual training course, and one-year preparatory work. Archibald T. MacNeill has been principal for seven years.

St. Jerome's College, Berlin, is a boarding and day school for boys over thirteen, founded in 1864 by Louis E. Funcken and incorporated in 1866. Conducted by the Fathers of the Congregation of the Resurrection, it is a prosperous school and through the generosity of its friends the buildings have been added to, especially after a destructive fire in 1908. The faculty consists of American and European university-trained men. About forty of the pupils come from the United States. Rev. A. L. Zinger is president.

Highfield School, Inc., Hamilton, was established in 1901. A specialty is made of preparation for the Royal Military College. J. H. Collison, the head master, has had a long teaching experience.

The Hamilton Conservatory of Music, 126 James St., South, Hamilton, instituted in 1897, is in charge of Bruce A. Carey, J. E. P. Aldous, and W. H. Hewlett. The institution is in affiliation with the University of Toronto and follows the curriculum laid down by it.

London Conservatory of Music, London, incorporated in 1891, is conducted by F. Linforth Willgoose, Mus.B., principal, and Frederick Boothroyd as musical director. All branches of music and dramatic art are covered. The school is affiliated with Western University.

Ridley College, St. Catharines, thirty miles from Toronto, established in 1889, is an incorporated residential Church school for boys, with an upper and a separate lower school. Military drill is compulsory. Rev. J. O. Miller is principal.

Appleby School, Oakville, founded by Sir Edmund Walker in 1911, on the shore of Lake Ontario between Toronto and Hamilton, is a well equipped boarding and day school for boys over nine years of age, pupils being admitted for entrance only between the ages of nine and fourteen. The resident pupils come from all parts of Canada and the United States. The school prepares for university matriculation and entrance to the Royal Military College, and limits its classes to fifteen boys. J. S. H. Guest, Cambridge, is head master. See p. 512.

Hill Croft School, Bobcaygeon, three hours' journey from Toronto, is a residential school preparing young boys for the senior boarding schools. Mr. W. T. Comber, a graduate of both Oxford and Toronto universities, the head master, has had over twenty years of experience with young boys.

Trinity College School, Port Hope, overlooking Lake Ontario, opened in 1865, has been located in its present site since 1868. From 1870 until 1900 the school prospered and grew in public esteem, being in charge of Rev. C. J. S. Bethune. It is a residential school under Anglican influences and in close relation with Trinity College, Toronto. It is conducted along the general lines of the great public schools of England, the six forms preparing boys for university matriculation and the Royal Military and Naval Colleges. The boys come from all parts of Canada. A cadet corps is maintained. Rev. F. Graham Orchard, M.A., Cambridge, is head master.

Lakefield Preparatory School, Ltd., Lakefield, among the woods and lakes of the North, was established in 1879 and is a boarding school admitting forty boys between seven and thirteen. A cadet corps is maintained. Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, M.A., Trinity College, Toronto, has been head master since 1896. The enrollment includes boys from all parts of Canada and also from the United States.

Albert College, Belleville, is a coeducational boarding school established in 1857 by the Methodist Episcopal Church of Canada as Belleville Seminary, acquiring its present name and limited university powers in 1866. Twenty years later it became incorporated with Victoria University, continuing since then as a higher seminary. It is the only secondary school in Ontario preparing students for the ministry, but it also carries on the same scholastic courses as high schools and collegiate institutes. Rev. E. N. Baker, M.A., B.D., D.D., is principal.

St. Agnes' School, Elmpool, Belleville, is a church boarding and day school established in 1903 for the elementary and higher education of girls. The course of study consists of six forms, with preparation for matriculation. Miss F. E. Carroll, the principal, has had much experience in educational work. The usual courses are offered in music, art, and elocution.

St. Alban's, Brockville, on the St. Lawrence river, a boys' boarding school established by Rev. Charles Boulden at Berthier, P.Q., removed to Brockville in 1900, and is now under the supervision of A. G. M. Mainwaring, Trinity College, Cambridge. Only boys between eight and fifteen years of age are accepted and the lower and the upper schools are kept separate. Special preparation is given for the Royal Military College.

Ashbury College, Rockcliffe Park, Ottawa, is a boarding school for boys, established in 1891. In 1900 the school was incorporated and the bonds and shares are now widely held. There is an upper and lower school. Special attention is given to preparation for the Royal Military College and university matriculation. All students, unless medically excused, belong to the cadet corps and receive drill and elementary field training. Rev. G. P. Woollcombe, Oxford, has been head master since 1891.

Ottawa Ladies' College, established in 1869, is a collegiate school for both boarding and day pupils, conducted under the auspices of the Presbyterian Church. The curriculum furnishes a general academic course, with special courses of one or more years, and instruction also in music, elocution, art, domestic science, and commercial branches. Rev. J. W. Milne, D.D., is president.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Lower Canada College, Montreal, is a boarding and day school for boys from eight to eighteen years of age with preparatory, junior, and senior departments, preparing for matriculation and Royal Military College. A cadet corps is maintained for the older boys. C. S. Fosbery, Trinity College, Dublin, is head master.

Trafalgar Institute, 83 Simpson St., Montreal, a school for girls in affiliation with McGill University, is conducted by Miss Charlotte G. Hardy, M.A., Cambridge, assisted by a staff of English and Canadian teachers. The school has a collegiate course and also a preparatory department for girls under thirteen. A limited number are received in residence.

Miss Edgar's School for Girls, Gey St., Montreal, is a small exclusive school patronized by the leading families of the city.

Villa Maria, Montreal, under the direction of the Sisters of the Congregation of Notre Dame, is a boarding school established in 1854, where young ladies, from all parts of Canada acquire a working knowledge of French, the language of the institution. It is distinctly Roman Catholic in every way.

St. Helen's School for Girls, Dunham, sixty miles southeast of Montreal, established in 1875 and known until 1913 as Dunham Ladies' College, is a Church school which provides instruction for girls of all ages. Miss W. M. Wade, M.A., Toronto, is principal.

Stanstead Wesleyan College, Stanstead, established and incorporated in 1872, is a coeducational boarding and day school in affiliation with McGill University. George J. Trueman, M.A., Mt. Allison, is principal. Annexed to the college are three branches: the Holmes Model School, which follows the course of instruction laid down by the Protestant Committee of Public Instruction; the Eastern Townships College of Music, which is affiliated with the Toronto College of Music and follows the Toronto courses; and Bugbee Business College, which gives complete business courses. There is a cadet corps and a troop of Boy Scouts.

Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, in the southeastern part of Quebec, between Portland and Montreal, was established in 1842 on the lines of the great English public schools for boys, modified to meet Canadian requirements. In its seventy-five years of existence the school has graduated a large body of alumni who have become prominent in the life of the Dominion. The school is rich in traditions and there are many prizes and scholarships for both academic and athletic excellence. The school early recognized the value of athletics and its cadet corps is historic. The organization comprises an upper school and a preparatory department covering eight years of school work. J. Tyson Williams, the head master since 1910, B.A., Cambridge, has had long experience in English schools. The boys come from eastern Canada and the United States. A great many Americans have been educated at the school and there are about one hundred and fifty Old Boys in New York City, as well as a large number in various other centers.

Ursuline Convent of Quebec, Quebec, was founded in 1639 by an Ursuline nun of Tours. The first pupils were little Indian girls and children of French settlers but as the English came into Canada it became necessary to add instruction in English subjects and in 1830 the two languages were placed on the same footing. There are six grades of instruction, beginning with primary work and a two-year course in literature. Domestic economy and calisthenics are features.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Rothesay Collegiate School, Rothesay, nine miles from St. John, is a boarding school for boys established in 1877 by William Thompson, who conducted the school for a time coeducationally until 1891. In 1892 the school moved into larger quarters; in 1908 it was formally taken over by the Synod of the Diocese of Fredericton and Rev. W. R. Hibbard was appointed head master. The school has five forms and prepares for matriculation, admitting boys chiefly from New Brunswick, with a few from outside Canada. There is an Old Boys' Association.

The Rothesay School for Girls, Netherwood, Rothesay, opened in 1892 as an undenominational home school, providing for the girls who had until that time been received in Rothesay Collegiate School. The school admits only those who take the full course. The strong faculty and the small number of girls make possible small classes and careful supervision. Miss Susan Ganong, A.B., Smith, is the principal.

Mt. Allison Academy and Mt. Allison Commercial College, Sackville, is a Methodist boarding and day school for boys, organized in 1843. The Alumni Association offers two scholarships. Boys from out of town are expected to live at the academy. James M. Palmer, who has had a long teaching experience, has been principal for twenty-one years.

Mt. Allison Ladies' College, Sackville, founded in 1854, is an endowed boarding school established and controlled by the same body as the foregoing school for boys. The Conservatory of Music and the Art School have separate staffs and buildings.

NOVA SCOTIA

Mount St. Vincent Academy, Halifax, occupying a beautiful site overlooking the harbor, is conducted by the Sisters of Charity. More than ten per cent of the girls come from the United States and Cuba.

Halifax Ladies' College, Halifax, established in 1887, is affiliated with Dalhousie University. Instruction is given from kindergarten to college preparation, with especially good courses in the Conservatory of Music. Rev. Robert Laing is president.

King's College School, Windsor, until 1914 known as the Collegiate School, is the oldest residential school for boys in Canada. It was established in 1788 and since that time has occupied successive buildings. The school has been a great influence in the life of the eastern provinces and Newfoundland and has received many pupils from the United States and the West Indies. More than three thousand students have been trained within its walls, many of these having entered college. The school is under the direction of the board of governors of King's College. The course, proceeding from elementary work, prepares for the universities and the Royal Military and Naval Colleges. The present principal is Rev. W. Wallace

Judd, B.A., Trinity College, Toronto; M.A., Windsor, late house master at Ridley College.

Church School for Girls, Ltd., Windsor, popularly known as "Edgehill," is a boarding and day school for girls established in 1891. The school has grown rapidly, necessitating the construction of several additional buildings. Miss Gena Smith, Cambridge, late of King's Hall, Compton, is the principal.

Acadia Collegiate and Business Academy, Wolfville, a Baptist residential school for boys, established in 1829, was known until 1910 as Horton Academy. It is now under control of the board of governors of Acadia University. In February, 1915, the residence was burned, and new stone buildings are now completed. A few of the students come from the United States. Rev. W. L. Archibald, A.M., Chicago Univ., has been principal since 1910.

Acadia Ladies' Seminary, Wolfville, a boarding school for girls and young women, was founded in 1879, and, in affiliation with Acadia University, is under the same governors as Acadia Collegiate Academy. Rev. Henry T. De Wolfe, D.D., is principal.

WESTERN CANADA

St. Boniface College, across the river from Winnipeg, at St. Boniface, Man., is a Jesuit boarding and day school for boys, established in 1818 in a small hut by Father Provencher, afterward first bishop of St. Boniface. The school is affiliated with the University of Manitoba.

St. John's College, Winnipeg, Man., maintains one of the oldest boys' schools in western Canada under the direction of the Anglican Church in Canada. Rev. J. J. Robinson, D.D., is the head master.

Wesley College, Winnipeg, Man., incorporated in 1877, is a Methodist institution for boys, affiliated with the University of Manitoba. It maintains a preparatory school in addition to its collegiate work.

Brandon College, Brandon, Man., organized in 1899, is a coeducational Baptist college affiliated with McMaster University. The majority come from western Canada with a few from the United States. Mr. Everton A. Miller, M.A., McMaster, is principal of the academy.

Regina College, Regina, Sask., is a coeducational boarding and day school established in 1911 to meet the peculiar needs of the young men and women of this new region. It is controlled by a board of governors made up of leading citizens of the province. The principal is Rev. E. W. Stapleford, B.A.

Moose Jaw College, Moose Jaw, Sask., in its third year, is a Presbyterian secondary school for boys from Saskatchewan. Instruction is offered in academic and commercial subjects and music. Rev. Dr. A. A. Graham is at the head of a capable body of teachers.

Alberta College North, Edmonton, Alberta, a coeducational day and boarding school, founded in 1903, offers instruction in music, art, and expression, as well as commercial and academic courses.

Mt. Royal College, Calgary, Alberta, a Methodist coeducational school established in 1911, maintains a preparatory department with instruction in music and commercial subjects as well as academic work. Rev. G. W. Kerby is president.

St. Alban's College, Prince Albert, Sask., an Anglican Church day and residential school for girls, gives instruction from kindergarten to college matriculation. The Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of Saskatchewan is president, and Miss Janet Virtue, the principal.

The Collegiate School, Victoria, B.C., now in its thirty-second year, is the oldest private school in British Columbia. It is an Episcopal preparatory school for boys from seven years to seventeen. A. D. Muskett has been principal for six years.

St. Margaret's School, Victoria, B.C., a day and boarding school, was established in 1909 for the daughters of gentlepeople. An English-trained faculty offers instruction from kindergarten to preparation for university matriculation.

St. George's School, Victoria, B.C., is a day and boarding school accommodating about one hundred girls. The course of instruction prepares for high school examinations and McGill matriculation, the art department being emphasized. The faculty are nearly all English.

The University School, Victoria, B.C., a boys' school for boarders and day pupils formed by the union of two earlier schools, prepares for Canadian and American universities. Military instruction is given. The boys come from western Canada, Alaska, and the Pacific Coast.

Columbian College, New Westminster, B.C., established twenty-six years ago under the Methodist Church in Canada, has courses in secondary and commercial subjects, music, and art. The pupils are drawn mostly from the province. Rev. Dr. A. M. Sanford has been in charge for the past three years.

BOYS' SUMMER CAMPS

MAINE

Kahkou Camp and Canoe Tours has headquarters on Allagash Lake and is for older boys of sixteen and upward. Begun twenty-four years ago by A. S. Gregg Clarke, of Keewaydin Camp, it is owned and managed by Mr. Hooper, who gives part of his time to it. The boys may spend the whole of their time in real camp life or on trips down the Allagash, Penobscot, and St. John rivers, or divide their time between camp and trips.

Camp Wildwood, Sandbar Point, Moosehead Lake, Kinco, is a real camp in the Maine woods, which for eleven seasons has been conducted by Sumner R. Hooper, Harvard '95. Mr. Hooper has had a broad experience in teaching in the best preparatory schools,—for five years he was a house master at Milton Academy. For nineteen seasons he has camped under varied conditions with boys of all ages, and in recent years his entire time has been given to his summer camps. Wildwood exhibits the best features that have been developed in connection with summer camps. There is a tribe of Seton Indians at Wildwood in immediate charge of one of the counselors, who has made especial study of Mr. Seton's interesting plan. Much is made of nature study, woodcraft, campcraft, manual training, forestry, ornithology, wireless telegraphy, etc.

Camp Five Islands, Schoodic Lake, Rand Cove P.O., was established in 1906, and is conducted by F. H. Dodge, A.B., Yale, for nineteen years head teacher of the physical training department of Rutgers College. It is a recreation camp and has facilities for all forms of camp sports and athletics. The boys come largely from New Jersey and New York.

Camp Bai Yuka, on Lake Webb, which is six miles long, near Weld, Franklin County, has been for some years conducted in the nature of a large family, by John G. Campbell, a master in the St. James School, Maryland. Mr. Campbell is a man of sterling qualities, admirably supplemented by his wife. The camp has the same spirit as the school.

Camp Belgrade, Oakland, on Blake's Island in Lake Messalonskee or Snow Pond, the largest of the Belgrade Lakes, was established in 1911 by Frank H. Schrenk, A.M., B.S., Univ. of Penn., in connection with G. P. Blake, whose nearby farm supplies fresh provisions. Mr. Schrenk is a man of fine character, now a lecturer at Univ. of Penn., and an attorney in Philadelphia. While a recreation camp, tutoring is provided if desired.

Camp Merryweather, Great Pond, North Belgrade, is under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richards and their two sons, masters respectively in Groton and St. Paul's Schools, assisted by their two daughters. Mr. Richards and his sons are graduates of Harvard. Mrs. Richards is a daughter of Julia Ward Howe, and the author of many well-known books. It was established by them in 1900 and aims to combine home and family influences with camp life. The number of boys is kept at thirty-eight.

Camp Kennebec, on Salmon Lake, North Belgrade, is a well-organized camp with an efficient staff of university-trained men, including specialists in campcraft, woodcraft, manual training, etc. It was established in 1906 by Charles E. Fox and Louis M. Fleisher, the present directors. The boys, largely from wealthy Jewish families, are divided into "sections" of seven, four of the boys in one tent and the other three and the "section" master in another tent. Every boy must devote two hours each morning to school work.

Pine Island Camp, on a small island in Great Pond, the largest of the Belgrade Lakes, was established in 1902 and in 1909 was taken over by Eugene L. Swan, M.D. The boys come largely from well-to-do families of New York and Massachusetts, and the councilors are college men of refinement who have had experience with boys and camp life. Much is made of camping and canoeing trips and an auxiliary schooner yacht affords opportunities for extended salt water cruises.

Camp Maranacook, Readfield, situated on an island in Maranacook Lake, was established in 1908 by William H. Morgan, who is assisted by a corps of college men. Part of each day is devoted to the study of any subjects desired.

Camp Mowana, situated on Echo Lake, near Readfield, is a small camp for younger boys, established in 1912 by Mark H. C. Spiers. Mr. Spiers was formerly of the Wm. Penn Charter School, and has recently opened a school of his own,—The Spiers Junior School. Real camping is emphasized and each boy has certain duties to perform daily.

Camp Androscoggin, two hours from Portland, on an island in Lake Androscoggin, was established in 1906 by the present director, Edward M. Healy, of Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y. It is an efficiently organized and admirably administered camp, well equipped with facilities for manual training and piano lessons and camp sports. The boys come largely from the vicinity of New York. Some Jewish boys are accepted and many boys return from year to year.

Camp Cobbossee, Monmouth, on the shores of Lake Cobbossee-contee, Kennebec County, is a large, well equipped camp, maintained for thirteen seasons by Harry R. Mooney, who is in the insurance business in New York City. In connection with the camp is Cobbossee Colony of private bungalows and a farm. Jewish boys from nine to twenty years of age are accepted, and a large proportion return from year to year. The boys, largely from New York, are encouraged to spend some time each day in study.

Camp Quan-ta-ba-cook, on Lake Quantabacook, near Belfast, was established in 1914 by Herbert M. Bergamini, Litt.B., College of Physicians and Surgeons, and Oris S. Vickery, M.D. It is a small, well equipped camp.

Camp Penobscot, on Eagle Island in Penobscot Bay, opened in 1909, is a salt water camp, but spends three weeks of its season on Lake Saponic, inland. The director is Stephen B. Knowlton, A.B.,

Amherst, head of the English department of the Haverford School. Scoutcraft and manual training are taught the boys.

Medomak Camp, Washington, overlooking Medomak Lake, established in 1904, has long been under the sole ownership and management of Frank E. Poland, who has for six years been principal of the C. A. Daniels School in Malden, and has had sixteen years of experience as a public school principal. Mr. Poland is a man of high ideals and has the personality to insure success with his boys. He is assisted by a council of mature men, most of them professional educators, many of whom have been with the camp from four to ten seasons. Nature work, shop work, handicrafts, tutoring, tramping, and exploring are the chief activities. Four fifths of the boys come from Greater Boston, chiefly from the public schools, and fully one half return for a second year.

Camp Durrell, on a hundred-acre island off the Maine coast, between Boothbay and Rockland, is a large camp conducted for twenty-two years by the executive committee of the Massachusetts and Rhode Island Y. M. C. A. Camp Becket in the Berkshires is under the same management. The camp is divided into seniors, intermediates, and juniors. The director is Charles A. Jenney.

Boothbay Camp occupies Thorne Island, in the Kennebec river, three miles above Bath. It was established four years ago by A. R. Webster, A.B., after five years of summer camp work and a wide experience in teaching both in New England and later in the Middle West. The boys are from the Middle West and New England. There will be a separate camp started for seniors this season.

The Norway Pines Camp is on Casco Bay, twenty-five miles northeast of Portland at Sebasco. Established in 1898 by Dr. Walter A. Keyes, principal of the grammar department of Trinity School, New York City, it is a small camp, and Dr. Keyes is aiming rather to improve the efficiency of the camp than to increase its numbers. To all the boys he can give personal supervision. The patronage is largely from New York and vicinity.

Camp Casco, West Harpswell, Casco Bay, eighteen miles from Portland, will open this summer for boys from thirteen years of age upward under the direction of Edgar P. Paulsen, Principal, West Point Children's School, West Point, N.Y. Boy Scout laws and regulations will be followed and the boys will wear the Scout uniform.

Camp Kohut, Oxford, was opened by Dr. George A. Kohut, of the Kohut School, New York, at Hope Island, Casco Bay, in the summer of 1907. It is a large, well equipped camp attracting its patronage from the well-to-do Jewish families of the eastern and southern states.

Camp Oxford, Lake Whitney, Oxford, seven miles from Poland Springs, has been successfully conducted for sixteen years by Adalbert F. Caldwell, A.B., Colby, A.M., Harvard, formerly professor at De Pauw University. The instructors and councilors are all college men, a number of them specialists in baseball, swimming, and athletics. The patronage is from the middle-western and eastern states.

Kineo Camps, on Long Lake, Harrison, are conducted by Irving G. McColl, B.L., Univ. of Mich. '90. The original Kineo, established in 1902 by Dana L. Sears and George H. Sensuer, was sold in 1907 to Irving L. Woodman, who had previously been at Limerick, Me. He in turn sold Kineo in 1907 to Mr. McColl, removing a few miles down the lake. In 1913 Mr. McColl branched out with a whole chain of camps,—a girls' camp, Kineowatha, at Wilton, and the Blue Mountain Family Camps, for families with children, also at Wilton. Kineo is a large camp excellently equipped and organized. There is a permanent staff including army officers from West Point who are in charge of camp departments and riding lessons. The boys, chiefly from homes of wealth throughout the eastern states, are classified into three groups according to size, ability, and general development. All the usual camp sports and activities including rifle practice, riding, mountain trips, boxing, and wrestling are provided. A Boy Scout troop is maintained under West Point officers. The boys spend two weeks at Kineo Mountain Camp at the foot of Mt. Washington. See p. 545.

Camp Wyonee, on Long Lake, Harrison, forty miles inland from Portland, was opened in 1909 by Frederic H. Wilson, M.D., a practicing physician of New York City, who has had twelve years' experience in the capacities of physician and director of boys' camps. Only gentlemanly boys are accepted after a personal interview with the director. Athletics in every form are encouraged and there are opportunities for rifle practice under uniquely safe conditions. There is Boy Scout work under a specialist.

Camp Wildmere, Long Lake, Harrison, opened by Irving L. Woodman in 1900 at East Parsonsfield, removed to its present site in 1907. In 1915 it was operated by Mr. Dick as a branch of his Camp Idlewild, but in 1916 again came under the sole direction of Mr. Woodman assisted by William J. McConnell.

Camp Wigwam, Bear Lake, Harrison, is attractively located and well equipped. Established in 1910 by A. Mandelstam and Arnold M. Lehman, it was moved to this situation in 1913. The boys come largely from Jewish families in New York City with a few from other cities in the East and South.

Camp Katahdin, on Forest Lake, North Bridgton, established in 1900 by H. M. Cobb, is now owned by Clifton W. Loveland, and George E. Pike, senior master of the Powder Point School for Boys. Both have had a wide experience with boys.

Long Lake Lodge, on Long Lake, North Bridgton, is a summer tutoring school exclusively for older boys who must tutor for college and school examinations in the fall. No others are admitted, in order that the spirit of real work may be in no wise diminished. It has been conducted for fourteen seasons by Edwin Victor Spooner, Dartmouth '94 and Harvard Grad. School, instructor in French at Phillips Exeter Academy and formerly at Lawrenceville. Mr. Spooner is assisted by a corps of experienced tutors, representing a dozen colleges and schools, carefully selected for efficiency and personality. While all the usual camp recreations and athletics are enjoyed, the spirit of work prevails. In its first fourteen years boys from sixty preparatory schools were satisfactorily coached for examinations at twenty-eight colleges and universities. The camp is substantially equipped and well managed.

The Kingswood Camp, Bridgton, on Woods Pond, was originally opened in 1909 at Sanbornville, N.H., moving to its present permanent home in 1913. The camp is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph I. Underhill. Mr. Underhill was for seven years associated with Dr. Henderson at Marienfeld, and after nine years in charge of the younger boys of the Volkmann School of Boston, is now chief master of the Roger Ascham School, White Plains, N.Y. A man of charming personality he strongly appeals to younger boys. Mrs. Underhill admirably supplements his influence in giving the camp a genuine homelike atmosphere. The camp is for younger boys only, and the "seven" system is adhered to. The morning period is regularly given to school work, crafts, and nature study.

Camp Winona, Moose Pond, Denmark, has been maintained by C. E. Cobb since 1907. With Mrs. Cobb he conducts also Wyonegonic Camps for Girls and Denmark Inn and Camp for Adults, all in the vicinity. The boys are divided into two groups according to age. The younger boys occupy the Lower, and the older boys occupy the Upper Camp, both being in charge of Dr. Francis N. Maxfield, Univ. of Penn. These camps are admirably administered, fully equipped for all camp sports, and have justly been remarkably successful. A feature of 1916 is a branch camp at the seashore.

Moosehead Camp, Moose Pond, Denmark, is an old camp owned for many years by H. M. Riggs, Grafton, Mass., a Boston business man.

White Mountain Camp, Lake Sebago, now in its tenth season, was established by George L. Meylan, B.S., Harvard, A.M., Columbia, M.D., New York Univ., now As. Prof. Physical Education and Medical Director, Columbia Univ. The juniors and the seniors have separate camps and equipment, one eighth of a mile apart. Boxing, wrestling, shooting, shop work, and music are featured. The boys come chiefly from New England and New York.

Camp Wawenock, on Raymond Cape, Lake Sebago, about fifteen miles from Poland Springs, and twenty-five from Portland, originated in the Mediawisla Club, a nature club for boys. The camp was established eight years ago by Dr. W. C. Kendall, Bowdoin '85, who for over twenty-five years has been on the scientific staff of the United States Fish Commission. He is assisted by a capable staff of school and college men. Much attention is given to nature study, woodcraft, and scouting. The name is that of an aboriginal local tribe, and signifies "fearing nothing."

The Lanier Summer Camp, at Eliot, has for a number of summers been conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lanier, Jr. They gather, about them a considerable community of all ages who lead a simple life under the leadership of inspiring personalities. Much is made of nature work, of dramatics, particularly Biblical drama written by Mr. Lanier, and the boys "play Indian" in a poetic way, not slavishly following Ernest Thompson Seton. There is a camp for young boys, and a separate and slightly larger camp for girls from six up, each being limited to thirty. The camp is the summer season of a year-round school. The total attendance is about one hundred.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Thorn Mountain Tutoring School and Camp, Jackson, is for a small number of boys, opened in 1913 by Rev. George A. Bushee, who has had a long experience in social settlement and neighborhood work. Nature study, scoutcraft, and tutoring occupy the time.

Camp Pemigewasset, on a small lake near Pike, in the southern foothills of the White Mountains, has been efficiently maintained since 1908 by three doctors, Edwin and Edgar Fauver and Dudley B. Reed. Each is associate professor in physical education, respectively in Princeton Univ., Wesleyan Univ., and the Univ. of Chicago. All three are college A.B.'s as well as M.D.'s, and practicing physicians, and are especially fitted to deal with the physical needs of boys. Some have returned each year since the establishment of the camp.

Camp Moosilauke, near Pike, in the western foothills of the White Mountains, on the lake of the same name, is now in its thirteenth season. The director is Virgil Prettyman, Ph.D., principal of the Horace Mann School for boys, and C. W. Prettyman is assistant director. The school work is under the charge of John D. Neitz, of the Horace Mann School. The boys are divided into groups of seven, each under the supervision of a councilor. Tutoring, manual training, and technical instruction in automobile construction and repair are provided.

Camp Chocorua, near Tamworth, has for fifteen years been conducted on a large farm by S. G. Davidson, A.M., Litt.D., who is a Christian Scientist and a specialist with nervous and backward children. He has also a camp for girls and Zufrieden, a camp for adults. There is a separate department for young boys.

Camp Wellesley, Lake Ossipee, was established in 1899 by Edward A. Benner, who now gives his whole time to the interests of his camp. A special feature is the opportunity for sailing small boats on the lake, which is especially safe and free from sudden gusts. The boys receive instruction in nature work, various forms of manual activities, and have the privilege, under proper supervision, of target practice. Each boy has a share in some of the necessary work of maintaining the camp, this delegated responsibility being essentially a part of the training. Though the boys are given a good time, it is not a mere recreation camp, but actuated by serious educational intent.

Camp Fessenden, Lake Ossipee, was opened in 1913 by Walter L. Nourse, A.B., Dartmouth, John Porter, Jr., B.S., Amherst, and Ralph H. Pierce, A.B., Yale, the former two, masters at the Fessenden School, West Newton, Mass. It is a small camp, pleasantly located and adequately equipped, and reflecting the spirit of the school, from which many of the boys come. The directors and councilors are all well fitted to understand and supervise small boys. See p. 546.

Camp Wachusett, Little Asquam Lake, near Holderness, has been conducted since 1903 by the Rev. Lorin Webster, rector of the Holderness School, assisted by various college athletes. It utilizes a large two-story residence more suggestive of a summer boarding school than a camp. The boys come largely from New England.

Camp Aloha Summer School, Lake Asquam, has since 1904 been maintained by Dr. J. M. Kendall, master in St. Paul's School, Concord, assisted by T. Nelson, Ph.D., master in St. Paul's School, and E. G. Kendall, master in the Hill School, all of whom are Yale men. The purpose is efficiently to prepare boys for fall examinations under expert tutors, and only boys who intend to do serious work are considered. Naturally most of the boys come from St. Paul's and other leading schools preparing for Yale and Harvard.

Camp Algonquin, on Asquam Lake, Holderness, is the oldest existing summer camp in New England, and has been personally conducted by Edwin DeMeritte, a veteran school master, of the DeMeritte School, Boston, since 1886. The policy and program of camp life at Algonquin has been developed independently of other summer camps. Much is made of nature study in all its phases, under the direction of Dr. Alfred Gundersen. A U.S. Life Saving Corps and a Boy Scout troop are maintained. The boys learn to shoot under proper supervision. They sleep in dormitories and there is a separate building for the younger ones. See p. 507.

Camp Pasquaney, Bridgewater, has since 1895 been maintained by Dr. E. S. Wilson, Ph.B., Ph.D., Yale '85, who gives his whole time to the interests of his camp. Its success is due to his personal supervision, ably assisted by the unremitting labors of F. R. Kneeland, Columbia '99, and of E. W. C. Jackson, Harvard '02, an instructor in the Haverford School. Without advertising except through its patrons and old boys, the camp list is always filled in advance. The patronage is largely from wealthy and fashionable families. The tone and temper of the men in charge are admirably reflected in the spirit of the camp.

Camp Mowgli, East Hebron, is a camp for young boys, those under ten being in the "Cub" department. It has been maintained by Mrs. Oscar Holt since 1903 on her large estate known as the "Jungle." Alcott Farrar Elwell, Harvard '10, is the assistant director, and the councilors are college men. Something more than mere recreation is aimed at and the camp life is the result of long years of experience.

Camp Idlewild, on an island in Lake Winnepesaukee, is one of the oldest summer camps, and has been conducted by John M. Dick, B.D., Yale, since 1892. It was formerly at Silver Lake, Mass., and moved to Winnepesaukee in 1896. During this time over twelve hundred boys have been enrolled. There is a staff of mature camp leaders, in addition to the councilors annually appointed. Mr. Dick is a broker in mining stocks; and the camp has long been a successful business proposition.

Camp Passaconaway, on Bear Island, Lake Winnepesaukee, is conducted for young boys by Wallace E. Richmond and Alfred W. Dickinson, both teachers in the Newton High School, Newtonville, Mass. Mrs. Richmond and Mrs. Dickinson act as camp mothers. Besides the usual sports, scoutcraft and manual training are taught.

Camp Wyanoke, Winter Harbor, Lake Winnepesaukee, for eight years has been conducted on its present site by Walter H. Bentley, recorder of Dummer Academy. The councilors are men of maturity and broad educational experience. The tents accommodate seven boys and a councilor. Shop work and military drill are features and tutoring is arranged if required. The boys, usually from New England, also represent many other portions of the United States.

Camp Tecumseh, Moultonboro, near Melvin Village, on Lake Winnepesaukee, is a large camp, established in 1902 by Alex Grant and Dr. George W. Orton, athletic instructor in the University of Pennsylvania, who succeeded Mike Murphy. The chief interest of the camp is athletics.

The Wolfeboro Camp, Rust Pond, near Wolfeboro, formerly called Hill Camp, is a tutoring camp. It was established in 1909 at Plymouth, Mass., by George D. Robins, A.B., Wesleyan, of the Hill School, with whom are now associated in ownership and management Frederick Fraser, A.B., Harvard, John D. Warnock, Ph.D., Yale, both masters in the Hill School, and Edward C. Durfee, A.B., Williams, master in the Chestnut Hill Academy. They are assisted by a strong staff of councilors and instructors, most of whom are masters in the two above-mentioned schools. The boys likewise come largely from these two schools. Boys are prepared either for the colleges or for classes in leading preparatory schools.

Camp Winnepesaukee, on the southeastern shore of the lake, was established in 1909, and is now solely under the ownership and control of John G. Anderson, A.M., Amherst and Columbia, a champion golf player. Golf and hikes are featured. The camp's own cows supply milk. The boys come largely from eastern Massachusetts.

Camp Mishe-Mokwa, West Alton, occupies Redhead Island in Lake Winnepesaukee. The director, L. Theodore Wallis, physical director in the Browne and Nichols School, has for his chief purpose the all-round physical development of the boy. "Aquaplaning" is a feature and was developed at the camp. See p. 547.

Camp Penacook, Lake Keyser, across the lake from North Sutton, in the Sunapee Region, was established in 1898 by Professor Louis Rouillion of Columbia University, New York City. It has been conducted during the past thirteen years by R. B. Mattern, M.S., a science teacher at the Irving School, Tarrytown, N.Y.

Mariensfeld, Chesham, was established by Dr. C. Hanford Henderson in 1896 on the upper Delaware, and two years later moved to its present site, on Silver Lake. Here were early tested and adopted many of the characteristic features which have made the boys' summer camp, at its best, an important educational movement. After sixteen years of summer camp work Dr. Henderson transferred the control of the camp to Stacy B. Southworth, of the Boston Latin School, and Raphael J. Shortlidge, of The Choate School, who had been intimately associated with him for many summers. The boys are divided into groups of seven, according to age, who eat and sleep together, each in charge of a special master. The life is simple, the beds hard, and the duties homely.

Camp Namaschaug, Lake Spofford, ten miles from Keene, is a vacation school and camp. The Very Rev. J. J. Griffin, Ph.D., is principal, and J. T. B. Fisher, A.B., is director. The boys are chiefly from Roman Catholic families of the eastern United States.

Wawona, Swanzey Lake, was started by Oscar E. Bourne in 1899. A special feature of Wawona is the year-round tutoring camp where boys to whom the outdoor life is a necessity may have its advantages through all the seasons.

Camp Monadnock, Thorndike Lake, at Jaffrey, is a camp for young boys, established in 1914 by Frederick S. Ernst, Harvard '12, master in the Noble and Greenough School, Boston, Mass. The councilors are all recent university graduates or undergraduates.

South Pond Cabins, on the south slope of Monadnock, Fitzwilliam, is a small camp opened in 1908, limited to twenty boys. It aims to provide a proper combination of work and play. The active heads, Reginald H. Howe, Jr., Harvard '01, Sorbonne '12, formerly with Camp Pasquaney, and Rollins McC. Gallagher, A.M., Harvard '06, are both masters in the Middlesex School. The boys come from Middlesex and other leading schools of New England.

VERMONT

Camp Winape, on Seymour Lake, East Charleston, a large and successful camp, has for five seasons been conducted by S. W. Berry, its owner, who is a teacher in the Irving School, New York City. The councilors are chosen for character rather than athletic ability, and provide expert supervision in tutoring and nature study.

St. Ann's Camp, Isle La Motte, was established in 1892 by St. Ann's Academy, New York City, which is conducted by the Marist Brothers. The camp is well equipped and the expense is kept very low. While it is particularly for the boys of the Academy, others are admitted. Naturally the patronage is almost wholly from Roman Catholic families of New York City.

Camp Kill Kare, St. Albans Bay, on Lake Champlain, now in its tenth season, is conducted by Ralph F. Perry, Univ. of Vermont, an instructor in the High School, Morristown, N.J. All forms of athletics are encouraged and competitions are held for prizes and medals. It is a well established camp with senior and junior divisions.

Camp Vermont, Grand Isle, Lake Champlain, is conducted by E. N. Gerrish, who has all his life been a teacher and high school principal. Trips by steamer and motorboat and horseback riding are featured. The councilors are all college fraternity men.

Camp Winnisquam, Milton, overlooking Winnisquam Bay, twelve miles north of Burlington, was established in 1905. For the last three years the camp has been conducted by Mr. Ira A. Flinger and Mr. Wm. S. Spencer, head master and English master respectively of the Huntington School, Boston. The boys are divided into three groups, according to age. Provision is made for music, horseback riding, photography, nature study, and tutoring.

Camp Iroquois, on the eastern shore of Lake Champlain, seven miles north of Burlington, is conducted by W. L. Hazen and Theo E. Lyon, head masters of the Barnard School, who for fifteen years have been actively associated in conducting a boys' camp. Boys are divided according to age into seniors, juniors, and sub-juniors. Naturally the patronage is largely from New York City and vicinity.

Camp Champlain, on the shore of Malletts Bay, Lake Champlain, nine miles north of Burlington, was established in 1894 and is conducted under the auspices of the Berkeley School now controlled by William H. Brown, connected with the firm of Simon

Borg & Co. The camp is beautifully located and well equipped. The staff is made up of experienced teachers from the Berkeley and other schools, and undergraduates. The boys are largely from refined families of New York and vicinity.

Waramaug Wigwam, on Lake Dunmore, limited to thirty young boys, is a branch of Keewaydin Camps. The camp is under the direct supervision of Stephen A. Breed, M.I.T. '93, who was formerly associated with C. Hanford Henderson in Camp Marienfeld. It is preparatory to the Keewaydin Camps in the Canadian woods. The camp conducts the Moosalamoo Tribe of Woodcraft Indians. The boys receive special training in nature study and all the usual camp activities. A ten-day canoe trip is made on the Otter river and Lakes Champlain and George.

Camp Passumpsic, at Ely, on Lake Fairlee near Camp Quinibeck, established in 1914 by Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Newcomer, is now under the management of D. Ralph Starry, co-partner in the control of the camp with William W. Clendenin of Quinibeck. It is a camp for young boys, where wireless telegraphy, mountain hiking, horseback riding, and all sports are offered under the supervision of college men.

Campanoosuc, near Thetford Center, for boys from seven to fourteen, was established nine years ago by William E. Sargent and since his death has been carried on by Mrs. Sargent, a teacher in the New Bedford High School. She is ably assisted by Ellwyn G. Campbell, master of a school in the same city.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Wampanoag Camps, on Buzzards Bay, are conducted by Mrs. Bertrand Taylor and her son Aldrich Taylor, Harvard '14, who are actuated by high educational purposes. The camp for young boys is in its tenth season. The "Club" for older boys will open on an island site this summer. Wampanoag has been splendidly managed and disciplined, and provides the attractions of the woods, fresh and salt water. Woodcraft and scouting are made much of. Tutoring is discouraged, but provided if desired. Many of the boys are from Greater Boston.

Mann's Camp, Mirror Lake, near Rutland, Mass., is a small camp for young boys maintained by Mathew Mann, who has been swimming instructor and coach at Yale University, U.S. Naval Academy, the Brookline High Sch. and Gym. A. A., and now at the New York Athletic Club. Mr. Mann was with Dr. Sargent at the Sargent Camp for Girls at the start. Swimming, diving, and boxing are here taught under the personal direction of Mr. Mann, who is known as "Daddy."

CONNECTICUT

Camp Eastford, on Crystal Lake, in northeastern Connecticut, is conducted for boys under sixteen by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marvin. For twenty-five years, in connection with the ministry, Mr. Marvin has been interested in boys, camps, clubs, and lecturing. The camp is well located and admirably administered. The boys are usually employed during the morning in manual training, forestry, nature study, and the usual work about camp.

Camp Wonposet, on Bantam Lake, the largest lake in Connecticut, in the Litchfield Hills, is a well administered camp, established in 1905. Robert Tindale, the director, a New York City sexton and undertaker, is assisted by W. W. Thomas and a strong staff. The patronage is largely from New York. Boating, target practice, tennis, and excursions are among the sports.

NEW YORK

Camp Penn, on Valcour Island, Lake Champlain, seven miles from Plattsburg, was established in 1905 by the director, Mr. C. K. Taylor. It is a real camp, not a summer school nor disciplinary camp. The boys on arrival are divided into groups of four or five under a councilor and each group is assigned to its own camp site, pitches its tent or constructs its bungalow. The boys, largely from Philadelphia, are divided into juniors and seniors. Real campcraft, woodcraft, and all-round development rather than school work is the main object.

Adirondack Summer Art School, Saranac Lake, follows the pre-vocational methods in drawing, painting, modeling, carving, and nature study advocated by J. Liberty Tadd, director of the Industrial Art School, Philadelphia, who has maintained this summer school for twenty-three years.

Camp Pok-o'-Moonshine, on Long Pond, Willsborough, will have its eleventh season this summer. Dr. Charles A. Robinson, of Peekskill Academy, Peekskill, N.Y., is owner and director. The usual camp recreations are enjoyed by boys from eighteen states.

Camp Dudley, Westport-on-Lake Champlain, is the oldest existing summer camp. It was founded by Sumner F. Dudley in 1885 and is conducted by the New York state executive committee of the Y. M. C. A. It is splendidly and completely equipped, but is a low-priced camp which has accomplished an enormous amount of work. All phases of athletics, woodcraft, nature study, and photography are given attention. H. C. Beckman, Ph.B., Yale '06, has for twenty years been a Dudleyite, and since 1908 director.

Camp Riverdale, in the Adirondacks, has been conducted by Frank S. Hackett, head master of Riverdale Country School, since 1912. Every boy of twelve years or over becomes a member of the Boy Scouts of America as he learns to fill the requirements. Mountain climbing, exploration, and wood life are characteristic. The age limits are ten to fifteen years, but the "old boys" are allowed to return. This is distinctly a wilderness camp, but the influence of Mrs. Hackett pervades the home life, and good manners and refinement are required.

Schroon Lake Camp, established in 1906 by Dr. I. S. Moses, is well equipped for eighty Jewish boys. Competitions are held in all forms of athletics.

Paradox Camp, Paradox Lake, has for six years been conducted by Dr. Edward Goldwater, who was formerly with Dr. Moses.

Adirondack Camp, on Lake George, has since 1904 been conducted by Dr. Elias G. Brown, a physician and educator of broad experience in camp work, who conducts the Mountain School at Allaben, New York. The boys receive systematic physical training with all the usual camp activities.

Camp Fitzhugh, on Sodus Bay, Lake Ontario, midway between Rochester and Oswego, is a summer tutoring school and recreation camp for boys, maintained since 1900 by Aldice G. Warren, of the Army and Navy Preparatory School, Washington, D.C., assisted by masters from leading preparatory schools of the eastern states. Scoutcraft and dramatics are made features of the camp life.

Camp Gahada, on Lake Tawiskarou in the Adirondacks, was established in 1909 by William B. Efner, a newspaper man, of Schenectady. The head councilors are Dr. Wm. L. Anderson of Yale, and A. D. Sutherland, coach at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. The boys, all of Christian parentage, come from twenty important cities in nine states. Provision is made for manual training, nature study, woodcraft, and all the usual camp sports.

Greenkill Camp, on First Binnewater, Ulster Co., in the Catskills, has been maintained for ten years by the West Side Y. M. C. A. of New York, and the charges cover only actual cost. Long under the direction of Philip D. Fagans, now of the Woodcraft League, this season it will be in charge of Wilfred C. Ackerly. The boys live in groups of seven with a leader in each tent.

Camp Wake Robin, Woodland, is in the southern Catskills in the Roxmor community of camps and bungalows. It is in its twelfth year and is owned by E. B. Miller, Woodland. H. W. Little, A.B., of the Lincoln High School, Jersey City, is the director. It is for young boys, who come mostly from Greater New York.

PENNSYLVANIA

Camp Susquehannock, on Tripp Lake, was established in 1905 as a summer tutoring school and recreation camp. George C. Shafer, A.B., Princeton '03, formerly instructor at the Lawrenceville School, is assisted by a strong staff of councilors, graduates of the leading eastern colleges. The boys come largely from private schools of the eastern states.

Camp Choconut, near Friendsville, at an elevation of 1800 feet, is one of the pioneer camps, established in 1896 by Dr. Roland J. Mulford, head master of the Ridgefield School. His sister, Mrs. George L. Winlock, has been interested in the camp from the beginning, particularly for her own sons, the elder of whom has for sixteen years been a member of the camp as boy and councilor. Since 1902 Mrs. Winlock has had charge of the younger boys, and for several years now the management has been wholly under her control. The councilors are college men, and there are also young women, who help to maintain the standard of good manners.

Camp Pokanoket, on Lake Carey, now in its seventh season, offers in addition to the usual camp athletic sports, manual training, dramatics, etc. Excursions and hikes are taken throughout the season to Niagara and points of interest. The directors are Joseph W. Oliver, B.S., A.M., instructor in the Manual Training High School, Brooklyn, and Morris G. Michaels of the De Witt Clinton High School, New York.

The Dan Beard Outdoor Scout-School, Lake Teedyuskung, Pike County, opens in 1916 on the site where for thirty years Mr. Beard has had his private hunting and fishing "shack." Mr. Beard is well known as a pioneer in the Boy Scout movement and as a writer and illustrator. One may be sure that boys with him will learn to love the outdoors and be efficiently taught innumerable interesting kinks of woodcraft and scoutcraft. Capt. J. H. Beard and Lieut. H. W. Bauer, who have long been associated with him, will assist in the camp management. There will be a chance for study to those who need it.

Pole Bridge Camp, Matamoras, was established in 1914 by Ray Palmer. Since his death it has been carried on by his father, William E. Palmer, Ph.D., minister of Trinity M. E. Church, Paterson, N.J., and a brother. Much is made of music, with instruction in singing, brass band, etc.

Camp Yapeechu, Milford, was established in 1900 as the first offshoot of Camp Pasquaney, at which Charles F. Wilson, the director and owner, was for five years a councilor. Camping and exploring trips and nature study are offered in addition to the usual camp sports. It is largely for young boys.

Bushkill Farms Camp, Bushkill, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, is owned and supervised by Dr. J. L. Manasses and A. W. C. Young, of Philadelphia, assisted by a group of college men. Sports, nature study, handicrafts, and dancing are taught. Special attention is given to swimming. An adjunct camp for men is in charge of a physical training expert.

VIRGINIA

Blue Ridge Camp, near Ivy Depot, in the Blue Ridge Mountains, was established in 1909 and is conducted by R. Warner Wood, A.M., Univ. of Va., who also conducts it as a winter tutoring camp. Particular attention is given to the outdoor sports, especially track, baseball, and swimming, a swimming pool having been built for the latter.

WEST VIRGINIA

Camp Greenbrier, Alderson, high up in the Alleghany Mountains, on the banks of the Greenbrier river, is distinctly an athletic camp. The camp is in its eighteenth year, under the management of Dr. Walter Hulihan, A.M., Ph.D., Univ. of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. Track athletics, baseball, trap and rifle shooting, and water sports are featured, the camp maintaining several teams and holding frequent competitions for championships. The academic department offers instruction in all branches of studies. Over one thousand boys from all parts of the South and East have been enrolled since its establishment in 1898.

NORTH CAROLINA

Laurel Park Camp, near Hendersonville, is an "athletic and educational" camp, planned mainly as a vacation place for boys, but offering instruction if desired. It has been maintained since 1912 by Prof. I. B. Brown, A.B., Coll. of Charleston, for twenty-three years head of the Classical Department of Porter Military Academy, Charleston, S.C. The majority of the boys come from the South.

The French Broad Camp, on the river of the same name, near Brevard, twenty-two hundred feet above sea level, is for recreation and study. It is under the joint direction of John W. Moore, academie, Henry E. Raines, business, and L. S. Le Tellier, athletics. A regular program of school work of two and a half hours a day is provided for those desiring it, in subjects specified by the boys' parents. All forms of outdoor athletics are provided. The boys come chiefly from private schools throughout the southern states.

Camp Sapphire on Deer Park Lake, Brevard, calls itself "athletic and educational," and is a big, busy camp for boys between ten and twenty years, established three years ago. Most of the councilors are instructors in southern private schools and colleges. The directors are W. McK. Fetzer, athletic director at Davidson College, and R. A. Fetzer. In addition to tutoring, manual training, and mountain trips, every form of athletic and aquatic sport is encouraged. The boys come mainly from all over the South.

OHIO

Camp Wah-pe-ton, situated on the shore of Lake Erie, near Ashtabula, is conducted by C. A. Duff of the Y. M. C. A. of Painesville. It offers both tutoring and the regular outdoor sports.

INDIANA

Interlaken Summer Camp, at Silver Lake, Rolling Prairie, is the summer season of Dr. Rumely's Interlaken School, and, like the school, is inspired by the New School movement. Manual activities of useful economic value are the permanent feature. The boys have a share in agricultural work of the farm, haymaking and harvesting, and in the construction of buildings, not merely doing the work but taking part in designing and supervising, according to their capacity. Seven members of the school staff are in charge with assistants, and there are several women to help with the smaller boys, all under the direction of O. P. Pitts, A.B., B.S. See p. 513.

The Culver Summer Schools, on Lake Maxinkuckee, maintained by the Culver Military Academy, include three separate departments, The Culver Summer Naval School, established in 1902, The Cavalry School, established in 1907, for boys over fourteen, and The School of Woodcraft, for boys under fourteen, established four years ago. All afford an opportunity for healthy outdoor life with all the forms of athletics and water sports. Some of the morning hours are given to the study of school subjects. The Naval School is equipped with navy cutters, and boat drills and rifle practice are a part of the system. In the Cavalry School horsemanship is taught by an experienced cavalry man. The Woodcraft School is under the immediate charge of Dillon P. Wallace, writer and explorer. Forestry, natural history, and campcraft are taught.

MICHIGAN

Camp Kenmore, a "Play School," on Ford Lake, near Fountain, is conducted by Rev. W. H. MacPherson, of Joliet, Ill., and Prof. P. G. Wright, Williamstown, Mass. It is the result of ten years' experience in camp work and has been four years on its present site. The boys govern themselves, and have a mayor, commissioners, and town meeting.

Sosawagaming Camp, beautifully located in the Huron Mountain Country at the mouth of the Yellow Dog river, on the shore of Lake Superior, thirty miles above Marquette, was established four years ago by Clarence E. Snyder, A.M., Illinois Wesleyan, who spent two years at the University of Goettingen, and was for fourteen years instructor at Girton School, Winnetka, Ill. Recently Mr. Snyder established a winter outdoor school on Captiva Island on the southern Gulf Coast of Florida, thus providing for the year-round schooling and open-air life. Gentlemanly boys from ten to twenty years of age are accepted after interview. There are three auxiliary camps to which trips are made. See p. 525.

Kamp Kee-Mo-Sah-Bee, a summer camp and school of woodcraft at Mullet Lake, will open this year under the direction of Charles W. Yeager, Gymnasium and Athletic Director at the Detroit University School.

WISCONSIN

Wisconsin Highlands Camp is situated on Plum Lake in the center of the "Park Region of Wisconsin." It is under the direction of William J. Monilaw, M.D., and was established in 1904. Boys are divided into three groups according to age. A camp for parents and other adults is maintained across the lake.

Camp Winnepe, at Eagle River, was established in 1910 and is under the management of Homer L. Thomas of Smith Academy, and Elles T. Marriott, Yeatman High School, St. Louis, Mo., assisted largely by high school teachers from the same city. Every form of athletics is enjoyed and trips are made to a branch camp twenty miles off. The camp is divided into seniors and juniors.

Camp Minocqua, on Tomahawk Lake, Minocqua, established in 1904, is directed by John P. Sprague, M.D., Grinnell, Ia. The boys are graded according to age in three groups, each limited to about sixteen boys. The usual camp sports and aquatics are provided. The patronage is largely from Chicago.

Keewatin Camp, Prairie du Chien, has been conducted since 1902 by James H. Kendrigan of the Keewatin Academy. His councilors are of the faculty of the school. The juniors and seniors are kept in separate divisions and differently managed. The boys may sleep either in tents or the dormitory. There are branches at Mercer, Wis., Ely, Minn., and Aitikoken, Ont.

Camp Indianola, on Lake Mendota, Madison, is a beautifully located and well equipped camp. It was established in 1907 and is conducted by F. G. Mueller, an instructor at St. John's Military Academy, from which school come many of the boys and councilors. Tutoring is made a special feature. Much is made of music and the councilors are musicians.

MONTANA

Cedarvale Ranch and Camps, Hillsboro P.O., is near Yellowstone Park, in the Big Horn Mountains. It is thirty miles from a town at an elevation of four thousand feet and offers all the interest of a western ranch. It was opened to the public in 1914 by its owner, G. William Barry, M.D. There is motorboating on the Big Horn and hunting and fishing in the mountains round about.

WYOMING

Blackwater Camp, on the north fork of the Shoshone river, in the Rocky Mountains, forty miles from Cody and fifteen miles from Yellowstone National Park, was established in 1915 by Bronson C. Rumsey, Yale '02. A two weeks' trip is taken with pack ponies.

ARIZONA

Evans Summer Tutoring Camp, Flagstaff, at an elevation of seven thousand feet, is maintained during the summer months by H. David Evans of the Evans School at Mesa. Camping trips are made to many points of interest throughout the surrounding region.

CALIFORNIA

Twin Oaks Ranch School, San Marcos, San Diego Co., has been maintained since 1905 by Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Jordan. It is a small camp which offers young boys an outdoor summer life in the mountain valleys of southern California.

CANADA

The Keewaydin Camps, on Manitou Island, Lake Timagami, in the Nipising District of Ontario, are in a great government forest reserve. This incorporated organization has grown out of the camp established in 1893 by A. S. Gregg Clarke, Harvard '93. Mr. Clarke is assisted by a competent staff of teachers in representative preparatory schools, including two physicians, and by Indian guides and hunters from the Hudson Bay Company's posts. The three separate camps are beautifully located and completely equipped. Timagami Wigwam, for older fellows, is on the shore of the Lake at the foot of Devil's Mountain. A certificate is given those boys who successfully pass a rigid examination in campcraft and woodcraft. Tutoring is provided for and the staff is unusually competent. The Keewaydin Canoe Trips are planned as the result of long experience and are well organized and afford opportunity for real roughing it and exploration of the more remote portions of the Canadian wilderness. Manitou Wigwam, for young boys from twelve to fifteen, was organized as a separate camp in 1904.

Minne-Wawa, on the Lake of Two Rivers, Algonquin Provincial Park, established in 1910 and conducted by W. L. Wise, Ph.B., Syracuse Univ., an instructor in Bordentown Military Academy, assisted by N. W. Fradd, the physical director of Bordentown.

Camp Otter, on Otter Lake, two miles from Dorset, is entering its seventh season under the direction of Charles V. P. Young, Cornell '99. It is a small camp from which boys learn the life of the wilds and gain some educational training. Tutoring is provided.

Camp Kagawong, on Balsam Lake, Rosedale P.O., has for ten seasons been conducted by Ernest A. Chapman, director of physical training of St. Andrew's College, Toronto. In addition to the usual sports, sailing, shooting, shop work, physical education, and life saving instruction are made much of.

Camp Mooswa, Lake Annis, N.S., eighteen miles from Yarmouth, has since 1909 been conducted by George H. Cain, A.B. Mr. Cain, a teacher in the Cambridge High and Latin School, has had fifteen years' experience in camping and three years of foreign travel. His influence is supplemented by that of Mrs. Cain.

Aldercliff, Weymouth, N.S., has for four seasons been conducted by Horace Holden, assisted by Karl S. Wells, both of the Morrissetown School. It offers a summer outing for twelve boys.

GIRLS' SUMMER CAMPS

MAINE

Kineowatha Camp, Wilton, seventy-five miles north of Portland, Mr. McColl's camp for girls, is in charge of Elizabeth Bass, A.B., who for two years was instructor of physical training at the Univ. of Wis., and for four years director of physical training and acting dean of women at Colby College. The staff includes a West Point U.S. Army officer for riding instruction and an Annapolis U. S. Naval Academy man for swimming. All the usual camp activities, including horseback riding, water sports, hiking, arts and crafts, and nature study, are provided. See p. 544.

Camp Runoia, on Great Pond, Belgrade, seventy miles from Portland, has been maintained for nine seasons by Miss Jessie C. Pond, principal of the Prospect Hill School, Newark, and Miss Lucy H. Weiser, of the Horace Mann School, New York City. Horseback riding and all the usual camp sports are provided.

Camp Abena, on Great Lake, the largest of the Belgrade Lakes, has for ten seasons been conducted by Professor and Mrs. Avery E. Lambert, of Middlebury College, and Mrs. Lambert's sisters, the Misses Hersom. Miss Hortense Hersom, the principal of the camp council, a graduate of the State Normal School, Farmington, Me., and Teachers College, Columbia Univ., is now a teacher at the Sidwells' Friends School, Washington, D.C. In addition to the usual camp sports, horseback riding and archery are indulged in. The girls come from eastern states and from the Middle West.

Camp Glen Eyrie, on Salmon Lake, in the Belgrade Chain, is a small camp, opened in 1913 by Miss Beatrice E. Tandy, Yonkers, N.Y. She is assisted by her mother and father. The girls come largely from the public schools about Yonkers. The camp name, Glen Eyrie, means "Nest in the Glen."

Camp Teconnet occupies the whole of Teconnet Island in China Lake, about twenty miles northeast of Augusta. It was established in 1912 and is owned by Charles F. Towne, assistant superintendent of schools, Providence, Herbert L. Rand, Pickering School, Salem, and Dr. Arthur G. Rand, Nantucket. It is conducted under the personal direction of Mr. and Mrs. Towne.

Mars Hill Camp, Crawford Lake, Union, opens for the first season in 1916, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Marcus assisted by the Misses Littlehales. It offers an opportunity for good music, both vocal and instrumental.

Alford Lake Camp, South Hope, is on a fresh-water lake only a few miles from the ocean. It has been conducted since 1907 by Miss Florence M. Marshall, A.B., and Miss Susan M. Kingsbury, Ph.D. The camp is connected with a farm of one hundred and fifteen acres. Instruction is given in cooking and in arts and crafts. The girls come largely from New York and New England.

Eden, a camp for girls, at Bluff Point, Long Lake, Harrison, was established in 1910 by F. M. Gracey, instructor in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. While Mr. Gracey is owner and business manager, the camp is under the personal direction of Miss Florence E. Smith. Mr. Gracey has for several years conducted a camp information bureau. There is a council of the Camp Fire Girls. Eden Club, under the direction of Mrs. Gracey, is for older girls.

Camp Wildwood, Woods Lake, Bridgton, opens this season for Jewish girls under the leadership of Miss Rose Sommerfeld, a well-known social worker in New York, and for many years in charge of the Clara de Hirsch Home. Associated with her is Mrs. Bella Hirsch, long an active worker in the Hudson Guild. Nature study tramps will be featured.

Wyonegonic Camps, located at intervals on the shore of Moose Pond, Denmark, forty miles northwest of Portland, were established in 1902 by Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Cobb. Mr. Cobb was formerly a teacher in the Moses Brown School, Providence. This is the pioneer and largest camp for girls and has remained for fourteen years under the same management. So popular a camp has it become that now three separate camps are maintained that the girls may be classified as to age and that the number in any one camp may not be too great for personal attention. About two hundred girls in all, from eight to twenty-one years of age, are enrolled from all parts of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb and Miss M. Rose Giles, Bridgton, Me., for many years head councilor, give their whole year to the supervision of these camps. Miss Mary S. Barbour has been for some years in charge of the junior camp. About sixty councilors assist in the three camps. The camps are beautifully located and fully equipped, well organized, and well superintended. Mr. and Mrs. Cobb also run the Denmark Inn, at the foot of the lake, and adjacent is Denmark Encampment for adults and girls over twenty. All the usual camp recreations are provided for.

Camp Accomac, on Peabody Pond, eight miles from Bridgton, and thirty-five miles from Portland, was established in 1911 by Miss Corinne B. Arnold, principal of one of Philadelphia's largest public schools and a writer and lecturer. The camp is patronized by the exclusive Jewish families of Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, etc. It has been highly successful from the first.

Camp Wabunaki, on an island in Hancock Lake, near Hillside, has been conducted six years by Miss Amy Dunlap, Registrar of Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Ammerman. Instruction is given in the regular athletic sports, nature study, archery, and handicrafts, and frequent mountain tramps are taken.

Tripp Lake Camp, Poland, maintained since 1910 by Miss C. Bettelheim of New York City, is a large and successful camp for Jewish girls.

Camp Songo, Naples, is a camp for Jewish girls, established in 1913, maintained by Mrs. Sophie R. H. Levy, and Mrs. Alice M. H. Heniger, writer, lecturer, and founder of the Children's Educational Theatre, New York City. Emphasis is given to athletic sports.

Highland Nature Camps, on Lake Sebago, South Naples, include separate senior and junior divisions and are patronized by the wealthy Jewish families of the eastern states. Established in 1910 by Miss Estelle B. Davidsburg and Mrs. Eugene H. Lehman, the camp is excellently organized and administered. The girls come largely from New York City.

Sebago-Wohelo Camp, on Lake Sebago, South Casco, has been maintained since 1910 by Mrs. Charlotte V. Gulick, the wife of Dr. Luther H. Gulick, author and publicist. Dr. and Mrs. Gulick started Camp Gulick, on the Thames River, Conn., as a family camp, in 1888. The Camp Fire Girls of America originated at this camp, and to the furthering of this wholesome educational movement Mrs. Gulick gives her whole time and Dr. Gulick is president of the national association. Dr. Gulick's brother and his wife conduct Camp Aloha, and Mrs. Farnsworth, of Camp Hanoum, is connected with the same family. The watchword, "Wohelo," of the Camp Fire Girls is derived from the first letters of their slogans, work, health, and love. It is education that a girl gets at this camp,—education of personality and appreciation of nature. Incidentally she may learn something of primitive industries such as jewelry making, weaving, folk dances, as well as cooking, and become an initiate in all the lore and training known only to the Camp Fire Girls.

Wildwood Lodge, on Horn Lake, North Limington, is a small camp maintained for the past eight years by Miss F. Helen Mayo and Miss Elizabeth M. Moody, both teachers in the Roxbury public schools. All the usual camp sports, together with esthetic and folk dancing, are offered. It admits girls of all ages.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Chatham Woods Camp, on Upper Kimball Pond, South Chatham, near the Maine line, is under the personal direction of Katherine Lewis Bishop, a teacher of domestic science, Bridgeport, Conn., assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Bishop. The usual camp sports including archery are provided for, and bird study is given attention.

Camp Serrana, on Lake Tarleton, Pike, will be opened this season by Miss Emma G. Sebring, principal of St. Agatha School, New York, and Mrs. Mary Gaylord Frick, formerly at Camp Farwell.

Camp Tahoma on Lake Armington, near Pike, was opened in 1915 by Miss Anna W. Coale and her sister Miss Mary Arabella Coale. Both were for many years important factors in the life of Aloha, particularly the musical side. Among the advantages offered is that of hearing and taking part in good music.

Pine Knoll Camp, Pequaket P.O., on Iona Lake, at the foot of Chocorua Mountain, was established in 1914, in her own home, by Mrs. Frances Hodges White, a writer of children's stories. The counselors include graduates of leading women's colleges. Physical culture, archery, basketry, sewing, and folk dancing are featured.

Camp Larcom, Tamworth, opened in 1913 by Mr. and Mrs. S. G. Davidson, to supplement their Zufrieden for adults and nearby Camp Chocorua for boys, is a recreation camp for girls of any age, who may enter or leave at any time.

Camp Eagle Point, on Stinson Lake, Rumney, in the foothills of the White Mountains, established in 1905, is owned by a company with Dr. and Mrs. James E. Klock in immediate charge. The girls in the past ten years have come from twenty-one states. In addition to the usual camp sports, special instruction in music, art, and elocution is provided.

Camp Winnetaska, on Little Squam Lake, Ashland, was opened in 1914 by Dr. and Mrs. John B. May of Waban, Mass. Dr. May, a graduate of the Boston University Medical School, is a practicing physician, who has long been interested in ornithology and botany, and has previously been physician at Camp Algonquin and Sherwood Forest. Much is made of nature study in an informal way. The girls come from public and private schools of Boston, Pittsburgh, New York, and Philadelphia. The camp name signifies "The Place of Pleasant Laughter."

Winona Fields Camp, Holderness, on a breezy hilltop overlooking Asquam Lake, is a camp for a small number of girls of all ages, maintained since 1906 by Elizabeth Mitchell Fessenden, A.B., Boston Univ., and Mary Ropes Lakeman, M.D., Boston Univ., a practicing physician, Salem, Mass. A council of the Camp Fire Girls is maintained.

Camp Pinelands, Center Harbor, a camp with a well established, fashionable patronage, under the management of Mrs. Adolpho Muñoz and Miss Maria L. Dalton, was opened in 1902 with the cooperation of Dr. C. Hanford Henderson. The spirit of the camp is earnest, and it aims to offer girls a free out-of-door life with special attention to physical training. Classes are carried on in out-of-door sketching, gardening, nature work, handicrafts, sewing, and cooking. The girls come from all over the East.

Camp Anawan, at the head of Lake Winnepesaukee, Meredith, opened in 1913, is conducted by Mrs. Nellie S. Winchester, Hood Practice School, Lawrence, Mass., Miss Abigail P. Hazelton, principal of the Durell School, Somerville, and Miss Alice B. Hazelton, Runkle School, Brookline. It is a recreation camp with the usual camp sports and features.

Camp Acadia, on Lake Winnepesaukee, has for eight seasons been maintained by Dr. and Mrs. J. Grant Quimby, Lakeport, N.H. Mrs. Quimby's personality makes the camp life happy and home-like. There is a council of Camp Fire Girls.

Camp Kuwian, East Alton, is conducted by Miss Elizabeth D. Embler, Alton, N.H., for a limited number of girls who are personally known to her.

Mrs. Hassan's Camp, Pasquaney Nature Club, seven miles from Bristol, on the shore of Newfound Lake, is one of the older camps, maintained for eleven seasons by Mrs. L. H. Hassan, whose motherly personality keeps the girls happy. Preference is given to younger girls. The patronage is largely from Greater New York and Boston. See p. 548.

Camp Pinecroft, Bristol, N.H., on Newfound Lake, is a small private camp for girls in their teens. As Mrs. Alfred W. Carr conducts this camp incidentally for the benefit of her own daughters, mothers may be sure of an unusual degree of care as to all that conduces to health and happiness.

Camp Weetamoo, Lake Pleasant, New London, opens auspiciously in 1916 under the supervision of Miss Florence Griswold, who has been largely responsible for the success of Aloha Club since 1912.

Camp Fairweather, Scobie Lake, Frankestown, was opened by Miss Matilda D. Fairweather in 1911 on an old farm. The old white-painted farmhouse with the surrounding apple trees and stone walls, and the typical New England outbuildings, are on an elevation. Below in a pine grove near the lake is the camp cottage.

The Outdoor Players, Peterboro, is a summer school for the dramatic arts, maintained by Marie Ware Laughton, who has a winter school in Boston. The chief purpose is practice and training in the production of out of doors plays, pageants, and pantomimes. It offers outdoor life and sports with systematic training in all the arts of expression.

Sargent Camp, Inc., on Half Moon Lake, Peterboro, is entirely separate and distinct from the Sargent Normal School, the students of which use these same camp facilities in June and September. The camp is based upon Dr. Sargent's well-known principles and practices for the physical education of girls and women. Two of the directors are physicians. The purpose of the camp is to give training under expert supervision to girls from twelve to twenty-four in all healthful activities that result in an all-round physical development. In addition to the usual camp sports and recreations, provision is made for a great variety of games, many of which were first introduced into this country by Dr. Sargent. Much attention is also given to social, esthetic, and folk dancing. Opportunity too is offered in musical and dramatic training and for tutoring if desired.

Camp Oahe, a "school of the woods," at Granite Lake near Munsonville, is an Indian camp for 'pale-face' girls opened in 1915 by "Ohiyesa," otherwise well known as Dr. Charles A. Eastman, and Mrs. Eastman of Amherst, Mass. Three daughters assist in offering the usual land and water sports, as well as practice in Indian games, sports, and dances, including archery, woodcraft and nature lore, trailing, signaling, fire and camp making, and handicrafts. An original pageant play is given at the close of the season. There is a wholesome atmosphere of outdoor and family life. The camp is the vision of an idealist made real, and Dr. Eastman has around him men and women well fitted to carry out his ideals.

Camp Wawonaissa, Lake Spofford, is a camp for young girls, whose patronage is largely from Roman Catholic families of the eastern states. Mrs. E. LeB. Crofton, house mother of the Newman School, Hackensack, N.J., is the director.

VERMONT

The Bluebird, East Berkshire, is a summer home and camp for children in its fifth season, supervised by Miss Mary P. Anderson, teacher of Nature Study at the Horace Mann School, Teachers College, New York City. Girls under fifteen and boys under ten are given the real country life, working and playing on the farm.

Camp Winnahkee, Malletts Bay, Vt., opens this season under the same management as Camp Champlain for Boys and under the direction of Mrs. Pearl Cowles Van Houten. The main purpose is the physical upbuilding of girls. A local camp fire of the Camp Fire Girls will be a feature.

Camp Wuttaunoh, Northfield, a recreation camp for school and college girls, was opened in 1914 by Professor Ethan Allen Shaw, Norwich Univ., assisted by his wife and others. All the usual outdoor recreations are available, with special attention to horsemanship and nature study.

Camp Farwell, eight miles from Wells River, on a beautiful mountain lake, is maintained by Miss Julia H. Farwell, A.B., Mt. Holyoke; A.M., Columbia, head teacher in Miss Mason's School for Girls, Tarrytown. Much is made of archery, and special attention is given to singing, arts and crafts, and cooking.

The Tela-Wauket Camps, Roxbury, since 1912 have been successfully conducted by Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Roys, and are excellent examples of a large recreation camp where girls are given a good time. The bungalows are attractively placed on the brink of a plateau. Excellent saddle horses are provided without extra charge and instruction in riding is given by a competent riding master.

The Aloha Camps include three separate establishments, the original Aloha, established in 1905 by Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Gulick on Lake Morey, Fairlee; the Club for older girls, opened in 1910, fifteen miles distant on Lake Catherine, near Pike, N.H.; and the Hive, six miles from Fairlee, for younger girls, begun in 1915. Mr. Gulick, A.B., Dartmouth '83; A.M., Harvard '93, and Mrs. Harriet Farnsworth Gulick, A.B., Wellesley '87, were for ten years in charge of one of the cottages at Lawrenceville School. Mrs. Gulick has the remarkable faculty of selecting excellent councilors and assistants who have had great personal power with girls. Their former successful leaders have, however, recently left them to establish camps of their own. The chorus, orchestra, and choir have given Aloha a reputation as "a singing camp." A variety of interests sufficient to keep the girls always employed and happy, enough discipline to secure safety, health, and good order, and enough liberty to insure the girls a good time, make the camp one to which girls return from year to year and bring their friends. A great feature is the intercamp frolic at the season's end.

Hokomoko Camp, Lake Morey, Fairlee, was opened by Mr. and Mrs. David S. Conant in 1910. Mr. Conant, A.B., Dartmouth '91, is business manager, and Mrs. Conant (Mary Ellen Jones), B.S., Wellesley '89, has charge of the camp life. All sports, handicrafts, horseback riding, and dancing are provided.

Wynona Camp, Lake Morey, Fairlee, is a stock company, and controlled by R. R. Cookman, a lumber dealer, of Fitchburg. All camp sports and activities are provided including horseback riding and handicrafts. This season it will be under the direction of Miss Jeannie Evans, for many years associate principal of Dana Hall and now joint principal of Miss Guild and Miss Evans' School.

Camp Quinibeck, South Fairlee, is a large and successful vacation camp established in 1911. It is now maintained by three proprietors and directors, Frank L. Bryant, Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, William W. Clendenin, Wadleigh High School, New York City, and Anna A. Dodge, matron, who is actually in charge. Horseback riding, and all the usual sports and handicrafts are offered.

Camp Hanoum, Thetford Hill, two miles from the Connecticut, has been conducted since 1908 by Prof. and Mrs. Charles H. Farnsworth, Teachers College, Columbia Univ. It is on the old Farnsworth homestead, and the Turkish name, meaning "lady," was adopted because of an ancestral missionary to Turkey. There is a little pond a mile long, and canoeing on the river. Many of the councilors return from year to year and are specialists in various camp activities. Trips are made into the White and Green Mountains. Provision is made for juniors, from eight to fourteen, seniors, from fourteen to eighteen, and the College Club is for older girls. Craft activities, basketry, camp cookery, wood blocking, stenciling, modeling work, jewelry work, home cooking, and preserving are concentrated upon in successive weeks. There are the usual sports, including riding, and during the last week the inter-camp festivity and the Thetford pageant. See p. 549.

Camp Ken-Jocketee, one mile from South Strafford, is conducted by Mrs. James W. Tyson, Jr., a motherly personage, and Miss Emma F. Stringer, an energetic and enthusiastic young New Englander. Though some distance from river or lake there is a swimming pool. All the usual crafts, including pottery, and camp festivities, are arranged for, and horseback riding is made a feature.

MASSACHUSETTS

Camp Chequesset, Wellfleet Bay, near the tip of Cape Cod, is beautifully situated and admirably equipped and administered. It was established in 1914 by William G. Vinal, A.M., Harvard, instructor in nature study, R. I. Normal School, Providence, and Alice H. Belding, A.B., Vassar, physical director Randolph-Macon Women's College, Lynchburg, Va. They are assisted by specialists in all camp activities. Folk dancing, gardening, nature study, domestic science, crafts, photography, and wood lore are features.

Mrs. Norman White's Camp for Girls, Orleans, on Cape Cod, was for four seasons conducted by her as Camp Nauset, and is now a girls' camp exclusively, offering musical instruction and the usual camp land and water sports.

Quanset, Cape Cod, now in its tenth season, is conducted by Mrs. E. A. W. Hammatt, Newton Center, Mass. In addition to the usual camp activities sailing, music, and weaving are taught. An original opera is given each summer.

Sea Pines Camp is situated on the seashore bluffs of the school property, about five minutes' walk from the school buildings. The hundred girls are in charge of Miss Faith Bickford, assisted by Sea Pines teachers as councilors.

Camp Catamount, Shattuckville, in the Berkshire Hills, is a small camp established in 1911 by Alice A. Crouch, a graduate of Wells College, who studied physical training at the Yale and Harvard schools. It is on a farm by a large artificial lake. There is a council of Camp Fire Girls.

CONNECTICUT

Sebowisha Camp, overlooking the Thames river, eight miles north of New London, has for five seasons been conducted by Miss Marion R. Smith, and Christine H. Smith, instructor of physical training, St. Agnes School, Albany. The camp is on a farm which supplies fresh provisions.

Menuncatuk, a seashore camp for girls, Guilford, is conducted by Mrs. Theodora Ames Hooker, High School, Saugus, Mass. She aims to give girls of high school or college age a healthful vacation at a moderate price. The camp opens in May for tired school girls. See p. 548.

Camp Mystic, Mystic, opens this season under Miss Mary L. Jobe, A.M., F.R.G.S., an explorer and mountaineer of wide experience. She intends the camp to be a bit of the West transplanted to salt-water New England. Campcraft, boating and swimming, riding, dancing, and music are offered.

NEW YORK

Black Elephant Camp, Lake George, was established in 1910. The girls live in a two-story house on the edge of the lake, and lead a normal outdoor life. Miss Theoda F. Bush, of Dana Hall School, Wellesley, and Miss Kate B. Wallace of Radcliffe College create a simple home atmosphere.

Camp Setag, on Lake Pleasant in the Adirondacks, has been conducted since 1908 by Ada M. Gates, principal of the Day's Park School, Buffalo, N.Y. Among the features are nature study, riding, Camp Fire Girls, art, and French conversation.

Camp Arey, on Lake Keuka, is a continuation of the Natural Science Camp, established by Prof. Arey of Rochester, on Lake Canandaigua in 1890 as a boys' camp. From 1892 girls and boys were taken each for four weeks. It was consequently the first girls' camp. Since 1912 the camp has been under the management of Mrs. André C. Fontaine, daughter of Prof. Arey, and Mr. Fontaine, M.A., Columbia, of the Boys' High School, Brooklyn. The camp is well equipped and splendidly located.

Camp Sewanhaka, Mount Sinai, is a salt-water camp on the north shore of Long Island maintained for two seasons by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Stout Pettit. Dr. Pettit is director of Pine Bluff Camp for boys, and has been since 1892 physical director of Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn. There are senior, junior, and midget lodges.

PENNSYLVANIA

Pine Tree Camp, at an elevation of two thousand feet, in the Pocono Mountains, was established in 1911 by Miss Blanche D. Price. The camp council consists of experienced teachers and college-bred women. Domestic science, nature study, handicrafts, dancing, and tutoring are offered, and the lake and fields and mountains afford opportunity for all the usual outdoor sports, including horseback riding.

Camp Oneka on Lake Arthur, a mountain lake near Tafton, is conducted by Ernest W. Sipple of the Northeast High School, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Sipple. The directors had five years' camp experience at Camp Brumbaugh, run by the Philadelphia Playgrounds Association, Camp Mokoma and Orr's Island Camp in Maine, the last two of which are now absorbed in Oneka.

KENTUCKY

Trail's End Camp, on the Kentucky river, in the Blue Grass Country, thirteen miles from Lexington, Ky., on a large farm, was established in 1913 by Miss Mary De Witt Snyder, a graduate of the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics, and director of physical training at Transylvania and Hamilton Colleges. Horseback riding, swimming, etc., and a trip to the mountains and to Mammoth Cave, are featured.

OHIO

Camp Wyndcroft, Kingsville, among the hills of northeastern Ohio, two miles from Lake Erie, is maintained by Mrs. Artemas B. Luce. Boating, swimming, riding, and work in all sorts of handicrafts occupy the time.

MICHIGAN

Camp Michigamme, Lake Michigamme, Mich., established in 1911, is successfully conducted by Mrs. Caroline S. Rowell, A.B. Mrs. Rowell is a Christian Scientist but her girls are of all faiths. She had previously had experience in teaching and as a councilor in other camps. The girls are drawn from the private schools of the Middle West.

Pinewood Camp, Indian Point, Burt Lake, near Brutus, Mich., is a camp and tutoring school opened this year by Miss Gertrude Tuttle, who last season rented Birchwood Camp, not far off on Mullet Lake. Most of last year's fifty or more girls and many of the councilors are returning.

WISCONSIN

Sandstone Camp, Green Lake, Wis., overlooking the lake, has been conducted since 1912 by Miss Elva I. Holford, former preparatory principal at Grafton Hall, Fond du Lac, and Miss Esther G. Cochrane, A.B., Wis. '10, formerly of Oak Hall, St. Paul. The girls are offered the usual camp sports, nature study, and handicrafts. A winter camp is located at Crystal Springs, Fla.

COMPARATIVE TABLES

THE COMPARATIVE TABLES

In the Comparative Tables are included chiefly those schools whose numbers permit of some statistical treatment. The figures and statistics are given as supplied by the school and where spaces are left blank it is because information has been withheld or refused.

In the Third Edition, 1917, these Tables will be entirely recast in a new form with the purpose of more completely revealing comparatively the merits of the schools. It is hoped that it may be possible to show the average salary paid teachers, the expenditure per capita per diem for instruction, food and advertising.

Suggestions are invited as to how these Tables may be made more informingly significant.

COMPARATIVE TABLES

Something of the nature and purpose of these comparative tables has already been alluded to in the Editor's Foreword (page 19), but some further word of explanation is perhaps necessary to make the greatly condensed information readily comprehensible.

The arrangement under each classification is geographically by states, beginning with Maine and continuing South and West, the schools of each state being arranged alphabetically. The purpose has been to present the most significant facts about each school in tabulated form so that schools of a region and a class may readily be compared.

A blank tabular form with the request that it be filled in so far as possible was sent to each school, with notice that "a note accompanying this table will explain that where spaces are left blank, the school has failed to send the information requested." The greater number of schools responded promptly, often with a wealth of information, from which the relevant portions have been selected.

The information here tabulated is in general as supplied by the Head of the School, and where spaces are left blank, it is due to the failure of the school to furnish the information requested. In future editions it is hoped these tables may be made much more complete.

The explanatory headings at the top of each table, though necessarily abbreviated, will be easily understood. All the tables give the Name and Location of each school, and its Head with the proper title, Head Master, Principal, or President. Where such distinction or specification is necessary a further indication of the Classification (Class.) of the school is given in the second column, as: Boarding (Bdg.); Country Day (Co. D.); Tutoring (Tut.).

The Date of Establishment (Est.), and the maximum Tuition (Tui.), which in the case of boarding schools includes board, are given. In most of the tables there will be found also the number of the Faculty (Fac.); the Length of the Course (L. of C.); the Enrollment during the current year (Enr. '15-'16); the per cent of those who returned from the previous year (% ret.); the number of Alumni (Al.); and the number of organized Alumni Associations (Al. As.). In the last column are given such Special Features as the school emphasizes, or which seem most characteristic of the school.

In the Table of Boys' Schools an attempt has been made to show not only the number of boys entering college during the decade 1900-10 (Ent. col. '00-'10), but also, what is perhaps more significant, the number of those who not only entered but completed their college course and took degrees (Tak. deg. '00-'10). In justice to the younger schools whose records do not extend so far back the adjacent column gives the number of boys entering college in the year 1915 (Ent. col. '15) and the number of boys taking degrees in 1915 (Tak. deg. '15).

In the Tables of both Girls' and Boys' Schools it seemed of some significance to attempt to give the educational and academic associations of which the principal was a member (Head Master; member of) and also the academic associations of which the school is a member (School; member of), or the colleges to which the school is accredited (School acr. to).

In the Table of Military Schools are given not only the Date of Establishment (Est.) but the Date of Establishment of the Military System (Mil. Est.), which is often much later. The Hours per week devoted to instruction in Military Theory (H. M. Theory) and the Hours per week to Military Drill are recorded where known. The classification of the school by the U. S. War Department on the basis of the efficiency of its military system has been given (Class. U. S. War Dept.). The War Department annually designates ten "Honor Schools" selected among those of the country for the highest efficiency of their military system. Similarly military institutions doing work of collegiate grade are given the title "Distinguished Institutions" (Dist. Inst.). Other schools whose military system is commendable are designated as in "Class M."

In the Tables of Special Schools it has seemed desirable to indicate wherever possible the form of Control (Contr.), whether the school was a private enterprise, incorporated under a board of trustees, or supported by an association. For some of the special schools the Entrance Requirements (Entr. Requirements) and Age Limits (Age L.) established by each school are given as well as the Section of the country from which the Patronage chiefly comes (Section of Patr.). In the Tables of Art and Music Schools are given both the total number of the Faculty (Fac.) and the number of the Faculty giving Full Time (Fac. F. T.). In the Tables of Kindergarten Training Schools the period of Probation (Probation) required before a student is accepted for final training is indicated.

In the Tables of Camps are given the dates of Opening and Closing (Opens, Closes), the Fee for the full season (Fee), and, where so accepted, for the Half Season ( $\frac{1}{2}$  Sea.), and, where the distinction is made, the number separately of Instructors (Instr.) and Councilors (Coun.).

NOTE.

This list of Student Publications of Private Schools is the first so far as known to be published. The information here given is necessarily incomplete though its accumulation has involved extended correspondence.

Notice of errors and omissions will be gratefully received for the correction and amplification of this list in the next Edition. Business Managers are requested also to send circulation and advertising rates.

The arrangement is alphabetical by Towns under each State. The name of the School followed by its Address and Enrollment (Enr.) are given on the first line. Below are given the names of the school's Publications (in small capitals), frequency of publication (Publ.), the number of the current volume 1916 (Vol.), the number of pages (pp.) of the usual issue, the subscription price for year (Sub.) and notice if illustrations are used (Ill.) and the size of the Type Page in inches irrespective of margins.

EDUCATIONAL DIRECTORIES

THE EDUCATIONAL DIRECTORIES.

In these Directories it is aimed to present alphabetically classified lists, readily accessible for reference, of the Associations, Bureaus, Agencies, Firms, and Individuals of interest to Educators and School and College authorities.

The Directories in this Second Edition have been greatly amplified, and many new classifications included. It is hoped eventually to make these Directories practically complete, affording not merely a convenient Address List, but concise information that can be relied upon.

While the inclusion or exclusion of a firm is dependent upon the value and importance of the service which it is prepared to render Schools and Colleges, it is only appropriate that where they are able, they should pay for the publicity afforded them, thus supplying a legitimate source of revenue for the book.

The cooperation of all interested is invited that these Directories may have a maximum serviceability. Officers of Associations are requested to keep the publisher informed as to changes of officers, dates of meetings, etc. No charge whatever is made for any such notice.

Firms and Periodicals which have been inadvertently omitted will be added on their presenting evidence that they are capable of rendering important service along the lines included in these Directories.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Private Schools and Summer Camps are here afforded a form of Publicity more dignified and permanent than has previously been available.

The broad distribution of the Handbook, which is to be found practically wherever there is a shelf of reference books, in every school, college, public, private, hotel, and club library as well as in the hands of thousands of parents, makes this publicity highly serviceable.

These Announcements are not 'Advertising' in the ordinary use of the term unless the school's catalogs be so regarded. The purpose is to set forth in condensed form and in uniform typography such statements as the School puts forth in its catalogs and booklets. All copy is edited to give the maximum of concise and definite information.

Such an Announcement of the Material Advantages of a School, the Attractions of its Situation, the Features of its Equipment, Particulars of its Courses, appropriately supplements the necessarily brief account of the Personnel, Spirit, and Traditions of the School given in the Critical Text, and the statistical statement in the Comparative Tables. A cross reference to the page of the Announcement is given at the end of the account of the School in the Critical Text.

Statements here made carry greater authority than in the School's own catalog,—for they have been scrutinized and carefully edited,—over-statements and extravagant descriptions have been suppressed.

Schools to whom 'Advertising' is repellent may here set forth their advantages with dignity,—assured that they will find themselves in good company, and assured of an interested public.

The purpose is to serve the Best Schools,—those to whom the more prevalent methods of publicity do not appeal. It is hoped to make this list in future editions more and more exclusive,—an Exclusiveness based on Intrinsic Merit and Service Rendered.

THE NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, BOSTON, MASS.

THE POOL

THE HUNTINGTON SCHOOL,
316 Huntington Ave., Boston, Mass.

FRANK PALMER SPEARE, M.H., Director.

IRA A. FLINNER, A.M., Head Master.

The best equipped and most comprehensive Private Day School in New England. Twenty-five masters give their whole time to the three hundred boys.

The curriculum provides careful and thorough preparation for all colleges and technical schools, and the school has the privilege of entrance by certificate to all colleges using the certificate system. Business and technical courses are also provided.

Great care is exercised in the selection both of teachers and of pupils. In order to guarantee a flexible curriculum and the increased efficiency of individual instruction, the work is carried on in small classes, with all day supervision of the students. Every boy participates in some form of physical exercise under the direction of ten teacher coaches.

The equipment includes thirty well-ventilated class rooms, five scientific laboratories, a woodworking shop, electrical laboratory, and a complete gymnasium with basket-ball courts, swimming pool, etc. Although located in the heart of the Back Bay section of Boston, there is ample opportunity for outdoor exercise as a twenty-acre athletic field adjoins the building.

For illustrated catalog, write or telephone Back Bay 4400.

MR. DEMERITTE LEADING IN "SETTING-UP."
NOTE THE CHEST EXPANSION

CAMP ALGONQUIN, Asquam Lake, N.H.

EDWIN DEMERITTE. Director for thirty years.

A thousand boys have known the delights of Algonquin. The site is an eighteen-acre peninsula extending into the lake, wooded to the water's edge. The permanent equipment includes ten buildings, two dormitories with separate dressing-rooms, spacious assembly hall, and dining room.

Swimming, Canoeing, Tennis, Baseball, Camping Trips, Rifle Practice, under efficient supervision. Nature Study is emphasized in all its phases. Boy Scout Troop. Life-saving Corps. First Aid Instruction.

MR. DEMERITTE'S SCHOOL FOR BOYS, 815 Boylston St., Boston, Mass.

A Day School for Boys of Greater Boston, offering a Seven-year Course. Preparation for all colleges, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and West Point.

In the past ten years boys have been prepared by this school for Harvard, Yale, M. I. T., Boston University, Dartmouth, Amherst, Williams, University of Pennsylvania, Haverford, and many state universities in the West.

Small classes; individual attention; experienced teachers who give time and resource to their students; these are some of the means by which Mr. DeMeritte aims to develop efficiency, self-reliance,—MEN. Write for the school circular and camp booklet.

ATWOOD HALL AND THE GYMNASIUM

HEBRON ACADEMY, Hebron, Me.

WILLIAM E. SARGENT, A.M., Litt.D., Principal.

The Academy life is simple and wholesome. Its equipment is complete. Preparation for college or a general training.

BOSTON SCHOOL OF PAINTING, 64 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, Mass.

ARTHUR M. HAZARD, Principal.

The home of the School is in Boston's most exclusive residential district. The entire building has been remodeled to suit the requirements of the school. There are roomy, well-lighted studios on the top floor, and a spacious gallery for exhibition purposes.

Mr. Hazard, who personally has charge of the courses, is assisted by practical instructors experienced in illustration and commercial drawing, practical design, ceramics and china decoration.

Complete courses are given in Drawing and Painting, Portrait Painting, Illustrating, Commercial Drawing, Design, and Mural Painting.

The length of courses is not limited, but diplomas are given for two or three years' study in any or all courses. Individual instruction and practical methods are emphasized. There are day and evening classes.

Several drawings are sent each week to the engraver to be published at the expense of the school. Situations are often found for successful students and salable work will be disposed of to aid the student during his course.

THE STAFF AND BOYS OF THE SCHOOL, 1915, IN FRONT OF THE SCHOOL BUILDING

BROWNE AND NICHOLS SCHOOL FOR BOYS,
20 Garden St., Cambridge, Mass.

GEORGE H. BROWNE, A.M. } Principals.
REV. WILLARD REED, A.M. }

A Day School for Boys of Greater Boston it provides for supervised afternoon study and play. For thirty-three years the School has successfully prepared boys for Harvard, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and similar institutions.

The School Building of fireproof brick construction is the second building which has been specially designed for the school. The lighting, heating, and ventilating systems are on the most improved plans. In addition to study and recitation rooms, there are also two large halls, a gymnasium, two laboratories, and an arts and crafts room.

Nichols Field, of six acres, on the Charles River Parkway opposite Soldier's Field, is a few minutes' walk from the school. Here are the home grounds for football and baseball games, and facilities for tennis, basket-ball, running, jumping, and other field sports. The best board track of Greater Boston, a new baseball cage, and a hand-ball court provide a superior outdoor winter gymnasium. The river offers opportunities for boating, skating, and other water and ice sports.

The Field House is equipped with steel lockers, improved pattern chain-shower baths, a large room for indoor games, rowing machines, etc.

A Junior Department provides a two-year course in preparation for the upper school.

THE HOCKEY RINK

HALLOCK SCHOOL, Great Barrington, Mass.

GERARD HALLOCK, A.M., Rutgers, Principal.

The primary interest of the school is careful preparation of the individual boy for college and life. Exceptionally healthful location in the heart of the Berkshires, at elevation of 900 feet.

RIVERDALE COUNTRY SCHOOL,

Riverdale-on-Hudson, New York City.

FRANK S. HACKETT, A.B., Head Master.

The School combines the advantages of the best day and boarding schools. It is so near the residential sections of New York that boys may reach the School within forty minutes by Broadway Subway, or by the school autobus.

The fourteen and a half acres of school grounds lie in beautiful and rugged open country, the Palisades to the west and the Van Cortlandt Valley to the east. The spacious playgrounds of Van Cortlandt Park are at the command of Riverdale boys. A new building designed by McKim, Mead & White to cost $125,000 is expected to be ready in 1917.

In the afternoon Recreation. Association football, basketball, handball, tennis, golf, hockey, skating, coasting, ski-running, baseball, track and field athletics, tramping, and riding are among the sports followed.

The School covers work from the usual fourth grade of the grammar school through college preparation. The teaching is scholarly and intimate. Howell North White, A.M., Princeton, for ten years at the Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., is Associate Head Master.

Catalog S will be forwarded promptly upon request.

BERKSHIRE SCHOOL, Sheffield, Mass.

SEAVER B. BUCK, A.B., Head Master.

The School Estate of three hundred and fifty acres lies at an elevation of nine hundred feet on the eastern slope of Mt. Everett, overlooking the beautiful valley of the Housatonic. It is four miles from Sheffield, in the southwestern corner of Massachusetts.

The School Buildings include: Glenny House, the Dormitory for the Younger Boys, connected with the house of the Head Master; Spurr House, for the boys of the Fourth and Fifth Grades; Allen House, completed in 1911, and containing the School room and Class rooms, the Library, the Chapel, and the Senior Corridor; the Hospital, completed December, 1912, with accommodations for fourteen patients. The water supply is from private reservoirs on the mountain reservation high above the school.

The Six-year Course of Study is designed to fit boys for college or for any of the Scientific Schools. The study hours are treated as of first importance and are directed with the utmost care. The number of masters is sufficient to give whatever individual assistance may be necessary, and boys whose work is unsatisfactory are required to make up their deficiencies daily under the direction of the master who teaches the subject.

There are the usual opportunities for open-air exercise, apart from the organized school athletics. For boys who require it, classes in special gymnastic work are arranged for under the supervision of the Physical Director. Special instruction is offered in Music, Drawing, and Dancing.

THE BOYS OF APPLEBY

APPLEBY SCHOOL, Oakville, Ontario, Can.

J. S. H. GUEST, M.A., Cambridge, Head Master.

The School occupies a beautifully wooded estate of ninety acres on the shore of Lake Ontario, one and one half miles from Oakville, which is midway between Toronto and Hamilton.

The complete equipment is modern and attractive. The school building is of fire-proof brick and reinforced construction. It accommodates forty boarders and has class rooms for sixty boys, and contains Masters' Rooms, an Infirmary, and a Dormitory of a new and improved type for the use of twenty of the younger boys.

The new Laboratory Building for the study of practical Chemistry and Physics is furnished with the utmost completeness and attention to detail. It contains a balance room and a photographic dark room.

A new Gymnasium and extensive Playing Fields with a small golf course provide for exercise for every boy each afternoon. In season, Boating, Tennis, Riding, Tobogganing, Skiing, Hockey, and the Cadet Corps are among the outdoor activities.

The School Farm provides all the preserved fruits, jams, vegetables, used by the School. The School's own dairy supplies the milk. Every sanitary precaution is taken to insure its purity and healthfulness.

The Course of Study aims at giving a good general education in Latin, Mathematics, English, and Science. These studies must be taken by all boys without exception.

Illustrated Booklet will be sent on application.

THE HAY MEMORIAL CHAPEL

WESTMINSTER SCHOOL, Simsbury, Conn.

W. L. CUSHING, A.B., A.M., Yale, Head Master.

A school that prepares boys for college; that helps boys bear the yoke in their youth; that encourages them to play fair.

THE INTERLAKEN SCHOOL, Rolling Prairie, La Porte Co., Ind.

EDWARD A. RUMELY, M.D., President.

Interlaken is a school on a farm where boys learn to work. It is a school that trains for life by affording a richly varied experience. Boys learn to do by doing. They have a share in the administration of the school plant and estate.

The great purpose of the school is to develop initiative and leadership. The boys are governed through other boys who show signs of leadership ability. Through many-sided work and through visits to factories and farms, excursions on foot and by wheel, the pupils learn to know and to appreciate Real Life.

Interlaken is a boarding school for boys between nine and eighteen. Most of the students, the sons of business and professional men, are preparing for college. The school room work is well organized. The laboratory facilities are of the best. Mr. O. P. Pitts, a thoroughly experienced school man and capable executive, is now at the head of the staff of teachers.

The Summer School opens June 15. Mornings are spent in study, the rest of the day in farm work, tramps in the woods, boating, bathing, baseball, and athletics.

THE BUILDINGS ARE SURROUNDED BY A SEVEN-ACRE PARK

CARLTON ACADEMY, Summit, N.J.

CHARLES H. SCHULTZ, A.M., Head Master.

Upper School for older boys gives thorough preparation for all Colleges, Technical Schools, and Schools of Finance. Individual attention. Athletic Sports. Lower School.

KINGSLEY SCHOOL FOR BOYS, Essex Fells, N.J.

JAMES R. CAMPBELL, A.M., Head Master.

The location is classed in government reports as one of the three most healthful in the United States. The School stands in ample grounds in open hill country at an elevation of five hundred feet.

The new school building completed in September, 1915, comprises Chemistry and Physics Laboratories, Drawing Rooms, large Recreation Room; completely equipped, well ventilated, and beautifully lighted Study Hall and Class Rooms.

Study, athletics, and all school activities are made to work for character development. Boys are taught how to study by individual training in small classes.

The class of 1915 entered Yale, Princeton, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cornell, Lehigh, and Williams.

The lower school is for young boys of nine to twelve. The school room instruction and athletics of such boys are specially adapted to their needs.

Athletic sports are encouraged under careful supervision resulting in successful teams. The School has ample athletic grounds; Gymnasium, Bowling Alley, and Billiard Room for indoor amusement.

For illustrated catalog address J. R. Campbell, A.M., Head Master, Post-office Box A.

FRANKLIN AND MARSHALL ACADEMY, Lancaster, Pa.

T. G. HELM, A.M. } Principals.
E. M. HARTMAN, A.M. }

A College Preparatory School for Boys which, in the words of the Founders, aims to be "in the best and highest sense, a training school for boys who desire to go to college, and also to furnish a complete academical course for those who do not purpose taking a full collegiate course of study."

The Academy is situated in one of the garden spots of the United States, adjoining Franklin and Marshall College, on the west side of Lancaster, one and a half hours west of Philadelphia.

The Academy, though under the same Board of Trustees as the College, has its own buildings, grounds, and faculty. The College Library of 55,000 volumes is free to the students.

The Main Building contains a large chapel, a general living room, a game room, a cheerful dining room, offices, and recitation rooms, with dormitories above. East Hall, a three-story brick building one hundred yards distant, contains laboratories, recitation rooms, and rooms for students and teachers.

At the west end of the campus is the athletic field providing for all outdoor sports. The gymnasium is thoroughly equipped.

Academy boys prepared under the present management have graduated first in their respective classes, or with high rank, from Franklin and Marshall College, Dickinson, Lafayette, Lehigh, State, Cornell, Princeton, Columbia, West Point, Yale, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and other institutions.

Terms moderate. Illustrated catalog on request.

A GENERAL VIEW OF THE SCHOOL LOOKING FROM THE LAKE

MACKENZIE SCHOOL, Monroe, Orange Co., N.Y.

JAMES CAMERON MACKENZIE, Ph.D., Director.

The School is on Lake Walton in the upper Ramapo region of Orange County, New York, forty-eight miles from New York.

The school site, two and a half miles from the village of Monroe, is on a plateau, nine hundred feet above tide-water. The grounds of one hundred acres border the lake and are admirably adapted to all the various athletic games, including golf and rowing.

The buildings comprise a Central Hall, the Junior School, an Infirmary, a Field House, three departmental recitation cottages, a gymnasium, a baseball cage (used also for basket-ball), a "Tuck Shop," and a group of cottages,—all erected in 1910, or subsequently.

The Lower School admits boys as young as nine years. The Lower and Junior Schools are quite apart from the Upper School. The Upper School prepares boys for all colleges, universities, technical schools, and business careers.

The examinations of Princeton, Yale, Harvard, and the College Entrance Board are held at the School in June. West Point and colleges that accept school certificates in place of examination accept the certificates of this school.

Physical Training, Manual Training, and Instruction in Music are especially provided for. Every boy takes part in some outdoor sport,—baseball, track, football, tennis, hockey, skating, boating, golf, skiing, tramping.

The annual fee for board, room, and tuition is $600, $700, or $800, according to the size and location of the room.

THE CAMPUS, UPPER SCHOOL.

THE MANLIUS SCHOOLS, Manlius, N.Y.

GENERAL WILLIAM VERBECK, A.M., President.

The two schools occupy beautiful and extensive grounds in a most healthful situation eleven miles from Syracuse. The buildings are modern and attractive.

The military principle is most successfully applied both to younger and older boys. It is a means of training the mind and character as well as the body, developing obedience, order, poise, initiative, and courage. For twelve years it has been ranked by the U.S. Government as an Honor School, being the only school with this record. A troop of Cavalry is maintained.

Self-Government is encouraged within wise limits. Religious culture is not neglected. The class-room work is of a high order of efficiency. The school life is enriched by lectures, entertainments, "Hops," music, teas, and receptions.

The New Gymnasium contains the main room devoted to gymnasium drill, and entertainment purposes, locker rooms, Shooting Gallery, lavatory and showers, and a Swimming Tank sixty feet long. Exceptional opportunities are offered for pupils to become expert in the Cavalry.

ST. JOHN'S SCHOOL, for older boys, prepares for college, business, for the Government academies and for the Army. Classical, Scientific, and Engineering courses are offered and also a Graduate course including two collegiate years offering the best preparation for business.

VERBECK HALL, with its own separate and attractive building, is for boys from eight to fourteen. The President with his wife has direct charge assisted by a special corps of teachers. The School Matron gives homelike personal attention.

THE GILMAN COUNTRY SCHOOL, Roland Park, Md.

FRANK W. PINE, M.A., Head Master.

The Gilman Country School was founded in 1897 by Judge William A. Fisher, President Daniel Coit Gilman, Hon. Charles J. Bonaparte, and other prominent citizens of Baltimore, as the first country day school in America. In 1910 the School was removed to its present spacious grounds, comprising seventy acres in Roland Park, the beautiful suburb of Baltimore. The new building and equipment form one of the most complete school plants in the United States.

The Boarding Department of the School appeals because of the mild winter climate, which permits outdoor athletics all winter; because of its location between the North and the South, which is conducive to a broadening atmosphere; because the School has the usual advantage of a beautiful country environment combined with opportunities to enjoy under strict supervision the best in lectures, music, and the drama, afforded by proximity to Baltimore, a recognized educational center; because the School includes only a limited number of boarding pupils, who must be of high character, and who live in the School home with the Head Master and his family; and because a high standard of scholarship is required. The School prepares for all the leading colleges and scientific schools.

THE PRINCETON SUMMER SCHOOL, 15 University Pl., Princeton, N.J.

C. R. MOREY, Head Master.

Twenty-fifth Season opens July 17, 1916, to prepare for the September Entrance Examinations for Princeton, Harvard, and Yale. The season this summer will be shortened from ten to nine weeks.

The efficiency of the School may be judged from the record of last season: Forty-nine boys were prepared for final entrance examination for Princeton. Only two failed to enter. Of the forty-seven successful candidates, the School prepared two under the Alternative Method for all subjects; one came to us with twelve conditions; one with eight; four with seven; eighteen with either five or six.

The School has hitherto prepared chiefly for Princeton; in view of the identity of the September examinations this year for entrance to Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, the School will accept students preparing for entrance to any one of these three universities. The School has always made a specialty of preparing students for preliminary examinations; last season twenty-two such students were enrolled.

Write for information, or telephone Princeton 256.

THE MAIN BUILDING

ST. LUKE'S SCHOOL, Wayne, Pa.

CHARLES HENRY STROUT, M.A., Head Master.

The School lies on the slope of the Radnor Hills about a mile north of Wayne in beautiful open country. Wayne is on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, about fourteen miles from Philadelphia, at an elevation of five hundred feet.

The grounds of nearly thirty acres contain seven acres of woodland, baseball and football fields, a quarter-mile cinder track, tennis courts, and facilities for all outdoor games.

The Main Building, Colonial in style, is of three stories. The "Common Room," with its great fireplace, is adjoined by the music room. The well-lighted school and recitation rooms are on the first floor. The two upper stories contain the sleeping rooms, lavatories, and baths.

Crawford House is a dormitory for older boys with its own living room.

The gymnasium, near the main building, has a tiled swimming-pool, large locker rooms, shower baths, and complete gymnastic equipment.

The aim of St. Luke's is to give each boy careful attention and to bring out the best in him; to surround him with refining influences; to fill his time with healthful pursuits; to stimulate his desire to excel in studies and sports.

The Lower and Upper Schools are each of three forms, providing a six-year course thoroughly preparing a boy to enter any college or university, Annapolis, or West Point.

Beautifully illustrated catalog will be sent on request.

THE WILLIAM PENN CHARTER SCHOOL,
Philadelphia, Pa.

RICHARD MOTT JONES, A.B., A.M., LL.D.,
Head Master.

MEMORIAL HALL

THE TOME SCHOOL, Port Deposit, Md.

THOMAS STOCKHAM BAKER, Ph.D., Director.

The Tome School is an Endowed Preparatory School. Its situation is one of great attractiveness on a bluff overlooking Chesapeake Bay. The climate is mild and healthful.

The Grounds and Buildings, the work of the best architects and landscape artists, are famed for their beauty. The equipment is the best that ample funds and expert advice could provide. The Laboratories and Manual Training Shops are worthy of a college. A single room is provided for every boy.

The Faculty of twenty-seven men, trained in American and European Universities, are specialists in their departments. The Students are divided into small classes. Each boy has an individual faculty adviser. Tutoring is provided for boys who need such special attention. The work is arranged in three courses: the Academic, the Scientific, and the Commercial.

The School Certificate is accepted by all colleges that make use of the certificate system.

Each boy is expected to take an active part in athletics. The Gymnasium, Batting Cage, Athletic Fields, Cinder Track, Swimming Pool, Golf Course, and Tennis Courts provide every incentive. Tome has strong athletic teams, but the organization is such that even the smaller boys and the weaker boys have their own teams.

The school for younger boys occupies a separate dormitory, has separate recitation rooms and special teachers in all branches. Particular care and attention is given to the younger boys.

The annual fee of $700 includes Board, Tuition, and all extras.

THE STUYVESANT SCHOOL BUILDINGS

STUYVESANT SCHOOL, Warrenton, Va.

EDWIN B. KING, A.B., A.M., Yale, Head Master.

Beautifully located at a high altitude in an invigorating climate. One hundred acres for outdoor sports. Prepares efficiently for college. Elastic curriculum. Terms $600 a year.

ST. JOHN'S MILITARY ACADEMY, Delafield, Wis.

REV. SIDNEY T. SMYTHE, President.

This great school, famous for the esprit of its students and loyalty of its graduates, has a national patronage, the enrollment during the past ten years extending to every State and Territory, as well as to Mexico, Canada, and South America.

The school is an Episcopal School and all students are required to attend the services of the Episcopal Church. Boys from all denominations are in attendance, however, and the annual religious census of the School shows that practically all denominations are represented.

The United States Government makes an annual inspection of the School, and it is rated as an "Honor School," the highest government rating. Its standing from the standpoint of scholastic work is equally high, and it is accredited to the North Central Association of Schools and Colleges.

St. John's offers courses of study leading to the Classical, Scientific, or Technical Courses of the universities, and also a Commercial Course of exceptional value.

The attendance is limited, and early application is desirable. The terms are $600 per year. For catalog and particulars, address Box 333, Delafield, Waukesha County, Wis.

THE SITE OF THE WINTER HOME IN FLORIDA

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE, Inc., Lyndon, Ky.

COL. C. W. FOWLER, Superintendent.

The School with a Winter Home in Florida. Founded in 1845, the school was chartered two years later. Its first winter migration to Florida was undertaken in January, 1906, and has since been continued each year.

The boys come from nearly every State in the Union. The School has the largest percentage of northern boys of any military school in the South. There are about an equal number of boys from the North and South. Two thirds of the faculty are graduates of the best eastern colleges.

The equipment includes a Gymnasium, with special bath and dressing rooms for the athletic teams; barracks with accommodations for 150 cadets, recitation rooms, and laboratories.

The Thomas A. Edison Science Building, recently completed, has the most modern equipment for shop work, and chemical and physical laboratories.

The school campus of ninety-six acres affords every opportunity for outdoor sports.

The School accomplishes all that can be expected from any first-class preparatory school, and gives the boy a winter of outdoor life in Florida as well. The United States War Department designated the school an "Honor School" in 1914, and in 1915 it was the only school in the South to win this distinction.

For full particulars of this interesting and original old school, address Col. C. W. Fowler, Box B, Lyndon, Ky.

THE SENIOR HOUSE AND THE SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE SCHOOL, Asheville, N.C.

N. M. ANDERSON, B.S. } Principals.
 C. A. MITCHELL, A.B. }

A Preparatory School for Boys in The Mountains of North Carolina, where a boy can grow and develop under the most favorable climatic conditions east of the Mississippi river.

The principals of the school, northern men who have had several years' teaching experience in good northern schools, determined to establish a preparatory school in the most healthful region of the eastern half of the United States since they believe the HEALTH of its students is the first consideration of an ideal school. After a careful study of the country from Maine to Florida they selected a site in the mountains of North Carolina, 2300 feet above sea level. The remarkable health record and unusual physical gains of the pupils, during the fifteen years the School has been established, show conclusively the wisdom of the selection.

The equipment is strictly modern, including carefully planned buildings, with dining rooms, kitchen, and heating plant in separate buildings. The estate contains 600 acres.

The Faculty is composed of graduates of the leading universities, selected to insure the threefold aim of physical, mental, and moral education. Work and Play are systematically organized without hampering individuality.

Graduates from more than twenty states have entered all the leading universities, colleges, and technical schools of the country.

FLORIDA-HURON MOUNTAINS SCHOOL.

CLARENCE E. SNYDER, 307 Monroe Bldg., Chicago.

CAMP SOSAWAGAMING, Big Bay, Mich., is the location for the Fall Term. It is a recreation and tutoring camp for boys ten to twenty years old, and situated on Lake Superior in the Huron Mountain country.

The equipment includes ten spacious and comfortable buildings among the birches at the mouth of the Yellow Dog river.

The recreations include tennis, baseball, canoeing, motorboating, trout fishing, deer and partridge shooting, and mountain climbing. The school work is done well and thoroughly and the session lasts all the morning. The carpenter shop is for boys who like to make baskets, repair boats, etc.

CAMP CAPTIVA, Captiva, Fla., is the school house for the Winter Term. It is on Captiva Island, near Fort Myers, on the west coast.

Immokalee Lodge, the dormitory, is a large three-story building near both the gulf and the bay, in the midst of an extensive settlement of northern people. Boat life predominates. The waters swarm with launches and sail boats. The camp has its own sail boats and the boys enjoy many trips. The bays and sounds also teem with fish. Hunting and fishing are popular. Baseball, tennis, golf, and water sports are the other principal amusements.

LAKE FAIRFIELD, Sapphire, N.C., in the Blue Ridge Mountains is the scene of the Spring Term. This offers a happy break between the Southland and the North.

The camp sports include boating, swimming, tennis, mountain climbing, bowling, and horseback riding,

ST. JAMES' CHAPEL, MIDDLE SCHOOL, AND REFECTORY

HOWE SCHOOL, Howe, Ind.

REV. J. H. MCKENZIE, D.D., L.H.D., Rector.

This long-established school in the pleasant village of Howe provides thorough preparation for college and scientific school. Its graduates are admitted upon certificate by all colleges accepting certificates. The School makes a specialty of preparing boys for the colleges which admit only by examination and has for many years been unusually successful in this work.

Only well-bred boys highly recommended are admitted. The numbers are limited in each department so that every boy receives personal attention.

The School aims to teach boys how to study, and requires each boy to recite his lessons each day. The forms are so divided into sections that this is made possible.

The permanent faculty of experienced college men have had special training in the work of their departments. The Lower School for little boys under fourteen is entirely separate from the Middle and Upper Schools. It has its own buildings, playground, and playhouse.

The School occupies extensive grounds with broad well-shaded lawns. Its own farm and dairy supply the table. The water supply, fire protection, and all equipment are of the best.

The Athletic Grounds include fields for all sports, a running track, golf links, and tennis courts. The beautiful lakes provide opportunities for rowing, sailing, and swimming. There is a skating pond on the campus, and the little boys have a toboggan slide. All branches of sport are maintained under the Club System.

Illustrated circulars will be sent on request.

BELMONT SCHOOL (For Boys), Belmont, Cal.

W. T. REID, A.M., Harvard, Head Master.

The situation of the School among the foothills, twenty-one miles south of San Francisco, is unexcelled. Probably no school has more attractive grounds. The illustration above shows only a small portion of the grounds and buildings.

The climate, too, is California's best—never uncomfortably warm, never too cold for out-of-door games, and always invigorating. It is doubtful whether a better place could be found for physical well-being.

Belmont is primarily a college preparatory school. Of its three hundred and sixty-five graduates, three hundred and thirty have entered the leading colleges and universities of the East as well as the West.

A glance at our catalog, a copy of which we shall be glad to send to any one interested, will show that we are successfully meeting the admission requirements of the leading colleges and engineering schools. Our California universities—the University of California and the Leland Stanford Junior University—have naturally taken the largest number of our graduates, and Harvard, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and Yale follow in the order named.

The school buildings have been planned with full knowledge of requirements based on experience in eastern schools. The swimming tank, 75 x 32 feet, is lined with white glazed porcelain tiles. School athletics offer ample let-ups.

THE MARY A. BURNHAM SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Northampton, Mass.

Miss HELEN E. THOMPSON, Head Mistress.

The School aims, in accordance with the ideals of Mary A. Burnham, its founder, to give a thorough and systematic mental training and to develop refined and useful womanhood. As the corps of teachers is large, careful attention can be devoted to the work of each girl.

The school is happily placed opposite the campus of Smith College, and its students are able to take advantage of the concerts and lectures offered by the college.

College Preparatory and Literary Courses are offered. The latter is planned to meet the needs of girls not wishing to enter college. Domestic Science and Music are provided for. The work in music is so arranged that it can be offered as one of the elementary studies required for entrance to college.

A course is given in the study of Architecture with special reference to the English Cathedrals and the French Châteaux. This course is planned for girls looking forward to foreign travel.

The well equipped gymnasium is in the charge of Mrs. Senda Berenson Abbott (Boston Normal School of Gymnastics). All girls who are physically able are expected to take gymnastics, esthetic dancing, folk dancing, and to play basket-ball, volley ball, or tennis.

The course in Domestic Science includes practice in economical buying, the selection of menus and the arrangement and service of the table, as well as the cooking and serving of foods.

The charge for board and tuition is $800 for the year. The tuition for day pupils is $150 for the year.

THE MAIN ACADEMY BUILDING IS OF BRICK, FOUR STORIES HIGH

BRADFORD ACADEMY, Bradford, Mass.

Miss LAURA A. KNOTT, A.M., Radcliffe, Principal.

Bradford Academy, the oldest institution in New England for the higher education of women, has about four thousand former students scattered throughout the breadth of this and other lands. It is thirty miles from Boston, in the beautiful Merrimaek Valley, the country made famous by Whittier.

The Academy grounds are laid out in walks, drives, tennis courts, basket-ball grounds, and natural woodland. There is a fine athletic field of twelve acres. Tupelo Lake, though small, affords boating and skating within the grounds.

The College Preparatory Course of four years, which admits without examination to Mt. Holyoke, Vassar, Smith, Wellesley, and other colleges, is supplemented by a general course of five years and a two years' course for high school graduates. Graduates of the last named course are usually able to enter the sophomore class of the Western State universities.

The Art Department is specially endowed, as is also the Library. The Music Department has a staff of five instructors, most of whom come from Boston for this work.

A series of artists' recitals is given each year. The Domestic Science Department, admirably equipped, offers courses in sewing, cooking, and household arts. The Gymnasium, Athletic Field, Tennis Courts, and Lake offer every facility for health. There is a happy and wholesome home life.

The Faculty consists of twenty highly trained and experienced men and women. Several scholarships for earnest, ambitious young women are available.

ELINOR COMSTOCK SCHOOL OF MUSIC,
41 E. 80th St., New York City.

Miss ELINOR COMSTOCK, Principal.

An exclusive home where a limited number of girls duly chaperoned, may secure a thorough musical education, and enjoy the privilege of associating with the world's foremost musical artists.

The situation is in a delightful part of New York, one block from Fifth Avenue and Central Park. Home and Social Life. Single rooms for early applicants.

The school is a prominent exponent of the Leschetizky method. It is endorsed by the most distinguished musicians.

PADEREWSKI writes: "It is my pleasant duty to tell you in writing how much I enjoyed the other day the playing of your pupils. All of them played technically and musically remarkably well, thus positively demonstrating the efficiency and excellence of your methods. I congratulate you, dear Miss Comstock, upon such beautiful results of your work."

KATHARINE GOODSON writes: "I consider Miss Elinor Comstock one of the greatest teachers of the Leschetizky School, both as regards technique and true musicianship. During my visits to the States, I have heard several of her pupils, and was most impressed, not only with the fine ground work, but with the dynamic contrasts, excellent pedaling and beautiful tone color which they produced."

THEODOR LESCHETIZKY writes: "The undersigned wishes to testify that Miss Elinor Comstock has studied piano with him for two years with great success. He feels that he is able to say with certitude that Miss Elinor Comstock is well fitted to give unsurpassed instruction inasmuch as she possesses both practical as well as theoretical knowledge and with it an innate appreciation."

GABRILOWITSCH writes: "It is with great interest that I listened to your pupils, and I am most impressed at the fine teaching they have had."

The courses include Music, Harmony, Solfeggio, Sight Reading, Literature, History of Art, Current Events and Dramatics. Modern Languages are taught. French is spoken in the house.

The history of music, the personality of composers, the distinction of the masters and great performers are the subject of daily readings and discussions.

The best pupils are given an opportunity at times to play before such masters as Katherine Goodson, Gabrilowitsch, and Paderewski, who offer criticism and advice.

Resident and Day pupils, beginners as well as advanced students, are accepted. Riding and other sports can be enjoyed if desired.

RESTHAVEN, Mendon, Mass.

MISS CATHERINE REGINA SEABURY, A.B.,
Bryn Mawr, Principal.

Resthaven is a farm of diversified woodland and field of one hundred and thirty acres, thirty-three miles south of Boston.

The climate is unusually healthful, the soil is dry and sandy, and pine woods characterize the countryside.

The school is limited to fifteen girls preparing for college as well as those taking general studies, History, the Arts, Modern Languages.

Chorus Singing and Swedish Gymnasium Work are required of all. Outdoor life in the fields and woods is encouraged. Winter and summer sports, driving, visits to Boston Museums, Symphony Concerts are of frequent occurrence. Singing and piano lessons are arranged for.

RESIDENCE AND TENNIS COURTS

THE MISSES ALLEN SCHOOL, West Newton, Mass.

MISS LUCY ELLIS ALLEN, A.B., Principal.

The Allen residence is a fine old Colonial house with a spacious lawn. A second house is used both as a residence and for domestic science and music. A genuine home life with individual and special attention. College preparation. Advanced work in art, history, literature, and music.

WALNUT HILL SCHOOL, Natick, Mass.

MISS CHARLOTTE H. CONANT, B.A., } Prins.
MISS FLORENCE BIGELOW, M.A., }

MISS MARJORIE HISCOX, M.A.,
Assistant Principal.

Walnut Hill offers thorough College Preparation to eighty-five girls. The school is approved by the College Entrance Certificate Board, and every year sends many students to college both on certificate and by examination.

Students frequently attend lectures and concerts at Wellesley College only two miles away, and have access to the art galleries and collections there.

The four buildings are attractively grouped on the forty-acre campus. The grounds include a basket-ball field, the orchard, three tennis courts and a hockey field. A flooded meadow gives an opportunity for skating. A small club house is placed between the tennis courts for the use of the Athletic Association. Tuition and board for the school year, $900.

DANA HALL, Wellesley, Mass.

MISS HELEN TEMPLE COOKE, Principal.

MISS ADELE LATHROP, M.A., Associate Principal.

TENACRE is for young girls from twelve to fifteen years of age. A beautiful country estate, with two large, perfectly equipped, modern homes, provides accommodations for thirty pupils. The course of study extends through two years and prepares for the College Preparatory Course or the General Course at Dana Hall.

The instruction is under women of the highest talent. A fine gymnasium, outdoor sports, and horseback riding under trained teachers provide for the physical welfare of the young girls. At Tenaere individual needs of pupils are carefully met. The school is in beautiful surroundings ten minutes' walk from Dana Hall.

DANA HALL offers the advantages of both country and city life. Under proper chaperonage the students enjoy the rare opportunities which Boston offers in Music and Art. The College Preparatory Course prepares for all the leading colleges for women. Its graduates are admitted without examination by those colleges that accept certificates. A well-selected General Course is given for those girls who do not wish to enter college. Dana Hall stands for thorough scholarship and general culture. It has the advantages of a large highly organized school. Gymnasium work, in a large and thoroughly equipped building, and field sports are in charge of competent physical directors. Lectures and concerts of a high order are given at the school during the year.

PINE MANOR is the Post-graduate Department of Dana Hall, established for students who desire to take up advanced academic work, music, art, and a comprehensive course in Homemaking. Graduates of secondary schools find here a rare combination of home and school life in a congenial and stimulating environment. The full course of study covers two years. The second year's work finds expression in the actual maintenance of ideal family life in an "Experiment House" managed in all its details by the students themselves, under the instruction and direction of Mrs. Margaret Stannard, Head of the Garland School of Homemaking, in Boston.

The location of Dana Hall is excellent, the ventilation of the houses is good, and the drainage perfect. Wellesley is half an hour from Boston and the school is five minutes' walk from the railway station and within a mile of Wellesley College. In connection with Dana Hall there are fifteen detached cottages, with rooms for about two hundred and fifty resident pupils.

THE SCHOOL BUILDING

MISS MARY C. WHEELER, A.M., Brown Univ., Principal.

Miss Wheeler's School offers a rare combination of town and country life for girls. The "Town School" is attractively situated in a new building, erected in 1911, on Hope Street. The grounds afford space for tennis, basket-ball, baseball, and outdoor activities, including gardening for the young children.

The main building of brick in the Elizabethan Tudor style contains Miss Wheeler's studio, offices, reception room, and library. The dormitory rooms are on the upper floor. The working studio and the textile room are on the top floor. Additional dormitory rooms, the laboratories, and the dining room are in the Angell Street house. The gymnasium is in an open-air building.

The School prepares for college, or offers an advanced academic course of two years, with special opportunities for art and music. The school certificate is accepted by the leading colleges.

The Studio, which has always been a very important department of the school, is under the direction of Miss Wheeler. Drawing, painting, and modeling are a part of the regular school course.

The School "Farm" in Seekonk, fifteen minutes from Providence in the school motor omnibus, consists of 120 acres, a spacious and dignified house on the hill, and farm buildings. Courses may be worked out in the gardens. Athletics and country sports.

ST. FAITH'S SCHOOL, Saratoga Springs, N.Y.
REV. H. C. PLUM, A.B., Harvard, Principal.

The four buildings are on high land, a most healthful location. College Preparatory, General Culture, Commercial Courses. Accredited to Smith, Vassar, etc. Tuition and Board, $275.

DANCERS IN THE JUNE FÊTE

MISS M. R. BRENDLINGER, A.B., }
 MISS VIDA HUNT FRANCIS, B.L., } Principals.

The four acres of grounds on a hill are retired in location and afford excellent opportunities for all kinds of outdoor sports under direction of instructors.

The buildings include the Homestead and Lodge for residence, a separate school house and large Gymnasium.

Special attention is given to home life and general well-being of the girls. Classes are small to allow of individual work.

College Preparatory, General, and Special Courses are given. Certificates to Vassar, Wellesley, Smith, Mt. Holyoke.

THE SCHOOL BUILDING STANDS IN THE EXTENSIVE GROUNDS

CATHEDRAL SCHOOL OF ST. MARY,

MISS BANGS AND MISS WHITON'S SCHOOL,
Riverdale Ave., near 252d St., New York City.

MISS LOIS ADELAIDE BANGS, Principals.

MISS MARY BARTLETT WHITON, A.B., Smith.

The only Country Boarding and Day School for Girls in New York City occupies a well-wooded estate on the highest land between the Hudson River and Van Cortlandt Park opposite the Palisades.

The School offers all the outdoor advantages of the country with full enjoyment of the cultural influences of New York City through easy accessibility to museums, libraries, concerts.

On the extensive grounds there is space for all forms of sport and games in which careful training is given. An Athletic Association increases the love of outdoor life and play. Instruction in riding is given by an experienced master, and separate classes for beginners and advanced riders are formed.

It is small enough to be a Real Home, but large enough to be a Real School. The Music Department is especially strong. Special Courses are given in Dancing, Elocution, and Art. Studio practice includes modeling, drawing, painting, and design. The school certificate admits to the leading colleges.

THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS

AKELEY HALL, Grand Haven, Mich.

Miss MARY HELEN YERKES, Resident Principal.

A Boarding School for Girls in a healthful and attractive location on Lake Michigan. Individual Work an important feature of this school. Gymnasium and Field Sports.

INSTITUTE OF MUSICAL ART OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, 120 Claremont Ave., New York City.

FRANK DAMROSCH, Director.

The School occupies a beautiful and commodious building especially constructed for its needs. Through the help of its endowment of half a million dollars it is able to be well conducted and to charge moderate tuition fees. Also it can command the services of artist-teachers whose private terms would be prohibitive to most students.

The courses provide a thorough musical education in all branches with all the advantages of European training. The Operatic Department is carried on in close affiliation with the Metropolitan Opera House.

Students of string and wind instruments receive training in the Students' Symphony Orchestra of seventy performers, which from time to time plays in the public halls of New York City. Advanced students rehearse their concertos with this orchestra.

Special attention is given to the thorough training in general musicianship including ear-training and all branches of theory.

THE SCHOOL BUILDINGS

LORETTO ABBEY, Wellington St., Toronto, Can.

A Roman Catholic College and Academy founded in 1848.

Courses of Study: College, Academic, High School, Commercial, and Preparatory for University Matriculation.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL, Shelbyville, Ky.

MRS. W. T. POYNTER, A.B., Wesleyan, Principal.

A Preparatory School for Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Mt. Holyoke, and other colleges, to all of which graduates are admitted on certificate.

The School offers unusual facilities for those who expect to become teachers. The instructors are all graduates of the best colleges and universities and have had thorough training.

The departments of piano, violin, and voice are in the charge of women who have had years of study with eminent teachers in this country and of Europe as well as successful experience in teaching.

The Boarding Department is limited so that each student receives personal supervision and attention. The School is especially adapted to the care of younger pupils, having both a matron and a housekeeper, in addition to the oversight of the principal.

For Recreation the girls have Horseback Riding, Driving, Tennis, Basket-ball, Fencing, and Indoor Games.

Trolley connections with Louisville permit attendance at plays, concerts, and other educational entertainments in the city. Occasional trips are taken to the Mammoth Cave and other points of interest in the State.

DWIGHT SCHOOL—THE GYMNASIUM—DWIGHT HOUSE

DWIGHT SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Englewood, N.J.

MISS EUPHEMIA S. CREIGHTON, } Principals.
MISS ELLEN WORCESTER FARRAR, }

Dwight School for Girls was founded in 1859 and since 1899 has been under the personal direction of Miss Creighton and Miss Farrar.

The school is attractively located at Englewood, one of the residential suburbs of New York, offering the advantages of Country Life as well as the opportunities of New York City.

The grounds command a fine view of the surrounding country. The four houses, Dwight House, Dwight Cottage, Dwight Gymnasium, and Dwight Hall, are new and well equipped.

The atmosphere of the school is homelike with family spirit, and the work is earnest in all departments. It prepares many of its students for college and also offers carefully planned and advanced courses for those not wishing to enter college. The school certificate is accepted by Vassar, Smith, Wellesley, and Wells.

All the teachers are specialists and the classes are small. The number of boarding pupils is limited to fifty.

Outdoor games, gymnasium, tennis, and riding are carefully supervised. The large, new Gymnasium, forty by eighty feet, is provided with modern apparatus. A resident trained nurse looks carefully after the health of the pupils.

THE BUILDINGS ARE OF SUBSTANTIAL CONSTRUCTION

BROWNELL HALL, Omaha, Neb.

A Boarding and Day School for Young Women and Girls. Prepares for all Colleges. Faculty of Seventeen. Home Life.

THE AMERICAN CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, Kimball Hall, Chicago, Ill.

JOHN J. HATTSTAEDT, President.

The Conservatory is located in the well-known Kimball Building; Kimball Hall is one of the most fully equipped and best known structures dedicated to musical purposes in Chicago. Chicago is the accepted metropolis of the West in art. The opportunities for hearing good music are unsurpassed. The Chicago Orchestra concerts and the Grand Opera are permanently established.

The course of study is divided into five departments: Preparatory, Intermediate, Teacher's Certificate, Collegiate, Post-Graduate.

Courses are offered in piano, voice, violin, organ, public school music, theory, orchestral instruments, dramatic art, etc. Expression and dramatic art are taught in the Walton Pyre School.

A superior Normal Training School supplies teachers for colleges. Diplomas and degrees are given. The faculty of eighty artists include many of international reputation.

Special features are a complete and well established Normal School, a Students' Orchestra, a Musical Bureau, and a well arranged series of Faculty and Pupils' Recitals.

Many free advantages are offered to deserving students.

THE SCHOOL BUILDING IS BEAUTIFULLY SITUATED IN THE BEST RESIDENTIAL PART OF THE CITY

BRUNOT HALL, 2209 Pacific Ave., Spokane, Wash.

Miss JULIA P. BAILEY, Principal.

Brunot Hall is a Church School for Girls accepting both boarding and day pupils. The buildings are homelike and cheerful and the principal aims to make the school a pleasant Christian home where girls may receive a broad and thorough education, fitting them for the highest usefulness in life.

The climate is unsurpassed. Special attention is given to physical culture, and daily physical drill is required. The well equipped gymnasium is in charge of specially trained instructors. There is a fine tennis court on the grounds.

There is a Primary, a Preparatory, and an Academic Department, and three courses of study are offered, English, Classical, and College Preparatory.

The Music Department is under foreign-trained instructors. Chorus training is given by the vocal teachers. Languages are taught by native teachers or those trained abroad. The laboratories are especially well equipped and instruction is given in domestic science, sewing, cooking, and household arts.

The faculty is made up of ladies from the best families, all experienced teachers and graduates of leading colleges. The School has certificate privilege to all colleges.

OUTDOOR LIFE THROUGHOUT THE WINTER

THE FLAGLER PREPARATORY SCHOOL FOR GIRLS, Jacksonville, Fla.

MRS. LANGDON CASKIN, Founder and Principal.

The school offers Preparatory, Elective, and Post Graduate Courses with special work in Music and Languages. The Faculty is composed of experienced College Women.

The school is attractive and original in its plan. All the dormitories are single, opening on copper-screened sleeping porches. An Army Bugle calls for periods instead of the bell system. Bloomers, blouse, and tennis shoes are worn during school hours, and simple frocks in the afternoon and evening.

The outdoor school life is an innovation. The plan of education is a delight to the students, for out-of-doors in the shade of tropical trees study becomes a pleasure. Gymnastics, Tennis, Basket-ball, and all sports are supervised. A Swimming Pool is being constructed.

The school building is heated and lighted by an outside steam and electric plant owned and operated by the school. The pure drinking water comes from a well 230 feet deep. The Sanitation is perfect.

Recitations are held from nine to one-thirty o'clock daily. With the exception of the afternoon study hour, the afternoons are devoted to outdoor exercises.

Terms $500, with music $600. No extras.

CASA DE ROSAS

GIRLS' COLLEGIATE SCHOOL, Adams and Hoover Sts., Los Angeles, Cal.

Miss ALICE K. PARSONS, A.B., Wells, } Prin.
Miss JEANNE W. DENNEN, Bradford Acad., }

The Girls' Collegiate School, now in its twenty-fifth year, continues under the leadership of its founders, Miss Alice K. Parsons and Miss Jeanne W. Dennen.

Its location is the best in Los Angeles, and the buildings, following the Spanish Style of Architecture, are renowned for their harmonious beauty. Patios, Arcades, and Balconies are distinctive features.

Rose Court was opened for resident pupils in 1915. Protected balconies on the second floor make it possible to sleep out of doors.

The Gymnasium is a one-story building containing a large Recreation Hall, a well equipped Laboratory, and Class rooms specially designed for the various Departments.

Supervised gymnasium work is conducted every afternoon. Aesthetic and classical dancing are taught. Riding, walking, and swimming clubs are special features, and the girls, living so much in the open, enjoy normal, vigorous health.

Girls are fitted for further consecutive study at school or college, or for the broader life at home and in the world. The school is accredited to the leading colleges. Social life is encouraged and the cultivation of graceful manners and courtesies is considered a necessary part of education.

It is essentially a home school, and high purpose is the directing influence. Over sixty per cent of the students enter college. The courses in Art, Business, Domestic Science, and Domestic Art are under especially fine teachers. The Music advantages are superior.

HAPPY, HEALTHY GIRLS ENJOYING THE CAMP ACTIVITIES

KINEOWATHA CAMPS FOR GIRLS, Wilton, Me.

IRVING G. McCOLL, B.L., General Director,
Hotel McAlpin, N.Y. City.

ELISABETH BASS, A.B., Director.

Camp Kineowatha comprises three separate camps, the Junior, Middler, and Senior, for girls of various ages and development, from eight to twenty years of age.

The 1916 Council includes experienced women teachers from public and private schools, a U.S. Army Officer from West Point for riding instruction, and the swimming instructor from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis as chief instructor in all water sports. All departments are in charge of specialists who understand how to interest and instruct the young.

The living quarters of the girls are comfortable, attractive bungalows, completely equipped with modern plumbing, hot and cold running water, electric lights, spring beds, mattresses, and complete bedding supplies. Most of these have large living rooms with fireplaces, and wide, screened porches which provide dry, airy sleeping quarters.

The daily program provides Horseback Riding under safe and efficient direction of the West Point instructor; Swimming, Diving, Boating, and Canoeing instruction under the Annapolis man; Arts and Crafts, including Jewelry-making, Basketry, Leather work, Pottery, and Stencil work, all under experts.

The Honor Point System in both Kineowatha and Kineo is an all-season competition, against established standards for the various ages, and it has to do with character and temperament as well as with physical and mental accomplishments.

INSTRUCTION IN HORSEBACK RIDING IS GIVEN BY U.S. ARMY OFFICERS FROM WEST POINT

KINEO CAMPS FOR BOYS, Harrison, Me.

IRVING G. McCOLL, B.L., Director,
Hotel McAlpin, N.Y. City.

CAMP KINEO is for boys under sixteen, who are classified according to age and development in three separate camps called Juniors, Middlers, and Seniors.

The Camp Council, all men of mature judgment and experience, provides one reliable man for each group of three boys. The 1916 Council includes two Graduate Physicians experienced in camp control, three Athletic and Physical Directors and one Principal of well-known boys' schools, two U.S. Army Officers from the faculty of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, one for riding instruction and the other for Boy Scout training, and many teachers from public and private schools, with a minimum of college undergraduates.

Horseback-riding is under the safe and efficient direction of U.S. Army Officers from West Point. Swimming, Canoeing, Boating, and all Water Sports are unusually well safeguarded under strict regulations. A troop of the Boy Scouts of America is maintained under West Point men. The Nature Study and Campercraft are of real value. Instruction for three hours each day is given in something useful and interesting in addition to thorough instruction for every camper in all sports.

The Honor System prevails and there is a sympathetic comradeship between men and boys. Individual attention is given to each camper's needs and the serious responsibilities assumed for the moral and physical welfare of the boys are fully realized.

READY FOR THE HIKE

WALTER L. NOURSE, A.B., Fessenden School, W.
Newton, Mass.

RALPH H. PIERCE, A.B.

JOHN PORTER, JR., B. S.

The camp is situated in healthful surroundings near the head of Lake Ossipee at an elevation of five hundred feet. The twenty acres border on the lake, which here has a fine sand beach.

The three buildings contain dining, kitchen, living, writing, and store rooms, servants' quarters, and a workshop. The tents are each occupied by three boys and a councilor. There are two clay tennis courts, a baseball field, facilities for track sports, quoits, volley ball, and ping-pong. The fleet consists of row-boats, canoes, and two small sailboats. A large float is equipped with a spring board, diving board and chute.

A feature is made of "small group" canoe and hiking trips each week. A special trip is also made to Mt. Washington.

The councilors are all college men and two of the directors are teachers at the Fessenden School. The camp is not exclusively for Fessenden School boys. Many are from other schools in New York, New Jersey, and Maryland.

Applicants for admission to Camp Fessenden must be known to the directors or must present satisfactory references. Boys between the ages of eight and sixteen are preferred. The tuition is $150. Tutoring can be had at $1.50 per hour.

AQUAPLANING IS A FEATURE OF THE CAMP SPORTS

MISHE-MOKWA, A Summer Camp for Boys, Lake Winnepesaukee, West Alton, N.H.

L. THEODORE WALLIS, A.B., Dartmouth '05.
Browne and Nichols School, Cambridge, Mass.

Permanent habits of right living and the complete all-round physical development of the growing boy are the chief purposes at Mishe-Mokwa. The camp offers nine weeks of healthy, happy, profitable outdoor life under the direction of Mr. Wallis, whose profession is the physical development of boys. Mr. Wallis has for seven years been physical director of two of the leading boys' schools of greater Boston. Overstrain in competition and in exercise are especially avoided.

Mishe-Mokwa occupies the whole of Redhead Island. It is wooded, but affords room for baseball field and tennis courts. The boys sleep in specially designed bungalows with open sides and overhanging roofs. The life is one of happy freedom with a few simple duties.

The equipment includes the 36-foot speed boat, "Grey Wolf," with 70 horse power engine. The high speed of this motorboat makes aquaplaning one of the most thrilling and delightful sports of the camp life. In addition there are small motorboats for short trips and a fleet of Oldtown canoes.

The small number makes possible great flexibility in the program. Tennis, photography, exploring, gymnastic stunts, fishing, making boats, building shacks, mountain climbing, swimming, and all the usual camp sports are amply provided for. All these activities are planned and supervised by a man whose life profession is the Physical Development of Boys.

MAKING BASKETS IN THE OPEN AIR

THE HANOUM CAMPS FOR GIRLS, Thetford, Vt.

PROF. AND MRS. CHARLES H. FARNSWORTH.

Teachers College, Columbia University, N.Y.C.

The Hanoum Camps are on the hills fifteen miles north of White River Junction. To the north are the White Mountains, to the west the Green Mountains, and in the valley far below, two and a half miles east, flows the Connecticut.

The Hill Camp is for younger girls. The Lake Camp, a mile away on Lake Abenaki, is for older girls.

The Camp has grown from nine to ninety girls, and from five to two hundred acres in eight years. There are now thirty tents supplemented by shacks, a bungalow, and other buildings. The girls tent by twos and fours, each group being responsible for the orderliness of the tent.

The girls swim, canoe on lake and river, "gypsy" through the White and Green Mountains, make their own designs for baskets, pottery, jewelry, leather articles, and simple gowns, cook in camp and on the road, learn the trees, flowers, birds, and stars, dance and sing folk music, and give a festival.

They learn how to saddle and bridle and care for a horse; how to mount and dismount, to handle the reins and to take the different gaits, and then horseback trips of three or four days' duration are taken.

Each year the three or four day canoe trip on the river is especially enjoyed. The girls learn how to provide for their group, buying, cooking, serving and clearing up after each meal.

Miss Louise Green of the Elmwood School, Buffalo, for two years head of the craft department, has this year consented to assist Prof. and Mrs. Farnsworth as director.

THE SCHOOL GROUP BEFORE THE SPHINX, STARTING ON A TEN-MILE CAMEL RIDE TO SAKKARAH

MR. SARGENT'S TRAVEL SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

PORTER E. SARGENT, A.M., Harvard, Director.
 EDGAR W. ANTHONY, JR., A.B., Harvard, Manager.
 WALTER W. COOK, A.B., Harvard, Head Master.

The School from 1904 to 1914 spent each year alternately in Europe or Round the World, traveling a distance of over two hundred thousand miles without mishap.

In EUROPE, England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, Spain, Italy, Greece, Turkey; and on the ROUND THE WORLD trip, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Egypt, India, Ceylon, Burma, Java, the Straits Settlements, China and Japan have been visited and studied.

School Work was continued almost daily. The multiplicity of interests utilized the boy's whole time and energy to educational advantage. Each boy kept a daily journal, and a number of these have been of sufficient interest to be published.

More than one hundred and twenty boys have enjoyed all these advantages while continuing their school work in preparation for college or business. Many have taken the two-year course,—both Europe and Round the World.

The School has demonstrated repeatedly that a boy may benefit by all these advantages and at the same time, with individual instruction and enhanced interest, be prepared for college examinations in from four to eight subjects.

Interrupted by the European War, the School will be resumed after the restoration of peace, with a year's tour of Europe.

For Illustrated Booklets, the "Cosmopolite," the school paper, etc., address 50 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

USING THE PATHÉSCOPE IN A MODERN CLASS ROOM

THE PATHÉSCOPE

A MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR FOR EDUCATIONAL PURPOSES

The Pathéscope is a development of the motion picture projector which provides the only safe and practical means of producing motion pictures in the school, church, and home.

The special film developed for use with the Pathéscope is absolutely non-inflammable.

The use of the Pathéscope is permitted by all insurance companies, underwriters' associations and State laws without the fire-proof booth and other restrictions that are required where the standard motion picture film is used.

The Pathéscope is made by the world's largest manufacturers of motion pictures and films, and is produced especially for educational work.

The Pathéscope produces pictures which are perfectly sharp and clear. The light is supplied from an incandescent lamp in the projector, the current coming from either the ordinary electric light circuit or from a storage battery.

There is a Pathéscope plan and film service to meet your individual requirements.

Sargent's Handbook Series

A HANDBOOK OF AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES

(In preparation)

A Critical and Discriminating Review of the Colleges and Universities of the United States and Canada, their History, Traditions, Personnel, and the particular Service each has performed for its community or for the nation.

Introductory chapters deal with the Historical Development of the College in America, the Function of the University, the Choice of a College, the Development of the Summer School, etc.

The older and more important universities are treated at some length, while the smaller colleges are more briefly considered. Separate chapters deal with the Schools of Law, Medicine, Engineering, Architecture, Forestry, Theology, etc., and the University Summer Schools.

The Comparative Tables bring together the more important statistics, and characteristics which are of most significance, such as Date of Establishment, Income, Endowment, Attendance, Alumni, Tuition, Entrance Requirements, etc.

The Appendices include a Bibliography, a List of Academic and Scientific Associations, a List of College Publications, and Directories of value to College Authorities.

This Handbook will be both a Directory and a Year-book, giving in one volume condensed and up-to-date information of institutions for higher education. As such it will be of value to Educators. It will also be a Guide-book of assistance to Schools and all planning for a College Course.

A HANDBOOK OF

THE MIDDLE STATES

(In preparation)

Uniform in style and plan with the HANDBOOK OF NEW ENGLAND. Provides reliable, up-to-date information of human interest for Visitors, Tourists, and Residents. The arrangement follows the chief automobile routes of travel.

City, Town, and Countryside with all their prominent features and points of interest are described. The Scenery, the Historic Sites and Houses, the Parks and Monuments, and the more significant Industries, Educational Institutions, and Public Works, are brought to the reader's attention clearly, yet briefly.

Anecdotes and particulars of distinguished characters are given, together with quotations and references from many authors of the past and present.

Introductory Chapters treat of the Agriculture, Manufactures, History, Geography, Geology, Scenery, Architecture, Flora, etc., characteristic of the region.

The Appendices include a Bibliography.

The Directories give systematically arranged lists of Hotels, Garages, Railroad and Steamship Information, Schools and Summer Camps, and other information of value.

The material for this Handbook is being brought together with the cooperation of Local Authorities, Chambers of Commerce, Historical Societies, and others.
